UNCLE LOUIS RITES

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Canada's 12th prime minister, was carried today from the Quebec Basilica to the booming cadence of a 19-gun salute and the crackle of a Royal 22nd Regiment honor guard presenting arms.

Maurice Cardinal Roy, archbishop of Quebec, said the pontifical funeral mass for Canada's second French Canadian prime minister.

The casket borne by eight red-coated NCOs of the RCMP was loaded into a motor hearse for the trip to St. Laurent's birthplace at Compton, Que. (See picture on Page 2.)

He was to be buried alongside his wife in the afternoon.

Nixon Loses Case

WASHINGTON (WP) — A sweeping claim of executive privilege by President Nixon was rejected Friday in the first court hearing of its kind in 166 years.

U.S. District Judge William Jones ordered the government to produce, for his private examination in chambers, 67 memos concerning the dairy industry and a 1971 decision in which the agriculture department reversed itself in order to increase price supports for milk.

The justice department told Jones it would comply.

On orders from Nixon, the White House had asserted executive privilege for the papers. Their release, presidential counsel Leonard Garment said in an affidavit filed on July 11, "would be injurious to the public interest and to the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

The White House made a parallel argument Thursday in refusing a request by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox for certain tape recordings and documents in the Watergate case. Former White House counsel John Dean wrote some of the documents involved in both cases.

In Judge Jones' court Friday, justice department attorney Irwin Goldbloom argued that the president could invoke executive privilege for the 67 memos even if he merely sketchily outlined or listed them, as was done in Garment's affidavit.

The court should decide only if the papers fall within the privilege because they involve advice, opinions or deliberations leading up to an executive decision, Goldbloom contended. He said the question of need of the papers by the people who brought the lawsuit — Ralph Nader's Public Citizen, Inc., and allied consumer groups — should not enter into the decision.

Sweep for Marcos

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines received overwhelming support today in first returns from a nationwide referendum on extension of his martial-law regime.

THE DOG DAYS have hit Victoria. As Friday temperatures soared into the high 70s, Duster took to the water. Duster, a Heinz 57 variety dog, cooled off in the fountain in front of the legislative buildings. Cooling his dogs, you might say. (John McKay photo.)

Astronauts In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Three American astronauts rocketed into orbit today and successfully docked with the Skylab space station which is to be their home for a record 59 days.

During their stay they are to study the sun, stars, earth and man.

Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma linked their Apollo craft with the Skylab 271 miles above earth after tracking it for more than eight hours after their launching from Kennedy Space Centre.

The astronauts had spotted a blinking light on the station some four hours after the liftoff and gradually closed in.

They encountered a possible fuel leak in a jet steering engine system of their Apollo craft, but space agency officials said the problem is not serious.

While the scientific goal of the flight is a prolonged photographic study of the sun, the real mission of the second Skylab flight is to find out whether man can endure without benefit of the earth's gravity for a two-month stretch.

"Medically, this flight is far more important than the 28-day flight of the first Skylab crew," Dr. Charles Berry, chief of life sciences for the space agency, said in a prelaunch interview. "There are just too many things we don't understand about the prolonged effects of weightlessness."

Among the ill effects suffered by the first Skylab crew of Charles (Pete) Conrad, Paul Weitz and Joseph Kerwin was a small shrinkage in the size of their hearts. Their 28 days in space forced their hearts to decrease in size by about three per cent, which might be an irreversible loss of heart muscle.

"We believe some of this loss is fluid, which can be replaced," Dr Berry revealed. "But some of it might also be cardiac muscle, which cannot be replaced."

Dr. Berry said it is impossible to tell if two months in space will cause even more heart shrinkage in the second Skylab crew, declaring this is one of several unanswered medical questions about long duration space flights.

"I think it's clear that weightlessness triggers changes in man's cardiovascular system," Dr. Berry said. "This flight gives us the chance to find out just how serious those changes can be."

Exercise time for Bean, Garriott and Lousma will be doubled. They'll exercise on an electric bicycle or pull up on a bar that resembles a weight-lifting device.

GM'S PROFITS SOAR PAST ALL OTHERS

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. made more money during the first six months of 1973 than any other corporation has made for a similar period.

GM announced Friday its profits for the second quarter were $1.6 billion or $5.62 a share, up 18 per cent from last year's $1.37 billion or $4.78 a share. In the first half GM sales totaled $19.2 billion compared with $16.2 billion last year.

Bank Props Pound

LONDON (UPI) — The Bank of England raised its minimum lending rate to the highest level in history Friday and intervened in the market to bolster the weakened British pound. The dollar, meanwhile, gained across Europe.

The financial moves by the Bank of England included a 2.5 per cent boost in the minimum lending rate, the new form of the bank rate. It raised the lending rate to an all-time record level of 11.5 per cent in a bid to check inflation at home.

The previous record Bank of England rate was 10 per cent, reached briefly in 1914 at the outbreak of the First World War. In the past two weeks the lending rate has gone up by four per cent.

The bank also reinforced the lending rate increase by heavily buying pounds in the market. After drifting down to $2.4725, its lowest level since May, the pound sterling moved up to close at $2.5085.

NEWS BRIEFS

No Talks Set At CP Air

VANCOUVER (UPI) — No negotiations were scheduled this weekend in the dispute between Canadian Pacific Airlines and its striking machinists which has forced the nation's second largest air carrier to cut back its flights by nearly 60 per cent. A CP Air spokesman said Friday that the airline would continue to operate on a reduced schedule, with only 180 of its 428 weekly flights still in operation.

Minister Kidnapped

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Cypriot minister of justice Christakis Vakis was kidnapped today only hours after a series of bombings and explosions hit Nicosia and the southern city of Limassol, the government said.

'Branding' Probed

NEW DELHI (AP) — The state legislature of Bihar has appointed a committee to investigate charges that four women untouchables were branded with hot irons. A government minister said five men have been arrested.

Tavern Bombed

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists bombed a country tavern in Northern Ireland early today as more than 4,000 British troops cordoned off parts of Belfast in their second major security sweep in a week.

Powers Seized

NEW DELHI (AP)—Afghanistan's new military-backed ruler, Sardar Mohammad Daud, has abrogated the country's nine-year-old constitution and assumed the powers it reserved for deposed King Mohammad Zahir Shah and the national parliament.

PLAY FOLLOWED BY REAL THING

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif (UPI) — The curtain had barely rung down on the summer production of "Robin Hood" Friday night when a thief with a bow and arrow, cloaked in a bedspread, waylaid the show's treasurer in the parking lot. He boldly reached into the car, grabbed the $100 in receipts and then disappeared into a darkened glen in the park while passerby chased him.

No Rail, Wires Until Tuesday

Times News Services

The rail strike rolled west today while Ontario struggled to get back on the tracks in the wake of 48 hours without trains or telegrams.

Some 7,500 rail employees walked off their jobs at 6 a.m. local time in British Columbia, Alberta, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories as the 56,000-member Association of Non-Operating Employees pressed its campaign for new contract terms.

A Canadian National Railway spokesman said no hardships were expected to result in remote communities because most of the regular traffic consisted of "hard freight."

The strike will last 66 hours — until midnight Monday night local time.

In Victoria, some 300 non-operating employees are on strike, said Roy Head, chairman of the local association of non-operating unions.

Strikers are picketing the E and N Railway, CP Transport at 355 Catherine, CP-CN Telecommunicastions at 530 Fort, the CNR ticket office at 608 Fort, and the CN Express at 80 Esquimalt, Head said.

Only CP's Seattle-to-Victoria ferry, the Princess Marguerite, is continuing to operate and isn't being picketed.

Halting the Princess Marguerite wouldn't hurt the employers much, said Head, and would only affect the travelling public and the tourist industry. Also there are many students working who need the money they can earn during the summer months, he added.

"What we're really interested in is the freight moving," he said, and pickets are aimed at stopping this.

CP's two freight-carrying ferries, the Carrier Princess which sails from Vancouver to Swartz Bay, and the Princess of Vancouver which sails from Vancouver to Nanaimo, have been stopped by pickets in Vancouver.

The E and N railway, CP Transport, CP-CN Telecommunications, and CN Express are expected to re-open for business Tuesday morning, along with the freight ferries.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the CNR headquarters in Montreal said rail service throughout Ontario, first target of the series of rotating strikes by rail employees, "is returning to normal" following the return to work of some 20,000 workers in the province.

Officials of the two railways said they would attempt to restore normal operations in the province by 11 a.m. today. However, they said transcontinental service would remain suspended "until further notice."

In Ottawa, Labor Minister John Munro said Friday the government was considering the appointment of mediators and an independent adjudicator to solve the dispute. He said appeals were being made to employers not to irritate the situation by contemplating lockouts.

60-MPH WINDS BATTER CALGARY

CALGARY (CP) — Winds almost reaching hurricane level battered Calgary Friday, blowing down trees and wires and breaking windows.

Police reported 40 calls for assistance from residents to 5 p.m. Most of the calls were related to downed trees and broken windows.

The weather office said winds of up to 68 miles per hour, just seven miles short of hurricane proportions, invaded the city. The average wind speed Friday afternoon was 50 m.p.h.

Some power and telephone lines were blown down but spokesmen said the damages were minor.

$M Damage, Two Dead In Jail Riot

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — About 150 rebel inmates — last of a group of rioting convicts at the Oklahoma State Prison — today released unharmed all 11 hostages they had held for 22 hours, McIntosh County sheriff Clarence Douglas reported.

"They're all out. Everybody's released," Douglas said.

Gov. David Hall, who was in the state capital of Oklahoma City 122 miles away, left immediately for the prison to talk with rebel inmate leaders.

"Order had been restored," Hall said. "The prisoners have been returned to their cells." He said the prisoner demands will be "the subject of our 4:30 p.m. meeting."

Earlier in the day, National Guard troops fired tear gas into the rioting convicts. About 200 surrendered then but about 150 held out with the hostages. Those who did surrender returned to their cells and were given food.

Rioters left the two-block-long prison a smoking shell that Oklahoma officials said would cost $10 million to replace.

Two prisoners were killed in the uprising and a score or more were injured, the Governor's office said.

Three state officials were injured when they were sprayed with Mace during a negotiating session with the prisoners, the governor's office said.

It also said that the two highway patrolmen in a guard tower were injured by a Molotov cocktail thrown by prisoners trying to take over the tower, and three other guards suffered knife wounds in the first outbreak of violence at the prison mess hall.

The first surrender came at 8:19 a.m. CDT — 17 hours and 49 minutes after the revolt started — with an agreement reached during a negotiating session in the prison dining hall. Details were not immediately released.

The inmates released some of their hostages and walked briskly out of the east gate with their hands clasped behind their heads. Guards yelled and fired occasional gunshots into the air to keep the inmates moving.

In Rome, Italy, police using tear gas attacked rioting prisoners demanding penal code reforms at Queen of Heaven jail today in an attempt to break the day-old protest that has destroyed nearly half the prison.

CDC Bid Blocked

TORONTO (CP) — A temporary order restraining the government-owned Canada Development Corp. from proceeding with a $290-million takeover bid for Texasgulf Inc., the United States-based resources company, has been granted in a Houston, Tex., court, CDC president H. Anthony Hampson said Friday.

In an interview, Hampson said he understood from CDC counsel in Canada and New York that Texasgulf management based its application on a Texas statute declaring that any company owning minerals in the state must have a majority of U.S. shareholders and a majority of directors from Texas.

"This is like saying that a U.S. company with a subsidiary in Timmins must have a majority of Canadian directors," said Hampson.

Asked if the move indicated that Texasgulf directors may be opposed to the takeover bid, Hampson said:

"I hardly think that they would have involved themselves in this course of action if that was not the case."

Hampson said that while directors in Canada normally make a recommendaton to shareholders in the face of a big bid they nevertheless remain neutral, permitting shareholders to make up their own minds.

"It seems that in America the directors make the decisions," he said.

"But we made what we considered a fair and reasonable

'95 Acres Wall-to-Wall People'

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — About 400,000 young people squeezed onto the grounds of a race course for a rock festival today and more streamed through this village at dawn carrying tents, bedrolls and coolers of beer.

The concert's name, Summer Jam, proved fitting as traffic engulfed all roads for miles around the concert site at the U.S. Grand Prix auto race course.

"There are 95 acres of wall-to-wall people in there," said Lt. Richard Tonzi, commanding the state police checkpost during the night. "I don't know where we're going to fit them but we can't stop them coming if they want to come. There's got to be in excess of 400,000 people here," he said.

If that estimate is accurate, it would bring the crowd at the festival to about the same size as that which massed at the Woodstock festival on a dairy farm 120 miles west of here in 1969. Woodstock was the hallmark of the youth movement of the 1960s.

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents on the way to the festival Friday. The four hospitals in the area said 108 people had been treated and released, and 27 admitted. Most of the hospital cases were for cuts, scrapes and drug abuse.

"Apparently people are getting stoned on drugs or wine then falling down or riding on roofs or hoods of cars and then falling and getting injured," said the administrator of Schuyler hospital.

In an attempt to turn back the human tide, state police set up checkpoints two miles north and seven miles south of town, telling those driving in that there was no place to park and they would have to walk. Cars were parked for miles along the roadsides.

SUB HITS SHIP

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian submarine Okanagan and a British tanker collided off the Scottish coast early today, a Canadian Forces spokesman reported.

Capt. Bill Whitehead said military reports indicated there were no injuries on board the Okanagan, which was running submerged off the mouth of the River Clyde. There were no reports of injuries aboard the tanker Grey Rover.

The spokesman said the mishap occurred while the submarine was carrying out post-refit trials.

The Okanagan, whose normal complement is 63 officers and men, was damaged about the fin and mast area and headed for the British submarine base at Faslane, Scotland after the collision.

The Okanagan, one of three British-built Oberon-type submarines, was launched in September, 1966 and commissioned in June, 1968. Two others, the Ojibwa and Onondaga, joined the Atlantic Fleet earlier.

Sex Habits Fair Game, Says Ehrlichman

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Drinking problems, sexual habits and domestic situations are all valid campaign subjects, President Nixon's former chief domestic adviser John Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate committee Friday.

"I know of my own knowledge of incumbents in office who are not discharging their obligations to their constituents because of their drinking habits," he said.

"Constituents at home have no way of knowing that you can go over here in the gallery of Congress and watch a member totter onto the floor in a condition of at least partial inebriation which would preclude him making any sort of sober judgment on the issues that confront this country."

Senator Lowell Weicker (Rep.—Conn.), questioning Ehrlichman, asked:

"Do you really want to bring the political system of the United States, of our campaign, down to the level which you are talking about right now?"

Ehrlichman answered: "I know in your situation your life-style undoubtedly is impeccable and there wouldn't be anything at issue like that.

"Maybe my standards are all haywire, that everybody in the Congress ought to be immune from scrutiny on that subject but that seems to me to be an indefensible position on your part," the former White House aide said.

Weicker and Ehrlichman squared off after the Connecticut Republican questioned Ehrlichman about the hiring of former New York policeman Anthony Ulasewicz to handle investigations for the White House. Ehrlichman defended the hiring.

"I am quite satisfied that our system, our institutions, are perfectly capable of passing decent judgment, fair judgment, hard judgment on political figures, public officials; without the covert operations of men like Mr. Ulasewicz," Weicker said.

Ehrlichman stressed that the only investigation of an individual politician Ulasewicz conducted while under Ehrlichman's supervision concerned Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem.—Mass.) and the incident in which a young woman, Mary Jo Kopechne, died in Kennedy's car at Chappaquiddick Island, Mass.

In other developments:

—Known public and private costs of the Watergate investigation were reported nearing the $2 million mark, already making it one of the most expensive in U.S. history.

—Committee chairman Sen. Sam Ervin said President Nixon improperly interfered with the grand jury investigation of the Watergate case last August by arranging for his campaign fund-raiser, Maurice Stans, to testify privately, out of the presence of the grand jurors.

"This is the kind of situation that makes justice grieve at being so treated," Ervin told Ehrlichman during hearings Friday.

THOUSANDS OF MOURNERS line the streets as a horse-drawn hearse carries the body of Louis St. Laurent through the streets of old Quebec, an area well-known to the former prime minister during his student days. He was buried today after a service at the Basilica.

Nader Strikes Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader said Friday that driver complaints he has been getting indicate six General Motors and Ford cars and trucks may have safety problems.

The "vehicle defects would seem to be of sufficient severity to justify a preliminary investigation to determine if they are sufficiently widespread or severe to require defect notification and recall," said Nader in a letter to the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration.

Nader listed these problems as cropping up regularly in his mail:

—Failure of the driveshafts on 1972 Chevrolets and 1973 GMC trucks. A 1972 Chevrolet Caprice with less than 100 miles on it suffered a broken driveshaft on a Los Angeles freeway, Nader said.

—Exhaust leaks into the passenger compartment on GMC trucks with 307 and 310-cubic-inch V-8 engines.

—Possible explosion of the fluid and gas inside the hydraulic cylinder on GM's energy-absorbing bumpers. Nader said he had received a letter alleging the fluid and gas could explode if overheated, possibly with a torch used for body repairs.

—Jammed accelerators on 1971 Chevrolets. Nader cited three instances involving the 1971 models, including one instance where the driver reported the Chevrolet crashed into a parked car.

—Brake failure on 1971 Chevrolet pickup trucks with four-wheel drive. Nader cited one instance involving a truck with less than 6,000 miles.

—Failure of the master brake cylinders on Ford Mavericks. Nader said five instances involving 1970 and 1971 Mavericks had been reported to him, including two failures which led to crashes.

General Motors had no immediate comment.

John Eckhold, director of automotive safety for Ford, said the company would ask Nader for the names of the Maverick owners "so we can learn more about the alleged complaints."

Nader's letter to the highway safety administration also criticized the agency for dragging out its investigations and not seeking out car owner complaints more aggressively.

War Near Saigon

Times News Services

SAIGON — The heaviest fighting in six months has been reported 25 miles north of Saigon.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said today that Communist-led forces are trying to sever the capital from northern provinces. Two vital highways were reported cut at several points 30 to 40 miles north of Saigon.

In neighboring Cambodia, government patrols intercepted infiltrators five miles northwest of the capital of Phnom Penh, leading to a night-long battle.

The strength of the infiltrating force was not known immediately, and government patrols were continuing a search-and-destroy operation in marshes and rice paddies.

The military situation along the Prek Thnot River, south of the capital where much of the recent fighting has occurred, appeared to have improved, said the government.

Meanwhile, Washington Post reporter, Murrey Marder says that the Nixon administration has ceased all claims that it has any negotiations underway on Cambodia, with the U.S. cutoff on supporting bombing for that nation less than three weeks away.

Any negotiations that might influence the course of the war in Cambodia before the Aug. 15 deadline on U.S. bombing are up to the opposing sides in the warfare, U.S. officials said privately. But there is no serious expectation inside the Nixon administration that the pro-Communist insurgents will make any new negotiating move before Aug. 15. "Why should they?" one official bluntly said.

What happens after U.S. bombing halts on Aug. 15 "depends on the resiliency and strength of the Phnom Penh government," said an administration official.

For U.S. officials—or Cambodians—are sanguine about the Cambodian army's prospects for surviving unaided.

Presidential national security adviser Henry Kissinger will not make a new visit to China before Aug. 15, administration officials acknowledge Friday. This represents "no postponement," they contended, because no time for a Kissinger trip to Peking this summmer ever was announced.

The administration's silence on the consequences of the approaching Aug. 15 deadline stands in sharp contrast to President Nixon's public statement on the dire repercussions of a unilateral halt to U.S. combat support for Cambodia.

While the Nixon administration was fighting off Congressional attempts to impose a ban on bombing in Cambodia, spokesmen repeatedly said there were delicate secret negotiations underway to resolve the Cambodian war. Nothing ever has been disclosed about the substance of such negotiations.

Presiden Nixon, on June 27, in vetoing the original, immediate legislative cutoff on bombing, said "a total halt would virtually remove Communist incentive to negotiate and would thus seriously undercut ongoing diplomatic efforts to achieve a cease-fire in Cambodia."

The "conquest of Cambodia by Communist forces," the president said then, would be "a serious blow to America's international credibility . . . that would be felt far beyond Indochina."

No such cataclysmic language is being employed now by any administration official.

Key Problems Stalled

By HOBART ROWEN

Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The Watergate mess, culminating now in President Nixon's refusal to turn over his tapes to the Ervin committee of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, is still eroding public confidence in government.

Some argue that the day-by-day operations of the federal agencies continue unimpeded. That is only partially true: as many as 100 top policy-making federal jobs remain vacant as prominent business executives and professional men shun the invitation to join the Nixon administration.

NO LEADERSHIP

An influential U.S. corporate leader told this correspondent the other day: "I am worried about what appears to be a near-cessation of government activity. There is no leadership, and something must be done to pull this country together."

But the key problem of the day-to-day governmental operations, as important as that is to people who need routine decisions, isn't the big one.

What troubles thoughtful people in the business community and elsewhere is that presidential concentration on the Watergate problem has stalled policy decisions on the key issues of inflation, energy, food supplies, and the U.S. role in a world in which it is no longer the dominant power.

DOLLAR CRIPPLED

The extravagant and dreadful misuse of American resources through the long years of war in Southeast Asia crippled the dollar, and forced Nixon into two devaluations which not only shattered faith in the U.S., but have enabled the rest of the world to compete more successfully for American farm products. A cheap dollar also leads to foreign take-over of some American enterprises.

The food problem well illustrates the absence of a strong hand at the helm.

Serious academic studies, notably one by Lester Brown of the Overseas Development Council, point to the fact the food shortages are going to be a world-wide problem for a long time to come, because of rising incomes coinciding with only limited possibilities for expanding food areas under cultivation. Meanwhile, a decline in the global fish catch threatens another major source of protein.

FOOD PROBLEM

But so far as I know, no one in the Nixon administration in any policy-making capacity is giving serious thought to this problem, or considering any multi-lateral approach. No one is concerned with what might be called the world food economy.

In fact, our responses to the food problem have been uniquely selfish and inward-looking, Nixon having resorted to export controls on soybeans and related products even though that dealt a serious blow to Japan.

GREEK REGIME DRAWS AMBASSADOR'S BARBS

Times News Services

ATHENS—The ruling regime in Greece is guilty of intimidating voters, choking off opposition voices and is likely to falsify Sunday's vote, says U.S. Ambassador Henry Tasca.

Tasca, formerly a consistent supporter of the Greek dictatorship, is reliably reported to have told Washington that the blunt methods of the ruling colonels have aroused widespread opposition and deeply divided the country.

Last week, Tasca privately met George Papadopoulos, Greece's strong-man premier who intends to declare himself president after the vote. Tasca is known to have told Papadopoulos that the American people regard as important a free electoral choice and honest elections. But the regime's performance, Tasca said, raises serious questions about both items.

Tasca's switch has not yet been reflected at higher levels in Washington. There, the first priority remains Greece's strategic importance and the internal political situation is regarded of lesser significance.

offer and we intend to see that the Texasgulf shareholders are given every opportunity to make their own judgment.

"We made the offer seriously and plan to pursue it seriously."

The CDC announced its offer for 10 million shares of Texasgulf at $29 U.S. a share Tuesday. The offer expires Aug. 10. Friday's court action was the first reaction from management of the U.S.-based company.

Earlier this year, the CDC bought 748,000 Texasgulf shares in preparation for the takeover bid. The additional 10 million shares would give it about 31 per cent of the issued shares and about 35 per cent of outstanding shares.

Texasgulf owns large base metal mining operations near Timmins in northern Ontario. Discovery of the metals in 1964 sparked off one of the wildest penny mining booms in Canada's mining history.

Hampton said a further court hearing on the order has been set for Aug. 6.

The public would be kept informed of the status of CDC's bid, said Hampson.

In Canada Friday, British Columbia business and financial leaders expressed opposition, bafflement and outrage at the CDC's plan to buy Texasgulf stock.

"It makes as much sense as buying General Motors because it has a plant in Canada," said Michael Ryan, chairman of the Vancouver Stock Exchange. "I think it's outrageous. The CDC is absolutely witless in doing this."

Tom Elliot, general manager of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, said speculative industries like mining deteriorate when governments move in and this will happen with Texas Gulf, creating uncertainty and inefficiency.

Splitting Oil Firms Risky: Nixon Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man who heads the Nixon administration's petroleum allocation program said Friday breaking up the largest United States oil companies could aggravate the current shortage.

William Simon delivered that assessment in response to the Federal Trade Commission's legal action last week alleging anti-competitive practices among the eight major U.S. oil companies.

In testimony before the Senate subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly he estimated it will require about $15 billion in new refinery capacity over the next 12 years to keep up with petroleum demand.

"If a major suit were undertaken to separate these companies from their refineries, I have serious reservations about whether the capital could be attracted for expansion of the industry," he said.

The industry has denied the FTC's allegations that the majors inflicted the heaviest burden of the petroleum shortage on independents through alleged anti-competitive practices.

V.I. RIVERS CLAIM TWO TEEN-AGERS

Two teen-agers drowned in separate incidents in Vancouver Island rivers Friday.

Children swimming near Cedar Bridge on the Nanaimo River found the fully-clothed body of Michael Lacasse, 17, of Nanaimo.

Nanaimo RCMP are still investigating.

The body of 16-year-old Stephen Yeager, of Lake Lenore, Sask., was found wedged between two rocks in 12 feet of water in the Chemainus River Friday afternoon five miles west of Duncan.

Duncan RCMP said the youth and several relatives had gone swimming in the area earlier in the afternoon.

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has ordered an inquiry.

the weather

Temperatures are again climbing over the province as warm and dry air affects most regions. The exception is the north coast where cloud from a weak Pacific system has been moving through the area in variable amounts. Under mostly clear skies Castlegar reached 93 Friday while Penticton hit 90 and Quesnel 79 with just about all interior points forecast to be a few degrees higher the next two days. With the threat of cloud and cooler temperatures prevailing for the north coast only all other regions will be generally sunny and warm over the weekend.

Pulp Rolls Again Off Alberni Mill

MacMillan Bloedel's giant pulp and newsprint mill at Port Alberni returns to production tonight after members of two striking unions voted Friday to accept proposed contracts.

The mill, which employs about 1,300 and produces a quarter of B.C.'s newsprint, has been shut down by labor strife since July 5.

About 120 electricians and office and technical workers voted Friday for settlement but the margin in favor was only 52 per cent among the electricians.

A large majority of the Office and Technical Employees Union voted to accept terms hammered out earlier this week with the help of government mediator Clark Gilmour.

Start up of the mill was delayed until later today because a main water line ruptured early Friday and a repair crew would not cross picket lines. Picketing did not stop until Friday afternoon.

Bill Swanson, business agent for the OTEU, said his union scored a major breakthrough for women employees — a $60 a month increase, which is about 12 per cent in the first year and nine per cent the second year.

Joe Laminsky, spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said their contract gives an 8.5 per cent wage boost each of two years with main gains in non-economic issues.

DAD WINS BIRTH LEAVE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The labor department Friday became the first federal agency to grant paternity leave to male employees "so that the home and family are taken care of" after their wives give birth.

The new benefit — previously restricted to women — allows up to 30 days' leave either without pay or charged to leave. This is included under a new two-year contract signed by Labor Secretary Peter Brennan and Local 12 of the American Federation of Government Employees.

U.S. Troop Cut Voted by Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has voted to cut U.S. troop strength at home and abroad by 7 per cent, for a saving estimated by acting chairman Sen. Stuart Symington (D — Mo.) at $1.6 billion in the next budget.

The committee voted 11-0 Friday to set a ceiling of 2,076,800 on active duty U.S. forces June 30, 1974. The Pentagon wanted 2,232,900. The House Armed Services Committee has recommended a smaller cutback — to 2,219,895.

Postie Brings Christmas in July

It's Christmas in July when my April copy of American Birds arrives.

A bit confusing? Well, let me explain. The April issue of American Birds, published by the National Audubon Society, always contains the final tally of North America's annual cooperative bird-watching binge, the Christmas Bird Count. And publication and distribution being what it is these days, April frequently becomes July.

At any rate, a quick look at the 558 close-printed pages of this birdwatchers' bible reveals such salient facts about the 1972 count as these: more than 15,000 people took part; counts were made in more than a thousand localities; that Cocoa Beach, Florida, and Freeport, Texas, led all entries with 209 species each; that Victoria, with 122 species, once apain had to settle for place position in the Canadian entries behind Vancouver's 134 species; and that this prodigious effort resulted in upwards of 71 million birds being tallied.

But, behind the almost-impenetrable wall of names, numbers and places, American Birds contains many interesting side-lights on the game of Christmas bird counting.

RESOURCEFUL

One that struck me as I scanned the sea of information was the resourceful use of transportation by the participants as they completed their alloted rounds.

While shank's mare may once have been the sole mode of locomotion available to the bird counters, he long ago gave way to Henry Ford and his ilk. Today, walking runs a poor second behind the automobile in geting birdwatchers to the good birding spots.

Still, there are places where tradition refuses to die. For example, at Alice, Texas, Acoheek, Maryland, and the Mary Grey Bird Sanctuary near Indianapolis, the birders forsook pollution for self-propulsion and did all their counting on foot.

FOOT POWER

Foot power came in for generous use in other counts too but in slightly different ways. At Santa Barbara, California, it was bicycles and at Itasca State Park in Minnesota, snowshoes. Meafort, Ontario, seemed to suport this drift away from the internal combustion engine with a three-mile effort on skis as part of its Christmas count activities.

There is even a report, as yet unconfirmed, that a horse was used at Kingston, Ontario, to help complete the count.

But the snarl and cough of gasoline engines will die hard. New ways of using them are being devised every year and birdwatchers, like so many others, are quick to take advantage of the opportunities they offer.

Such modern advances in transportation as marsh buggies, air boats, helicopters, snowmobiles and trail bikes are finding more and more places on the continental list of Christmas counts.

But Naples, Florida, and Big Spring, Texas, may have stooped to a new low in their search for the easy way when they chalked up 10 miles between them in, of all things, golf carts.

Boats now probably rate third, behind cars and walking, as a means of covering an area. Most counts using boats simply list them as boats with no other qualifying remarks; but Captree Long Island, New York, seems to have won the exotic laurels with a 3-mile stint in a kayak as part of their count.

Then there are the ferries. From Newfoundland to Sidney, Vancouver Island, opportunists are using these regular runs as profitable platforms from which to do their watching.

Jim Duemmel of Bellingham racked up a count of 41 species on the return run between Anacortes and Sidney last Dec. 17.

But a recount seems in order at Central Cayuga, New York, where 11 walking birders, with a combined total of eight hours in the field covered 269 miles.

Thirty-five miles an hour? On foot?

Much Undone As MPs Depart

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Summer came late this year for Canada's members of Parliament, but not late enough to ensure that major legislation promised since January became law before the summer recess.

When MP's and senators agreed Friday to leave Parliament Hill until Oct. 15 they left unsettled many problems which have provoked lengthy debates since the minority Liberal government summoned them together last Jan. 4.

Opposition MP's, while agreeing to recess Friday, summoned their last energies to point out the failings of the 20th Parliament of Canada so far.

They noted that the current rotating railway strike threatens to become a general rail stoppage across Canada.

They abused the government for its failure to bring in any effective measures to cope with the soaring costs of food, clothing and housing.

They complained that the House was taking its recess without passing into law increases in family allowances for low income families, new crop insurance measures to protect farmers, and a bill to limit the expenses of an election which more than a few felt could come before Parliament meets again.

And, as Vancouver South MP John Fraser demonstrated, the threat to the West Coast from massive oil spills as a result of the pending approval of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline, a matter which until Friday was regarded as one of extreme urgency, is left in limbo until October.

MPs had made an urgent trip to Washington Tuesday to impress on U.S. legislators their concern about super tankers coming into the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

But those who make the trip under an urgent Commons order had not even had a chance to report on their talks with the Americans before the recess, let alone have a full debate on the question.

However, if opposition MPs were anxious that all these problems be dealt with quickly, they were not anxious enough to refuse the unanimous consent required to adjourn Friday.

Among major legislation passed by Parliament since Jan. 4 were:

An amendment to the National Housing Act to allocate more money for creation of land banks, new satellite cities and the refurbishing of old neighborhoods. Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford had committed the government to spending $100 million a year for the next five years to increase provision of housing in these ways.

An amendment to old age security legislation to increase the basic old age pension in Canada from $87.50 to $100 a month and to provide for needy families a guaranteed income of $170 a month for single persons and $325 a month for a married couple.

Cuts in personal income taxes of five per cent with a minimum of $100 a year, and reduction of the corporate tax on manufaturing and processing industries, subject to a review next year.

But the list of legislation left unfinished is even longer. It includes:

A bill to extend for another five years the ban on capital punishment for all crimes except the murder of police and prison guards;

Crop Insurance Act amendments to increase the federal share of premiums to encourage farmers to take out crop insurance;

Legislation providing for the screening of foreign takeovers of Canadian companies:

Legislation to make electronic eavesdropping, except in approved circumstances by police, a crime in Canada for the first time;

A bill to place a limit on election expenses and force the disclosure of the sources of campaign funds;

And new family allowance legislation to raise the baby bonus from the present average of $7 a month, non-taxable, to an average of $20 a month, but taxable.

Pumice Traps Ship

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI) — An 80-square-mile floating and drifting island of volcanic pumice posed a threat to shipping in the South Pacific today.

Lt. Ross Bell, commander of the coast guard unit in American Samoa, said the huge layer of light, rock-like material trapped a New Zealand ship three days ago.

The Union South Pacific, a carry-on vessel owned by the Union Steamship Co. of New Zealand entered the pumice field about 160 miles southwest of here on Wednesday night.

The ship's captian. John Jenkins, said he was called on deck about 11 p.m. by the watch commander.

"My first reaction took about five years off my life," Jenkins said. "I thought the ship was on a reef and there was no water in sight anywhere."

Jenkins said he then started easing the vessel around but the pumice choked up all intakes so the ship lost its engines and generators.

The skipper finally got the engines restarted with the seawater intakes closed and the ship was able to clear the pumice field in about 20 minutes.

Jenkins said his crew dropped a four-pound weight on the pumice field and it remained on top.

A measurement of the depth of the field showed it averaged about 18 inches thick.

Win Some, Lose Some

The success of the western conference at Calgary will be measured not in what was said at the meetings — although the establishment of direct communication was an important gain — but in what the federal government does as a result of the talks.

It is a case in which the interests of the federal government, on a political basis, are closely allied with whatever benefits the western provinces and the country as a whole may derive from federal action in response to provincial requests. If the conference proves to be unproductive in that regard, then Mr. Trudeau and his government will suffer still further erosion in the west. But any action taken should win some popular favor as well as remove some of the traditional stumbling blocks.

The four western premiers could not have believed that they would get all that they asked of the federal government. They therefore should not feel the pessimism which they have claimed as a result of federal opposition or disinterest in regard to some of their demands. Quite apart from the merit of individual items, the federal government must, by its nature, take a view of many matters which is different from that of the provinces.

The federal responsibility is to the country as a whole. That means that it should not discriminate against any one region; but it also means that concessions should not necessarily be granted to one area at the expense of the rest of the nation. But this does not preclude agreement and satisfaction on some questions, and that is apparently what has emerged from the conference.

Even limited agreement is all the more notable inasmuch as three of the provinces were represented by NDP premiers and the fourth colleague was a Conservative. It would not be beyond the bounds of possiblity that some of the provincial demands presented, and the provincial reactions to the federal goverment's reception of them, might have been tinged with a trace of NDP or Conservative effort to make the Liberal government look bad. It is to their credit that this did not become a dominant feature of the meetings.

Premier Barrett, with a vast northern railway program involving the British Columbia and federal governments signed and sealed in his brief case, went to the conference with demands for provincial government participation in the banking business and had considerable success. Provinces will be able to hold 25 per cent equity in new chartered banking ventures, although this must be reduced to 10 per cent within "a reasonable" time. Finance Minister Turner, in announcing concessions in this field, put definite limits on the provinces' powers — a necessary defence against loss of federal fiscal control and what even Mr. Barrett described as "unbelievable fiscal balkanization." Mr. Turner saw the change as not a mere opportunity for provincial governments to get into the banking business but a means of encouraging regionally-based banks and stimulating competition.

It is difficult to see how the provincial leaders' zeal — particularly that of Premier Barrett — to own bank stock and presumably help to set institutional policy, will significantly affect the Canadian chartered banking system, one of the most successful and secure in the world. There may be more attention paid to regional needs, but good banking practice cannot be seriously infringed without loss, regardless of the ownership. With the modern trend toward mergers in banking, the new banks may have a limited field. It will be essential, however, to use Mr. Barrett's phrase, that control of the nation's money supply should not become balkanized. Under present inflationary conditions, that could be disastrous.

Throw Open the Doors

Mayor Peter Pollen deserves praise for putting a wedge in the closed door sessions of the police commission. But why not throw the meetings wide open? Mr. Pollen hedges when he uses phrases like "demonstrably open" and "more positively open."

What do the qualifiers mean? Saying that police commission meetings will be more accessible to the public in future and then going into secret session for an hour is an obvious contradiction.

Except for routine personnel affairs the meetings should be wide open. This practice of a brief open session followed by a longer detailed and secret meeting is offensive to Canadian tradition. Recently, even the police commission was not informed of an incident that was certainly in the public interest.

The purpose of police commissions is to give the public control over armed public servants who exercise a great deal of power in the city streets. If the police commission meets in secrecy or even partial secrecy it risks becoming a facade, and losing public confidence.

GEORGE OAKE

Subsidies: To Learn or Play?

By summer's end the federal government will have spent $85.4 million this year on activities and employment for the country's youth.

And while the Opportunities For Youth program — by far the largest project — which accounts for $39,970,000 of this total, tries to interest unemployed youth and native peoples, it is still largely a middle-class phenomenon.

Reference letters, bookkeeping ability, liability insurance are just a few of the adjuncts which would-be participants must master.

Applications include questions like this: "Describe how your group will make decisions in the continuing operation of the project."

Imagine how the junkies on Vancouver's Granville Street or the Indians of Old Crow in the Yukon would react to that one. Sure, they could get someone to help them with the paper work, but the point remains that the terminology and institutional abilities required are decidedly middle class.

Cynical Motives

And a few cynics might even question the government's motives for instituting youthful programs.

This summer an estimated 1,272,000 secondary and post-secondary students were pounding the pavements looking for work. OFY projects alone will take 36,000 of them off the streets, and more important politically, off the unemployment rolls.

Nor was it many years ago that students were muttering about revolution and demonstrating their anger in the same streets. A worried Conservative government dispatched army officers and the RCMP to the campuses, only to withdraw them sheepishly when they found nothing more subversive than Che Guevara posters.

But the vague youthful anger remained. So wouldn't it be far more Canadian-like to buy the beggars off with an OFY grant? Get them to clean up the beaches; they're keen on that right now.

If you think that's far-out reasoning remember that one of the leading FLQ intellectuals, Pierre Vallieres, was hired by the federal government in connection with a poverty research program soon after his release from jail.

Aside from these criticisms and suspicions OFY faces graver problems with its image.

Nothing infuriates a depression-bred taxpayer more than seeing a long-haired bearded youth enjoying himself at the taxpayers' expense.

It's a natural reaction, aided and abetted by the publicity given a few doubtful projects. But times have changed and OFY plus related federal schemes for busying the citizenry are probably here to stay as more unskilled jobs become extinct.

PIERRE VALLIERES
. . . bought off?

Proposition No. 3 of the government's working paper on social security goes even further:

"Governments should consider the establishment of a community employment program. Its purpose would be to provide socially useful employment to people who have been unemployed for an extended period of time, either by reason of the lack of jobs in the areas where they might reasonably be expected to look for work, or by reason of the 'employability' of the people concerned."

The key words here are "socially useful." What do they mean? Who does the defining?

In at least one case it means paying musicians to travel the province and wax melodious at community parades and local festivities.

Think of it. The government is actually paying talented people to spread lilting joy throughout the province. We've come a long way from the forties when the Progressive Conservative party argued vehemently against the baby bonus.

But an older generation is used to more tangible return on their dollar. The Protestant work ethic shudders at people being paid for something as intangible as making music in a public square.

Yet there is no outcry when various levels of government subsidize symphonic concerts. Somehow that's more structured and legitimate.

Social Bias

Perhaps there is a social lag or bias in our thinking. Should persons on the public dole be channelled into learning skills which they apply later productively or should they involve themselves in improving the quality of life — something which many OFY projects attempt to do?

A cursory glance at Vancouver Island projects shows schemes such as helping young diabetics, teaching retarded children, conducting theatre workshops and encouraging children to express themselves.

The great majority are creative, human-oriented concepts that can't be quantitatively measured by Statistics Canada.

Is it a bad thing to subsidize creativity and kindness? Welfare programs and make-work projects have generally been dismal failures. There is nothing more demeaning for a human being than to dig holes and then fill them in, as happened in the thirties.

Maybe OFY is a microcosm of the future. If so, it is only a band-aid applied to a giant rent in our social fabric, a rent that is just beginning to rip. But at this transitional period in our history most of us are eminently employable.

That may explain why we resent people who are subsidized to do their own thing.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

They Bend to the Hurricanes

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — If the Soviet Union does indeed want a "new Europe" of peaceful co-operation and friendly relations, as Kremlin spokesmen have been saying frequently of late, the way to start would be by easing up on Czechoslovakia.

Here, if ever, is a test of the "Helsinki spirit," the euphoria and good fellowship generated at the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe earlier this month in the Finnish capital.

The original reasons for clapping an iron grip on Czechoslovakia in 1968 have long since lapsed, if indeed they ever were valid. There is not the remotest possibility now that this country, closer to the Soviet Union than Cuba is to the United States, will "go capitalist" and join NATO.

Will Not Topple

There is no reason for fear that the "irreversibility" of the proletarian revolution will be disproved by anything that happens here, or that socialist regimes in other East European states will topple like dominoes as the result of a Czechoslovak "counter-revolution."

These fears probably were never valid, even in 1968; some Russians acknowledge this, in private, now. But what is indisputable is that they are not applicable today.

It would, therefore, be safe to begin lifting the yoke from off the neck of Czechoslovakia.

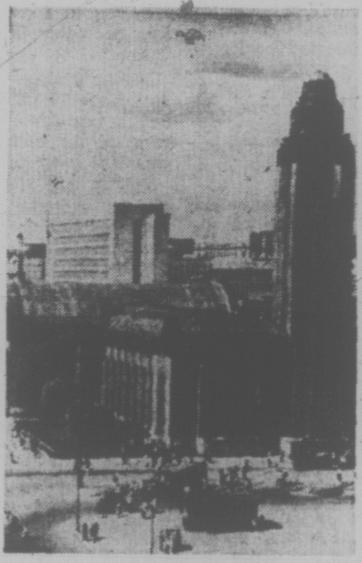
To some very limited degree, it may have begun to happen. But there is a very great distance to go.

It is still almost as difficult as ever for Czechs to travel to the West. Not a single non-communist publication in any language can be bought on Prague newsstands.

The theatre here is in the doldrums. Many liberal Czechs have severed their contacts with westerners, afraid of guilt by association. The Czech press is painfully obsequious to Moscow.

This leaves Prague a sombre city. It has the grandeur and beauty of a 1,000-year-old queen of cities, and a dignity befitting the one-time seat of the Holy Roman Empire. But Prague is almost a city without laughter.

To be sure, the Czech people have rarely been known for ebullience; but the sobriety of Prague today is something new and tangible. It is more eloquent than thousands of words of political dialogue.



HELSINKI
. . . opposite effect

The Czechs have "adjusted" to Soviet colonialism. So many hurricanes have swept over these people in their history that they have had to learn to bend, to be pragmatists, to make the best of things.

There is a national instinct for survival. And they are drawing heavily on it.

The ordeal has been made less intolerable by a relatively high standard of living, the best or next-best (to East Germany) in Eastern Europe, shops are full of basic commodities, and many luxuries can be had. Nothing is rationed.

But material things are not really a substitute for freedom of the spirit, and many Czechs — including some in the government — yearn for a better day.

Some see a glimmer of hope in Soviet-American rapprochement; a desire not to rock that boat could give the Russians a motive to go easier here.

Others look for relief to the Helsinki Conference and its "second stage" due to begin in Geneva in September. It is at Geneva that the West will try to pin down the promises of Helsinki: freer travel, a freer flow of information, non-interference in other people's affairs, other basic human rights.

Paradoxically, however, the Helsinki Conference seems to have had, thus far, the opposite effect in Czechoslovakia. Word has come down to the party faithful to keep "ideological defences" absolutely tight in this period.

Ideological Subversion

Pressure on Communist governments to liberalize the treatment of their citizens is seen as a Western effort to smuggle in techniques and tools of "ideological subversion" (in the words of the Slovak newspaper Smena). It is, therefore, seen as a challenge to be met, rather than as a desirable goal to be encouraged.

So the Czech people are caught in a crossfire, forced to go on enduring an oppressive regime, but hoping for better days. They sing a folk song which (freely translated) goes:

Green forests, you used to be mine;
You used to be the delight of my heart.
But now for long I've not heard the voice of the bird.
Sad times have appeared on the horizon.

A Nature Ramble With Skipper

FREEMAN KING

Those who wander along the trails often see strange growths on plants that are called galls. Next time you see one examine it, perhaps it will still have its inhabitant or there will be a tiny hole where it has left and become an adult.

Some insect left an egg on the leaf and in so doing left a chemical that caused an abnormal growth on the plant which makes a shelter and food for the larvae that will hatch from the egg. The larvae will feed on the plant tissue till it is time to leave as fully grown flying insects.

It is apparent that each type of insect has its own type of plant that it works on such as the oak gall that resembles a mottled marble.

Some galls are produced by certain fungi such as those that inhabit the "Acacia" and some are caused by aphids.

Galls are really pathologically developed cells, tissues or organs of plants that have risen mostly by overgrowth under the influence of parasitic organisms like bacteria, fungi, menatods, mites or insects.

There is no doubt that each and every one has its own particular function and purpose in life. This is one of the mysteries of life itself.

If you come across a clump of thimbleberry you can usually find many of the long rather distorted gall cells and if you open one, there are a number of the larvae within.

The willows seems to attract another species and will show many on their leaves. These become quite hard and it takes a sharp knife to open them.

We can find many plants with rolled leaves. This is a form of gall which is caused by a "leaf roller" or an insect that rolls the edges of the leaf and sticks the edges with a silken strand which it produces from its own body. Some of the tiny creatures look like miniature crabs and no doubt are a type of mite. If you find some you may find the mite, or if not, its very tiny larva, or perhaps it has gone and left behind the minute specks that are its droppings.

Look at the salal bushes and here you can find some leaves that have white streaks that look like veins. These are caused by the leaf miner and here again the same type of thing can be found on other plants.

The insect lays her eggs just under top layer of the leaf and the emerging larva lives on the plant. When the eating stage is complete it emerges an adult. Some leaves will have two or even three of these little tunnels and that will indicate that the adult left more than one egg and each will make its own path or tunnel.

All these things are a part of nature's workings and each one fulfils its own particular task.

Editorial Correspondence

Developer

On July 4 you published a letter from me concerning increased property values caused by rezoning.

Mr. James Mace, the developer, has taken exception to a comment in this letter, that he "wasn't intending to pay anything like 'value' for that (Windsor Park) site". I have now had the opportunity, thanks to Mr. Mace, to examine the actual offers made to owners of property involved.

Option prices totalled $912,000 and in addition the owners of one parcel of land (the unused gas station and derelict grocery) were willing to sell or accept a quid pro quo in the form of a gas station concession in the development. No cash-figure was mentioned, but in the opinion of the real estate negotiator, $150,000 would be a fair price at the time.

This makes the total $1,062,000 for the properties involved, which compares favorably with the total of "over $1,100,000" named by the Graham Mace developers in their submission to Oak Bay council.

It seems that I have been guilty of thinking that Mr. Mace was a "speculator", not a "developer". For this, and the resulting inaccuracy in my statement, I apologize.—M. C. Hall-Patch, 2643 Cavendish Ave.

Press Councils—A Publisher's View

By STUART UNDERHILL

(Stuart Underhill, publisher of The Times since June, 1971, is a former managing editor and deputy general manager of Reuters, the British news agency.)

Publishers get lots of free advice. My friend from the Symphony thinks our paper should devote as many pages to music news as it does to sport. A member of the city council suspects the headline writers of a personal vendetta against him and wants me to replace them all. And there's the lady who says we should print news only of good people (her kind) and ignore the bad 'uns.

The late Hamilton Owens, a distinguished Baltimore editor, may have had these as well as wider conflicts in mind when he defined the role of the newspaper as "a daily attempt to reduce the chaos of the universe into some sort of understandable order." He would have agreed that some papers are more successful at it than others. All of them have good days and bad days.

Journalism is the most human of professions, if not the most humane. It is the human story chronicled by humans in such a way as to be exposed almost instantly to the critical public eye. Human judgments are thereupon applied. It's like family life. The bossy ones back the non-conformist member into a corner and not only criticize his manners and appearance but start prescribing for his blemishes. Instead of sulphur and molasses the recommended remedy is usually a press council.

Big Stick

Maybe a press council won't cure all your ills, the argument goes, but at least it won't do you any harm. A Senate committee prescribed a press council for Canada and they now exist in three provinces. Sweden has had a press council of a kind since 1916. Britain has had one for 20 years. The United States is experimenting with one. Many parts of the world have press councils whose real function is to enforce government regulation with a big stick.

Canada's most quoted advocate is the Senate Committee on Mass Media, brainchild of its chairman Senator Keith Davey, advertising executive, Liberal party worker and erstwhile commissioner of the Canadian Football League. The farcical aspects of the committee proceedings were not always apparent to the sober-sided publishers who paraded before it in 1969-70 to explain and defend their industry.

It is hard to say whether the bustling three-volume report which resulted from the Senate committee hearings represents the opinions of the young journalists who wrote it, or the committee's as a whole, or Senator Davey's.

The report states categorically that Canada needs a press council and ventures some observations on a suitable structure. It says it should be national in scope although "its omsbudsman function could best be handled on a regional basis." Eventually there might be community press councils meeting in relaxed surroundings to chat things over.

"We hope it (the national press council) will become a powerful lobby on behalf of press freedom — a sort of journalistic equivalent of the Canadian Association of University Teachers — that will speak out when governments try to push the press around, or when the press tries to push people around, including its own journalists," the report says.

It regards the British press council as "an excellent working model" for Canada although recognizing that there are differencs in the way the press operates in the two countries.

There are indeed. There is nothing in Canada, for example, to compare with the so-called national newspapers of Fleet Street which flood all the United Kingdom with their circulation, and whose indifference to local community pressures was an important factor in formation of the press council.

The small-town Ontario publisher who plaintively told the Senate committee that he couldn't see the need for a press council because "if someone's got a beef my door is always open," would have to range into the British "provincial" areas to find his opposite number. Even then, the closely-knit community of provincial publishing in Britain has no parallel in the strung-out press of Canada.

There are some interesting figures in the 19th annual report of the U.K. Press Council. Just over 100 daily newspapers are published outside London, ranging in circulation from the Leamington, Warwick, Kenilworth and District Morning News (11,000) to the Glasgow Daily Record (541,000).

In 1972 the Press Council was asked to look into 396 complaints. (In addition to London and provincial dailies it deals with complaints concerning magazines and weekly newspapers—a grand total of 150,000 publications with a gross annual circulation of 10,000 million copies.)

It considered 47 complaints worthy of adjudication, upheld 20 and rejected 27. Nine of the upheld complaints were against national newspapers published in London. Three were against provincial dailies, the closest counterpart to our Canadian papers. The remaining complaints involved weeklies and periodicals.

More Critical

Members of the British press council are drawn predominantly from the press though recently laymen were given a wider representation on the Complaints Committee, albeit grudgingly. Lord Pearce, distinguished jurist who is independent chairman of the Council, noted in a preface to the 1972 report that professionals "are even more critical of professional performance than the laymen."

He also had this to say: "To impose statutory controls on the press would be a disaster. For that reason I believe that a press council is the true answer to the problem of curbing excesses of the press and preventing liberty from degenerating into licence — a council representing and reflecting the sensible, thoughtful views of the very great majority of the press.

"I personally believe that it is a good thing that the Press Council has not acquired the power to fine but relies on the fact that newspapers and magazines print in their columns the adjudications of the Press Council condemning them. This is a strong sanction against an editor.

"He can shrug off a judgment of some body of opinion or some pressure group or some person. Indeed in a free democracy it may be his duty to do so. But for an editor to shrug off the adjudication of a jury on which his colleagues have so strong a voice to the effect that he has behaved badly, unfairly or unethically is very different. He cannot easily shrug that off."

Lord Pearce notwithstanding, Britain's press council has done little to alter the character of its national press. The bad kids of Fleet Street, whose reformation the founders of the council so earnestly desired, don't seem to mind bad publicity.

They still run wild while the good kids continue conscientiously to improve themselves and the mediocrities plod along. With a few exceptions which have nothing to do with the press council, the national newspapers in the last 20 years have moved closer to the gutter, not away from it. For them the press council has become the easy alibi, the indulgent governess asking no more than lip service.

Yet the idea continues to fascinate. The United States has seen recently the emergence of a 15-member council, largely financed by various foundations, which is designed to investigate and comment on complaints from the public about inaccurate or unfair news coverage.

It does not have the unanimous support of the press. A notable abstainer is the New York Times, whose publisher, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, questions the whole concept of the council and the theory that a free press is endangered by its alleged failure to be fair and accurate.

"The real threat to a free press comes from people who are attempting to intimidate or to use the press for their own ends," Sulzberger said in a recent statement. He foresaw the danger that the machinery created by the council "would be used by special interest groups with causes to espouse."

Sulzberger also expressed the view that people have ample opportunity to criticize the press through letters and public statements. "The press, virtually alone among American institutions, disseminates criticism of itself," he said.

About the same time, John S. Knight, editorial chairman of the Knight newspaper chain in the United States, snorted: "Editors are accountable to their readers and not to a group of self-appointed busybodies with time on their hands."

Most Canadian publishers would agree though some have followed the British lead and capitulated to the press council concept, either from conviction or because they feel "if we don't do it the government will impose one on us." The resignation of the latter is a shaky foundation for a fearless and unashamed press. Its final result could be the reverse of the one they desire.

Some newspapers in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta are trying out provincial press councils. Even before the Davey committee, a royal commission which inquired into civil rights in Ontario thought a council could police crime reporting to ensure that a suspect's trial prospects were not prejudiced.

Ontario's 21-member council, drawn from many walks of life, came into being in 1972. It has the support of eight newspapers which account for about 55 per cent of Ontario's daily newspaper circulation.

76 Complaints

It has studied 76 letters of complaint from the public about the press, and one complaint by the press against a public body. (The Ottawa Citizen complained when press and public were barred from meetings of a regional planning committee which was drafting an official plan for the area. The council supported the complaint.)

Of the 76 complaints from the public, eight were judged worthy of adjudication by the council. Illustrative is the row arising from an article in The Canadian Magazine, a weekend feature supplement which appears in several Canadian newspapers. It light-heartedly suggested that a resident of Kapuskasing, Ont., who had won a wrist-wrestling championship, might make the town a tourist attraction, offsetting economic losses due to lay-offs in local newsprint mills.

The mayor of Kapuskasing thought the article gave a poor impression of his town's economy and said so in letters to The Canadian and to the Toronto Star, one of the papers using The Canadian. The Star published the letter but The Canadian did not. The council brushed aside The Canadian's defence that the piece was a spoof which no one would take seriously and said the magazine should have printed the letter. It exonerated the Star.

The 11-member Alberta council also was formed in 1972, with five of Alberta's seven dailies supporting it. The first year of operation saw "no significant complaints," according to a spokesman.

The 18-member Quebec council has by far the most elaborate structure. Its founding members include journalists' organizations and radio groups, including the Quebec region of the CBC (which contributes almost half of the $85,000 running costs for 1973). Its first meeting was held last month.

Wes Gallagher, president and general manager of The Associated Press of America — a hard-bitten wire service man who made a name for himself as a front-line correspondent in the Second World War — volunteered this observation during the great American debate on press councils:

"The number of organizations challenging various aspects of the news has grown sharply in recent years. Many of their criticisms are of a partisan nature, put forward by individuals or organizations who view the news from a special point of view.

"A public body overseeing the news, however well-intentioned, is itself subject to dangers of partisanship. At the least, it is likely to introduce extraneous values and individual biases into the process of professional news judgment.

"Such public bodies bear no legal responsibility for published news nor public responsibility such as exists between editor and reader. This responsibility must be vested solely in the news organizations, and only they can have authority for what is published.

"We do not believe that collective judgment by a committee, regardless of motivation, can be a substitute for this responsibility."

In other words, the public can expect a better deal from the rough justice of a professional news room than from a press monitored by non-professionals, each with his fixed ideas.

Quick Decisions

News room people of any quality are positive people. They make quick decisions on what is news for their community, on what news should be headlined and what should be jettisoned, and they make them as the clock ticks remorselessly toward the moment that the presses roll. Though disciplined in detachment, their personalities, their personal judgments, season the newspaper like pepper and salt. It would be a tame and tepid press if their professional vigor were in any way diluted.

The quality of individual newspapers varies considerably. Size (which can regulate resources), competition, calibre of editorial direction, even location, are all factors.

In this age of consumerism and competition, readers understandably question the quality of the product they buy. If the newspapers themselves cannot produce the quality required by the consumers, no non-professional council will succeed in a similar attempt. Press councils which can chide but not coerce have achieved insignificant results. Press councils dominated by government have proved to be vicious propaganda weapons for officialdom.

If quality is the answer to mutual respect between the newspaper and its readers, what is the press of Canada doing to achieve it? More than one might think.

Training — in effect a sharpening of skills — is a recurring topic in negotiations between the publishers and the Newspaper Guild, certified representative of journalists on 11 of Canada's English-speaking papers. So far they have been unable to establish an atmosphere of confidence in which mutual concessions might lead to worthwhile training programs.

More immediately promising is the liaison on journalistic matters which is developing between the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association (CDNPA) and the Canadian Managing Editors Conference (CMEC).

The CDNPA — one of Canada's most exclusive clubs; you have to be a publisher to belong — has been regarded as a preserve of dinosaurs, unyielding ironclads who climbed to eminence by way of the counting-house, with no concern but the advertising revenue.

This caricature is being redrawn. In recent months the CDNPA has been talking seriously with the CMEC, another group whose hardened arteries show signs of rejuvenation. They are precariously pledged to study ways that will improve the journalistic quality of Canada's newspapers.

At its annual meeting in Vancouver last month the CMEC heard Ivor Williams, newly-appointed editor of the Regina Leader Post, report on a series of seminars which had been held across the country in the previous year for newspaper men and women.

"The almost unanimous support from those who participated, and the discussion leaders, indicate that we have filled the gap in Canadian journalism training," he said.

He envisaged a program of "two or three-day seminars, portable across the country, on a variety of responsibilities, including city editors, copy editors, editorial writers, photographers, labor or science reporters, general reporters, municipal reporters, news editors and in other, newer areas."

There will be further discussions between the CMEC and the CDNPA at the latter's fall meeting in Banff in September, to determine how the program can be furthered. Between them, they can find the answer.

Meanwhile, here is one publisher who thinks that press councils are for the birds — the mechanical kind that have to be wound up.

NDP: Just Another Party

By DOUGLAS FISHER

LEWIS . . . contradictions.

OTTAWA — There's so much to admire in the skills and stamina of two old warhorses of politics, David Lewis and John Diefenbaker. Such appreciation is easy and most vivid on Parliament Hill. Their rhetoric and absolute, self-confidence overshadow younger and lesser-talented men. But each of these veterans can become insufferable in argument and bulldozing, particularly when they leave the parliamentary frame for the hustings or the party gathering.

Lewis demonstrated the static nature and the shibboleths of his political essence of the NDP national convention last week in Vancouver. On the one hand he made fulsome assertions of great gains made for the people of Canada through the exercise of the parliamentary balance of power upon the Liberal government. On the other hand he suggested the government would not be tolerated much longer.

This contradiction filled practical needs. Justification for keeping Trudeau in and Stanfield out. A sop to those of his partisans who are restive at the increasing identification of their parliamentary wing with a government which has largely failed to do anything about inflation or to undertake radical reforms in any field. So Lewis characterizes the Liberals as "cunning" in their eclecticism and "cynical" in their surface posture of action.

More characteristic of the Lewis penchant for domination and the snuffing out of party dissidence and criticism was his putdown of the minority which questioned NDP parliamentary stances.

He declaimed: "This kind of irresponsible and intemperate condemnation not only of myself but of Stanley Knowles and Tommy Douglas and people who have worked for this party and who have fought against the war in Vietnam before this young man knew Vietnam existed — I believe that this party is not served by that kind of irresponsibility."

Probably one should be thankful that Lewis left out J. S. Woodsworth and M. J. Coldwell from this listing of party saints. The counterattack overkilled as it was.

What seems clear about Lewis — as became clear about John Diefenbaker before he lost power — is that behind the exceptional skills and enormous willpower there is little that is fresh and coherent on the economy and its management.

Once Lewis made the decision to softpedal the "corporate bums" issue for the obvious reason that its logic led inexorably to a parliamentary rejection of the political friends of the corporations — i.e., the Liberals — he's had neither an attacking nor an idealistic economic line to proclaim.

The scorn of the New Democrats and the Liberals for the "simple Simon" prescriptions of Stanfield and the Conservatives — the freeze and wage and price controls — comes from their apprehension that these have the likelihood of a popular electoral response.

Keynesian economics, with its manipulating of monetary and fiscal policy or talk about supply-demand curves and world-wide economic phenomena, are too complex for the run of voters. The people, as the politicians of all parties sense it, want action and results — some stability in prices.

Is it honesty, a refusal to be hypocritical on fundamentals, that has frozen the New Democrats into immobility and left them without any panaceas to flog? Is it a caution born from a determination for parliamentary survival? Is the economy at heart a situation so complex that an understandable package of policy proposals cannot be put together by a socialist party which has forsaken nationalization as a prime means to achieve Utopian economic ends?

What seems apparent when you mull over these questions and the NDP's present state and its leader is that the "movement" is no longer a movement. It's just a political party. The imperatives of continuity and survival pervade over policy and message even though the habitual righteousness and moral superiority (over other parties) masks this.

A practical politician of consummate abilities almost single-handedly kept the movement from splintering and in this hard enterprise he has created a moderately effective, almost-national party and a moderate parliamentary presence. In either image or substance that's not bad.

It's not a failure. It's also not very exciting or imaginative. Contemplating such a Moses, one wonders when or if Joshua will ever come.

Minor repairs or major fabrication - we weld them all

Finning makes welding repairs to Caterpillar and other types of heavy equipment; designs and fabricates special attachments for any type of job.

Experienced welders, spacious facilities and modern, automatic welding equipment give you quick, expert, economical repairs. Special attachments or equipment modifications are designed to your specifications by our engineering department and then fabricated in our welding shops.

Finning rebuilds undercarriage components for most makes of machine; rebuilds and reinforces buckets, blades, guards, shields, mounts; designs and fabricates special buckets, blades, boom extensions, sidebooms — you name it. There are dozens of examples of Finning's welding capability around the province; such as the rebuilt undercarriages of the giant coal reclaimers at Roberts Bank.

Prices are competitive and they are guaranteed. The price quoted before the job is started is the price you pay when the job is finished. And performance is guaranteed too. So see your Finning Service Department for welding repairs or fabrication. You'll get a good job — it's guaranteed.

CARS BANNED IN ROME CORE

ROME (UPI) — Drivers were angry, policemen went through a slow burn, but the pedestrians were highly pleased.

These were some of the reactions today when the first phase of a seven-stage plan to shut off most of ancient downtown Rome to traffic went into effect.

Roadblocks were erected at some of the city's most travelled streets by midday, causing bedlam and confusion among motorists.

The square in front of the Trevi Fountain and both adjacent streets were among those closed in an area running from Via Del Tritone to Via Quattro Novembre and from Via Del Corso to the Quirinale Palace.

Some streets in the blocked area are reserved for residents but police said only 210 requests for access to the closed area have been filed from the estimated 2,000 residents.

Some shopkeepers protested against the move, fearing the absence of cars would keep patrons away. One parking garage was in the blocked area but on a street reserved for access for residents.

Tour buses, which normally create havoc on the Trevi Plaza bringing tourists to see the famed fountain, had to park in a zone two blocks away and tourists had to walk the distance to throw in their coins.

Police manned roadblocks at entrances to the zone turning back anyone without a special permit to enter the area. A great deal of shouting and gesticulating went on but police kept the area sealed.

Dozens of drivers who found themselves at dead end streets which until today had been main arteries through the area caused big jams as they had to turn around or back out.

Dr. Maxwell Maltz, internationally acclaimed Lecturer, Plastic Surgeon, Author of Psycho-Cybernetics, together with 2 internationally known authorities on self fulfillment, is coming to Victoria for a two-day seminar.

Some Use Lures To Catch Fishermen

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Catching fishermen is a thriving industry for a group of Greater Victoria entrepreneurs.

These men make fishing lures in their basements to sell to the hordes of sportsmen and commercial fishermen who go after west coast salmon each year.

The biggest of them is Rhys Davis of 2070 Swartz Bay, who began selling lures 20 years ago and is now the largest Canadian tackle manufacturer in British Columbia. He is topped by the Vancouver plant of a U.S. firm.

Most of the others operate on a much smaller scale than Davis. They are ardent fishermen who like making their own lures and who have turned the hobby into a part-time commercial venture.

Typical are the three men who make up Radiant Lures Ltd. — Jack James, Fred Packford and Bruce Colgrave.

"It started out as a hobby and later expanded into a manufacturing company," said James, a fireman at the Pat Bay airport whose basement is the company's headquarters.

They formed their company about five years ago, specializing in a coho fly made of deer tail hair, for which they have a patent.

The 20,000 flies they now sell each year are hand-tied by hired workers, leaving the three partners free to handle sales and finances. Their sons earn spending money by packaging the flies and Radiant's other lures.

James estimates he spends three hours a day working on the lure business, yet none of the partners has taken $500 out of the business yet.

Several local lure makers are talking of combining to set up a proper lure factory, said Packford, a teacher at Victoria Senior Secondary School.

All local lure makers, large and small, have one giant competitor — Luhr Jensen and Sons Ltd. of Hood River, Ore., largest fishing tackle manufacturer of lures in the world.

Jensen has bought out seven smaller tackle companies in the last five years, including Barry's Lures Ltd. of Victoria.

His Hood River plant has a staff of 230, and he has an assembly plant in Vancouver with 20 workers who make lures for the B.C. market.

Some local manufacturers, such as Tom Moss of 7079 Richview, want the government to help protect small B.C. lure makers from the big American competitors, possibly with higher import duties.

A small lure maker also runs the risk of having his newly-invented lure copied by a big company, patent or no patent, said Moss.

The copier need only change the lure a bit, "put a different dint in it," he said.

Other small manufacturers forget to patent their lure within the first two years after they start selling it, and suddenly discover they're no longer eligible for a patent.

Patents last only 17 years, and Rhys Davis faces the prospect of the patent running out in a few years on his big seller — the strip teaser bait-retaining device.

The strip teaser came out in 1953 (it was patented some time later) and was the first bait-retaining device invented that rolled or spiralled in the water instead of wiggling. It's been catching fish ever since.

Davis plans to make an improvement on the lure and apply for a patent extension.

Today he sells five other lures besides the strip teaser, as well as frozen bait such as minnows and herring. His 14 full and part-time workers assemble and package 300,000 items a year.

Jim Gilbert of 570 Seacliffe also makes bait-retaining devices, although on a smaller scale than Davis. He started off about 10 years ago having the lures made in the Far East, but found the quality wasn't good enough.

Now the plastic heads of the lures are made by Scott Plastics of Victoria and the lures are rigged by a little old lady in Brentwood Bay, said Gilbert.

PEACE MEN BACK TUESDAY

A Canadian forces aircraft with 12 members of Canada's observer force in Vietnam will arrive at Patricia Bay airport at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Among the group are five Victorians—Maj. Derek Banford, Capt. C. P. Dillon, Capt. Duncan Wain, Capt. T. W. Burt and Capt. J. L. McNeil.

Other members will likely remain aboard the aircraft and disembark at Comox airbase, a forces' spokesman at Esquimalt said.

TWO DAYS TO TRAVEL 8 MILES

ALERT BAY — After a switch in mail carrier service from water taxi to plane, a letter can now take two days to travel the eight miles of water between Alert Bay and Sointula.

A letter mailed in Alert Bay after the morning pickup sits in the post office until the next day, is taken to Port Hardy for sorting and then delivered to Sointula, a fishing community on Malcolm Island.

The situation is expected to improve after a trucking service is established to carry the mail on the new inter-island ferry MV Nimpkish.

Ferry authorities had refused to carry loose mail.

'Us First' Plea By Contractors

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia construction industry has asked the provincial government to ensure that B.C. contractors' building materials requirements are met before those of export customers.

Wayne Farmer, president of the B.C. Construction Association, said a delegation from the association met deputy ministers in Victoria to explain the problems and seek solutions.

"We suggested protection of local markets," Farmer said. "We are not too optimistic. But we thought it our duty to present the industry point of view."

"Probably a study should be set up by government to see how much these shortages are driving prices up," he said. "We are not after restricted trade. But, instead of looking after the export market first, look after our own people first."

He said he did not blame the producers for seeking world markets.

"If we were in their shoes we would be looking for markets anywhere," he said.

Pensions Key Issue

KELOWNA (CP) — Conflict over pensions could lead to a strike vote among Okanagan Telephone Company's 630 unionized workers within a week.

Gordon Stoutenburg, plant counsellor for Local 6 of the Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. said Friday contract negotiations with the company have broken off.

Bees Threatened

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aerial spraying of pesticides to control mosquitoes can have a devastating effect on bees, said members of the British Columbia Honey Producers Association during the third day Friday of a public inquiry here into the use of pesticides.

James Medill of the association's Fraser Valley division said honey bees have an importance beyond the production of honey. He said they are the chief pollinators for most plants and especially for fruit trees.

20% Wage Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 20-per-cent wage increase has been negotiated for 21 members of the Office and Technical Employees Union employed at Pacific Terex Ltd. of Vancouver in a two-year contract effective May 1, 1973.

Local 15 of the union said Friday that salaries under the new pact for a mail and file clerk are to range from a starting wage of $450 a month to $540 in the second year of the contract for a clerk with one year of service.

Stenographers are to start at $620 and go to $770 monthly in the second year of the contract with one year's service.

Man Charged After Killing

A Courtenay man has been charged with manslaughter after the death Thursday of Lawrence Peterson, 49, also of Courtenay.

Morris Shulman, 20, will appear in court Aug. 3 on the charge.

RCMP said Peterson died of injuries received after he was beaten with a bottle in the Shulman home.

FISHERMEN PAY FINES

Two American commercial fishermen were fined $500 each in Victoria provincial court Friday for illegal fishing in Canadian waters.

Edward Godfred Berg of Bainbridge Island, Wash., and Michael Paul King of Friday Harbor, Wash., were charged after their boats were found by the Canadian fisheries patrol boat, Atlin Post, early Thursday in the Strait of Juan de Fuca off Sooke.

Fisheries officer Hugh McNairnay testified in court the two boats skippered by Berg and King were found two miles inside the international boundary line that runs down the middle of the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The men, both gillnetters, pleaded guilty to the illegal fishing charge, but told Judge Edmond St. Jorre they had not meant to be there.

"I've gillnetted for 25 years and I've managed to stay away from you — I'm sorry," Berg said.

"I can't see as well as I used to and I should have radar on my boat. It was carelessness on my part."

King, who originally pleaded not guilty to the charge but later changed his plea, told St. Jorre his boat was not fishing at the time it was picked up by the patrol boat.

"The boat was inoperable. We had the net wound around the wheel and we'd been drifting since about 3 a.m. Thursday and were trying to get the net out of the wheel."

FISHERMEN — Pg. 7—2-42-2

Before changing his plea, King asked St. —orre what the procedure would be following the not-guilty plea. King was told he would have to return in about a week for the trial and in the meantime he would have to post a bond of $1,000 with two sureties before his boat could be returned.

Berg forfeited the $300 catch of sockeye and coho salmon found on his boat. King also forfeited his catch, valued at about $60.

A third man charged with illegal fishing, William Bernard Roush of Seattle, pleaded not guilty to the charge and will stand trial in Victoria Oct. 25.

Roush complained he would have to pay about $150 in lawyer's fees and would miss another day of fishing "when one day can cost a man his complete season," but did not change his plea.

Roush was picked up at the same time and place as the other two.

Korean War Shipmates Gather in City

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Twenty years ago Thursday a long-awaited ceasefire ended the war in Korea.

This weekend some of the Canadians who helped win that war are gathering in Victoria.

These are the officers and men of HMCS Athabaskan when she did her third tour of the war—14 months—returning to her Esquimalt port in December, 1953.

The men attending the first get-together of the weekend Friday night had changed over the years.

Some had grown fat, others thin, some were now bald. They came from all walks of life. There were professors, RCMP officers, farmers and businessmen.

They all had one thing in common—an inherent pride in the ship which had notched up so many credits for Canada.

George Vander Haegen, one of those who helped get plans under way last September, spoke for all his shipmates when he said:

"She was a happy ship—the best one I served in during my 25 years. I know you get caught up with sentiment at a time like this, but we said it then, and meant it. The skipper was a darned good ship's handler, too."

There was no mention of the nights when the men sweated under closed scuttles and screen doors, battened down for security reasons in the hot humid air.

There was no talk of the incessant shifting of stations while on patrol in the Cho-To area in order to prevent the ship being jammed in ice floes from the Chinnampo River.

Instead, the good times were remembered, along with the joshing of other days.

Even the shipmates who couldn't make the reunion went on record with letters, laced with special jokes to their buddies.

Much of the credit for the reunion goes to Sam McCleave and Bob Orrick, who were both serving in HMCS Gatineau last September.

"We had lots of time on the cruise to Australia so we just got going," said McCleave. "It was quite a job but well worth it."

They and their buddies did it the hard way.

"The coxswain (Vander Haegen) had the complete nominal list right up to two weeks before we started to plan," McCleave explained. "He was changing houses and destroyed it. We had to start from scratch.

"Fifteen or so of us would sit down and remember all the guys we could. Then we went through city directories and phone books for across Canada looking them all up."

The hunt was successful.

The Athabaskan had close to 300 men aboard when she steamed out to sea on that last tour. A total of 268 of them were contacted before the search ended.

Even when the Korean war ended, the Athabaskan crew knew frustration, being assigned to a goodwill tour before being allowed to return home.

There was fun to cool down the frustration.

McCleave and Vander Haegen reminisced about an enterprising shipmate who had bought a watch for $20 in Hong Kong:

"When we landed in Manila he thought he was pretty smart when he sold it to a native for $60 in their money.

"The laugh was on him. He didn't know that the money was useless, circulated when the Japanese were there. It had a cancellation stamp on it that we didn't recognize!"

Tonight, Athabaskan's old skipper, Capt. J. C. (Cocky) Reed will be guest of honor at a gathering in Esquimalt hall of the Royal Canadian Legion.

There'll be silence as they watch the film taken during the days they lived with death at close quarters.

VISITORS POURED into the Provincial Museum Friday when the doors opened at 10 a.m., and kept coming all day. The museum has been getting record crowds — more than 16,000 on Thursday alone.

Canada Blamed For Idle ICCS

BUDAPEST (AP) — The Hungarian government newspaper blames Canada for the "inaction" of the International Commission of Control and Supervision in South Vietnam, saying the Canadian contingent seconded United States condoned territory-snatching operations by Saigon government troops.

Magyar Hirlap, in an unsigned editorial, also says it remains for the U.S. government to find a new fourth members for the ICCS, thereby removing the present impasse, as the body cannot function with only three members. The remaining members are Indonesia, Poland and Hungary.

The article, published in connection with Canada's withdrawal from the ICCS next Tuesday, says:

"When the ICCS began to function, the U.S. government — in contravention of the Paris agreements on Vietnam —had endeavored to make the ICCS operate as a body for arbitration (as against the original terms of reference: observation, investigation, prevention).

"For this purpose, the U.S. government in April officially tried to bring crude pressure to bear on Poland and Hungary (nature of pressure unspecified).

"After the failure of this bid, the Canadian contingent was marshalled (by the United States). Trying to please Washington and Saigon, the (Canadian) contingent put on a variety of manoeuvres to get the South Vietnamese provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam) condemned."

The paper adds that these alleged Canadian attempts were "foiled as a result of the firm stance of the ICCS's Polish and Hungarian contingents.

"The Canadians' stance is all the more blameworthy because the inaction of the ICCS —to which it has been reduced as a result of the Canadian attitude—has encouraged the Saigon government to get on with its territory-snatching military action.

"In this way, the Canadian contingent—willy-nilly—covered up the Thieu regime's operations carried out in violation of the provisions of the Paris agreements.

"The Saigon government has made the deployment of the regional groups of the Provisional Revolutionary Government impossible, so as to be able to carry on snatching territory and posing in the guise of the victim at the same time— through complaints lodged with the ICCS.

"Hungarian Ambassador Dr. Ferenc Esztergalyos, head of the Hungarian contingent, was justified in surmising that 'the Canadian contingent might be engaged in a bid to run the whole activity of the ICCS on the rocks prior to its own withdrawal'."

CANADA LEADS WORLD IN EDUCATION SPENDING

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1970-71, Canada spent almost nine per cent of its Gross National Product for education—"a percentage not equalled by any developed country for which comparable statistics are available," Statistics Canada revealed Friday.

"In absolute terms, Canada's total education expenditure per year rose from $1.7 billion (1960-71) to $7.4 billion, (1970-71)" the department said in a new report called Education in Canada.

The 613-page report, the first national comprehensive suvey of education, showed student enrolment reached a peak in 1970-71 when nearly 6.4 million were attending classes full time. Since that time the level has decreased slightly but costs have shown a steady increase.

The 1960s were years of "unprecedented growth," Dr. Miles Wisenthal, director-general of the institutional and finance branch, said in the forward.

He attributed the growth to the post-war baby boom coupled with an increasing demand for more education.

The decrease in enrolment after the baby boom, now mainly showing at the Grade 1 to 8 levels, was almost balanced by increasing participation in higher grades, he said.

Students are staying in schools longer and they are going to post-secondary vocational training or boing back later to universities or to graduate programs.

There appears to be a trend, he said in an interview, toward nearly 25 per cent of the population completing some sort of post-secondary program. The rising number of students attending community colleges is one example.

The report showed Canadians spent more on education in 1969 than for other major government-financed functions. Education got 21.8 per cent of total expenditures from the three levels of government compared with 14.3 per cent for social welfare, 12.2 per cent for health, 8.8 for transportation and eight per cent for defence.

Boom Plan for Peace River

The British Columbia government announced Friday it is embarking on an all-out effort to brighten the economic climate of the Peace River area of the province.

In a position paper released by Industrial Development Minister Gary Lauk, the government states that as part of its policy of developing the northern part of B.C. it will work to expand the agricultural, resource development and tourism activities in the Peace River district.

"It will also seek new economic activity which can provide greater personal development for the residents," the paper states.

Lauk said the paper was based on a detailed report on the region prepared by Jack McKeown, director of industry and community services for the industrial development department.

"Every major area of economic development will be looked at with a view to developing specific programs that will attack new industry or assist in the expansion of industry that already exists," Lauk said in a prepared statement.

The government also announced that Resources Minister Bob Williams now will have his department focus on expansion and development of the forest industry in the northeastern section of the province.

Such a study will pay special attention to the potential emerging in the sawmilling and further processing of hardwoods. A complete study will be undertaken into forestry potential in the Peace River region.

Lauk said Highways Minister Graham Lea would be making an announcement with respect to the Fort Simpson and Fort Nelson highway. Discussions are also being held, he said, with Peace River officials to determine the "most viable solution" to the Monkman Pass highway.

Also, Phyllis Young, minister without portfolio responsible for consumer affairs, has been asked to do a study on the special costs faced by people living in the northern part of the province.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH

Invites members of the public to participate in a program to identify and protect historic buildings and structures within the Municipality.

Buildings which have outstanding historical value may be designated, by Bylaw, as heritage buildings for the purpose of preserving evidences of the Municipality's history, culture and heritage for the education and enjoyment of present and future generations.

Local buildings may have historic value for the following reasons:

1. They were amongst the earliest buildings constructed in Saanich.
2. They represent a vanishing architectural style.
3. They were associated with a person who figured prominently in local, Provincial or National history.

In order to prepare an inventory of historic buildings, any information connected with possibly "significant" buildings in the District of Saanich will be gratefully received by the Municipal Planning Department.

The following information would be particularly helpful:

1. Name of building.
2. Address of building.
3. Name of architect and builder.
4. Year of construction.
5. Name of original owner.
6. Details of any prominent person or historic event associated with the building.
7. Name and address of current owner.

Full-Time Emergency Doctors at Jubilee

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Royal Jubilee Hospital has launched a new program to improve emergency medical care — doctors who work exclusively and full-time in the hospital's emergency department.

The concept of emergency room physicians also is being considered at Victoria General Hospital.

Since the beginning of the month, Jubilee has had two doctors under contract to staff the emergency department. Two more doctors will be added by early September.

The service is headed by Dr. John Maccagno, 34, who directed the emergency room physician service at an Edmonton hospital for three years. He has had additional training in cardiology and intensive care.

In the past, patients coming to a hospital's emergency department would be seen by the interne on duty if the case warranted it while the patient's own doctor was being called.

Other doctors in the hospital at the time — including specialists such as surgeons — would pitch in if they were needed, if the patient had no doctor or if his doctor was not available.

But this system has been increasingly criticised as haphazard and not matching improvements made in other areas of medical care.

There were 40,000 cases handled at Jubilee's emergency department last year, Dr. Ray LeHuquet, the hospital's medical director, said Friday.

Studies show only about 5 per cent of them were true emergencies. Another 50 to 60 per cent were urgent cases and the rest were neither emergencies nor urgent.

When real emergencies do arrive, prompt treatment by an experienced doctor is essential, he said, and providing it is the aim of the new program. Similar programs are now in use at Vancouver General Hospital, Royal Columbian and at Burnaby on the lower mainland.

Quality of care has been the hospital's prime consideration.

"There is no question," says LeHuquet, "that the use of full-time (doctors) who are well-motivated, who are constantly exposed to emergency room situations and whose sole interest is in this area, will greatly improve quality of care."

He quotes the New England Journal of Medicine to summarize the trend:

"The full-time practice of emergency medicine is becoming a new medical specialty," the magazine says. "More and more community hospitals are initiating efforts to establish this type of coverage, and there will be a great need for emergency physician specialists for years to come."

The emergency room physician does not replace the patient's own doctor but will work at his request and on his behalf, except where a true emergency leaves no time for consultation, said LeHuquet.

He gave this example of how the new program recently paid off: A young man seriously injured in a motorcycle accident arrived at Jubilee's emergency department and his doctor was not immediately available.

The emergency room physician on duty had blood samples taken for cross-matching, a surgeon alerted, an operating room booked and an intravenous started, all within 20 minutes.

"They are specialists within their own right," said LeHuquet, adding that medical practice dealing solely with emergency situations can be immensely satisfying.

Jubilee's emergency physicians are not employees of the hospital but are paid on a fee-for-service basis, the same as other doctors. That means their services are covered by medicare.

The emergency room doctors do not have any other practice and do not continue to treat patients after they have been admitted to hospital.

A major duty they will undertake is teaching. LeHuquet notes that the emergency department must evolve into an area where teaching is one of the top priorities.

Centre Grant Sought

The Community Council of Greater Victoria will ask the federal government for $300,000 to help build an activity centre for the handicapped in Saanich.

The council is asking for the grant to match the $300,000 given early in July by the provincial government.

The centre would be a part of the Battin-Fielding complex for the handicapped on Vernon Ave. and would provide therapy, work and recreation for about 200 people.

The council has so far gathered $550,000 toward the building, estimated at a cost of $950,000.

The activity centre will give victims of disability "good fellowship and camaraderie as well as therapy and contractual work," activity centre committee chairman Ron Jeffels said.

The centre will be operated with a core of volunteer workers and a minimal number of professional people including administrative staff and craft supervisors.

Pottery, cane work, ceramics, carpentry and other crafts will be offered, Jeffels said.

The centre will be located beside the 19 townhouses and 60-unit apartment complex which are to provide housing for the handicapped, their families and senior citizens.

The housing sections of the complex are expected to be finished by early October.

A temporary hostel for handicapped people who are using the activity centre and another apartment block for armed forces veterans are planned for the complex.

Jeffels said he is now drafting a letter to federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde, asking for the $300,000 to complete the centre.

The idea of the complex first started with a $100,000 gift from the estate of Mrs. Elsie Fielding of Oak Bay and has been continued with financing from a variety of community and government services including the Victoria Multiple Sclerosis and Cosmopolitan Aid Societies.

Ask The Times

Q. I read in the paper the other day that the Canadian armed forces detonated 64 high explosives during the electronic sweep of the Vernon range which they've just completed. Is this some sort of record? — A.M.P.

A. No. The highest reported number of unexploded bombs defused by a single individual is 8,000. This feat was carried out by Werner Stephan in West Berlin in the 12 years from 1945 to 1957. He was killed by a small grenade on the Gruenwald blasting site Aug. 17, 1957.

BACON AND EGGS A MONEY LOSER

A $2 bacon-and-egg breakfast is a money-loser, Eric Lewis, vice-president of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said today.

He said restaurant owners are losing out on bacon and eggs because of price increases in bacon.

As an example, Lewis said last week restaurants bought bacon wholesale at an average of 89 cents a pound. This week the price jumped to $1.17.

He noted the increase cannot be passed onto the consumer because it takes 30 days to reprint the menus with the revised prices. He advises restaurants to print menus without tariffs and pen them in daily.

Price increases of pork products in Canada and the United States also affected Victoria consumers this week. Side bacon retailed as high as $1.43 a pound.

Courses Help Motorcyclists Survive

By JONATHAN FRANKLIN
Times Staff

This was the week in Victoria when 17 invisible people learned to play chess with death.

How well they learned the game will be seen on the streets and trails of B.C. One of them has already become a minor statistic.

The 17 invisibles are among the growing hundreds and thousands of people of all ages who are taking to motorcycles.

They are invisible because fellow road users, encased in the steel of their cars and trucks, just don't see them. They turn in front of the vulnerable motorcyclist, collide with him, sideswipe him and force him off the road, simply because they don't register his existence.

The giant chess game is played on the roads of Canada and, to quote Darwinist Thomas Huxley, "The rules of the game are what we call the laws of nature. The player on the other side is hidden from us. We know that his play is always fair, just and patient. But we also know, to our cost, that he never overlooks a mistake, or makes the slightest allowance for ignorance."

If a motorcyclist doesn't learn the 'rules of the game, he is likely to find out quickly that his hidden opponent is injury and death.

The Capital Region Safety Council, a non-profit group which offers courses from the Tom Thumb tot village to adult driver education, this week taught 17 Victorians, age 15 to 36, how to ride motorcycles and survive.

Says Safety Council manager John Reeves: "Ten questions and an eye test are all it takes to get a licence to ride a motorbike for 90 days.

"If a kid doesn't want to take the driver's test or fails after that period, he can just walk into the Motor Vehicle Branch, again pay his $1, answer the questions, and he's away for another 90 days.

"I know kids who have done this three or four times. It's a crazy system."

Reeves is pushing for compulsory driver education. He says most people learn to ride motorcycles by trial and error, which is all very well except their classroom is the public road. Some of the machines they ride weigh nearly 500 pounds and are capable of over 100 m.p.h.

The 14-hour motorcycle course consists of two hours of classroom work in which the physics of motorcycling are taught. Films are shown to point out situations a motorcyclist must watch for.

Next comes two hours in the workshop. Motorcyclists like to think of themselves as the airplane pilots of the streets and so standards of mechanical maintenance must be just as exacting.

"It's no joke to be sitting on a machine capable of over 100 m.p.h. and have your throttle stick open," says Tom McKenzie, chief instructor on the course. "A broken brake cable or snapped and tangled chain can have just as unfortunate effect even at low speeds."

The answer is to do what the pilots do — see that the maintenance standards are high and inspect your machine before each take-off.

The Safety Council provides bikes and helmets for those who need them. Because all riding takes place on private property, no licences are needed.

In the eight hours of practical training, the students learn how to ride (if they are novices) and then join the more experienced riders zigzagging around pylons, emergency braking, going over ramps and teeter-totters, and doing acrobatics like standing on the saddle, riding side-saddle, or hanging down on each side of the bike. This is all to hone the balance and control.

The course costs $10 (helmet rental is $2 but bikes are provided free for those needing them). Next course is in September but is already booked up. Applications for the last course of the year in October can be made to the Capital Region Safety Council, 6-671 Fort Street, phone 385-7241.

And the student who became a statistic? Well, he couldn't complete the course because he smashed up his bike on the trail and was injured.

Parkland Addition Favored by Pollen

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said today he is in favor of accepting a government offer of 400 acres of timbered property for inclusion in East Sooke Park.

"I will vote for its inclusion if the matter comes up before the regional board," Pollen, a member of the Capital Regional District, said. "There are not too many green timbered areas around Victoria."

Pollen's statement follows a regional park committee decision Wednesday not to acquire the land which Recreational Minister Jack Radford offered for inclusion in the park.

The committee also said it would not oppose logging on the Crown property. A section of the land fronts East Sooke Road and adjoins regional parkland.

The committee's decision has touched off a furore among park-conscious Victorians.

Earlier this week, John Priestman, chairman of the Open Space Advisory Committee (OSAC), said the parks committee never asked OSAC for an opinion on the matter.

OSAC is an advisory committee to the Capital Regional District.

Mac Page, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, said today Victorians are in favor of acquiring the land.

"If the government has offered the property, I see no reason for turning it down," he said. "I'm also certain that Resource Minister Bob Williams would oppose logging this area."

Bob Spearing, a well-known outdoorsman who has taken an interest in the park since it was started, said East Sooke Park should be expanded as much as possible.

Residents of south Vancouver Island have no large natural parks like other island communities.

"Residents have to travel more than 100 miles to reach a large provincial park," he pointed out. "We need a large park because not everyone can afford or has the time to travel up-island to these large natural public areas.

"The way the population is building up in this area, we need all the parkland we can get," he added.

He said the additional Crown land would also protect the more valuable parkland already acquired by the capital region, serving as a buffer zone.

SIX-BLOCK WALK INTO TROUBLE

A Victoria man who walked six blocks to the police station to report an accident was fined $400 for impaired driving.

Glenn Randolph Armstrong, of 1131 Oscar, was involved in an accident near the intersection of Government and View Streets early today, prosecutor Gordon Macdonald told Judge Edmond St. Jorre in Victoria provincial court today.

After the accident, Armstrong went to the Churchill Hotel to phone police but was told he couldn't go into the hotel.

He started walking, looking for a phone, and ended up at the Fisgard Street police station where he reported the accident. He was given a breathalyser test and charged with impaired driving.

Expanded Study Of Sex Urged

Sex education should be a part of regular high school subjects, not taught as a special course, Dr. George Szasz told a seminar at the University of Victoria Thursday.

A special sex education course would probably exclude some important aspects of sexuality, said Szasz, a member of the medical faculty at the University of British Columbia.

Topics like euthanasia, abortion and different life styles would probably be excluded, as they are from general education, he said.

A course that includes only certain aspects of sexuality would hurt a school's reputation as a purveyor of information, said Szasz.

He said the existing educational system should be expanded so that biology teachers can talk about "what goes on below the belly button", social science teachers can talk about male-female relationships and English teachers can talk about the theme of love in literature.

Up From the South, the Summer Guest

IN WINTER, SPRING AND fall, our far-flung community of neighbors is left largely to its own devices. We work at our jobs. We get on with our home projects. The drop-in visit and the handy coffee pot are symbols of our way of life. If we don't quite succeed in forgetting the outside world, we are by that world forgot until three seasons have run their course.

Then comes July, and with it the summer guest.

Reactions to this annual phenomenon vary. Some of us, like the friend I met while combing the beach for a length of two-by-four, take it hard. He was expecting a two-week visitation by in-laws, and was less than happy at the prospect.

"It isn't that I don't like them," he said. "You wouldn't find a nicer couple in a month of Sundays. But right away my brother-in-law is going to tell me how I should have built our fence, and while he's getting in his licks, his wife will be asking my wife the little questions she specializes in. Like when are we going to get a new car, and shouldn't we be thinking about new living room curtains . . ."

He kicked a plastic bleach jug from its nest in the driftline with unnecessary violence. "I'd better get on home," he said, "and paint that damn fence."

In spite of such pinpricks, the chances are that he will enjoy an invasion that can be counted on with at least as much certainty as the salmon runs and the arrival of the little Bonaparte gulls. Like the olive in the martini, the summer guest adds piquancy to life's mix, and we set our workaday routine aside when a car with familiar faces behind its glass turns in off the tourist-burdened highway.

Win's sister Gladys, the season's first pilgrim and none more welcome, blew in from California a couple of weeks ago. She was invited and expected. We looked forward to her coming, and went into a flurry of preparations.

"Gladys will have slack suits and dresses to hang up," my wife said. "We'd better make all the space we can in the spare room closet."

We spent a busy hour making space. It was no easy task, but between us we achieved a gap that should be sufficient for our visitor's needs. Gladys turned up on schedule, carrying a rather small tote bag.

"Why don't you two go on out to the car?" I suggested. "I'll get your luggage."

"This is it," said our guest, swinging the undersized bag. "I started out with a suitcase but I haven't the vaguest idea where it is now, and am I ever mad!"

The missing suitcase had entrained with her at San Jose. It was plain in sight when she went to the diner. This woman who loves train travel enjoyed a leisurely meal while the brown California countryside slipped past. Then she returned to her car. No suitcase.

We've had visitors who forgot items they intended to bring. Fishing gear, for instance, and I will not soon forget the lamentations of the angler who discovered that his three-decker tackle box stuffed with lures and notions was sitting on a shelf five provinces away.

But we've never been called on to supply a wardrobe, and pondered ways and means while Gladys continued her account.

"The conductor wakened me about two in the morning. He said very formally, 'This 16-unit train was flagged down at Red Bluff so we could let you know that your luggage is safe.' I was impressed, but I still didn't have my suitcase. It had been unloaded by mistake at Oakland."

Gladys concluded cheerfully, "It may be a while before I see it again."

Win, the small one of a tall family, could provide only limited help to the shorn traveller. A friend down the line interrupted her pea-shelling to hunt out a sweater and blouse. I volunteered a shirt, cap and oversize rubber boots that would do for fishing and beachcombing. Gladys bought slacks and shoes.

She has gone now, still minus suitcase, and life in our corner of the Up-Island vacationland is less hectic. But that won't last: other guests are coming, with still others to follow in a sequence that will keep us hopping until Labor Day is past.

Then, gratefully but with a season's pleasant memories squirreled away, we'll pick up where we left off when the summer people came.

OIL-SPILL FIGHTERS demonstrate how a plastic-covered nylon boom with two-foot underwater skirt can be used to surround spills. MacMillan Bloedel is training loggers and millworkers on how to use the device, called a Bennett boom, in an emergency. In addition, the boom can be used to surround ship unloading oil for fuel in mills. This training session was held at Port Alberni where 2,000 feet of boom is available. Company also is training crews at Chemainus and Harmac.

Thunder Bay Expansion

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Great Lakes Paper Co. has announced a $13.5 million expansion and diversification program here.

President C. J. Carter said the program includes construction of a particleboard-waferboard plant and proposed enlargement of a stud mill now nearing completion with addition of facilities for constructing railway ties.

He said construction will begin immediately on the board plant which will cost about $10,000,000 and is scheduled for completion by the end of 1974.

Carter said start on the stud mill and railway tie facility is subject to receiving government assistance.

Dome Petroleum

An application by Dome Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary to increase liquid propane exports is to be heard by the national energy board here Aug. 15, it was announced Thursday.

The board, after hearing such applications, usually reserves judgment for several weeks.

Dome plans to use a pipeline, not yet built, to move propane from Elmer, Sask., to Windsor, Ont., through the United States. The export increase would be at "drop-offs" in the U.S.

No details on the size of the proposed increase were available from the board.

Falconbridge

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. reports net earnings for the six months ended June 30 of $22,108,000, or $4.46 a share, compared with a restated $4,071,000, or 82 cents, a year ago.

Earnings for the first half of 1973 include an extraordinary credit of $2,259,000, or 45 cents a share, for federal income taxes arising from the writedown of assets in 1972. In the corresponding period of 1972, the re-stated consolidated earnings include a gain on sale of investments of $2,195,000, or 44 cents a share.

Mosquito Creek

Mosquito Creek Gold Mining Co. Ltd., which has 29 claims in the Wells-Barkerville area of central British Columbia, has announced a million-dollar working agreement with Home Oil Co. Ltd. for a program of exploration and development of the historic gold mining region.

A three-stage program has been drafted during which Home Oil agrees to spend $1.4 million in return for an undivided 50 per cent interest in the mineral claims.

Gunn Mines Tops Short Sell List

Gunn Mines continues to top the list of short sales on the Vancouver stock exchange with 122,800 shares remaining to be covered as of July 15.

The short position of Northair Mines had been reduced from 63,000 to 34,000 during the first two weeks of this month. Seneca Developments Ltd.'s short position was 73,100 at mid-July, down 1,200 in the first two weeks of the month.

Investors sell a stock short when they believe the price will fall in the near future, enabling them to cover their short position at a lower price.

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — By early March of this year, a month before Patrick Gray's nomination as permanent director of the FBI was withdrawn, White House support for Gray had evaporated.

A transcript of a telephone call March 7 or 8 between John Ehrlichman and John Dean President Nixon's former special assistant and former counsel respectively, makes it clear the two aides had decided to let Gray "twist slowly, slowly in the wind" as his nomination bogged down on Capitol Hill.

The conversation was referred to Thursday by Sen. Lowell Weicker (Rep.-Conn.) during Ehrlichman's third day of testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee. A full transcript has been obtained by the Washington Post.

A summary of a conversation Ehrlichman had with Gray earlier the same day has also been obtained. Both conversations were recorded by Ehrlichman, who gave copies of them to the Senate committee.

At Thursday's hearing, Weicker reminded Ehrlichman that he had said of Gray, when his nomination appeared stalled, that "I think we should let him hang there. Let him twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

Was that what was happening to Gray on April 15, when Ehrlichman said he learned that Gray had destroyed sensitive documents from the safe of Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt? Weicker asked.

Ehrilichman smiled. "'He was being investigated, investigated and investigated on April 15," he said.

In the first conversation, Gray told Ehrlichman that "I'm being pushed awfully hard in certain areas" and urged him to tell Dean not to let it be known that he (Gray) had been given the documents from Hunt's safe.

"You have got to tell John Wesley (Dean) to stand very tight in the saddle and be very careful about what he says and to be absolutely certain that he knows in his own mind that he delivered everything he had (all the documents) to the FBI and doesn't make any distinction" between deliveries to the bureau and to Gray.

Shortly afterward, Ehrlichman called Dean,

Excerpts from the Gray-Ehrlichman conversation and full transcript of the Ehrlichman-Dean call follow:

Gray: ". . . The thing I want to talk to you about is that I'm being pushed awfully hard in certain areas, and I'm not giving an inch, and you know those areas, and I think you have got to tell John Wesley (Dean) to stand very tight in the saddle and be very careful about what he says and to be absolutely certain that he knows in his own mind that he delivered everything he had to the FBI and doesn't make any distinction between . . . but that he delivered everything to the FBI."

Ehrlichman: "Right."

Gray: "And that he delivered it to those agents . . . this is absolutely imperative."

Ehrlichman: "Alright."

Gray: "You know I've got a couple of areas up there that I'm hitting hard, and I'm just taking them on the attack."

Ehrlichman: "Ok."

Gray: "I wanted you to know that."

Ehrlichman: "Good. Keep up the good work, my boy. Let me know if I can help."

Gray: "Alright. He can help by doing that."

Ehrlichman: "Good. I'll do it."

Immediately following that conversation, Ehrlichman called Dean. A transcript of that call follows:

Dean: "Hello."

Ehrlichman: "Hi. Just had a call from your favorite witness."

Dean: "Which is?"

Ehrlichman: "Patrick J. Gray."

Dean: "Oh, really."

Ehrlichman: "And he says to make sure that old John W. Dean stays very, very firm and steady on his story that he delivered every document to the FBI, and that he does not start making nice distinctions between agents and directors."

Dean: "He's a little worried is he?"

Ehrlichman: "Well, he just does not want there to be any question. He says he's hanging very firm, and there's a lot of probing around."

Dean: "Yeah, he's really hanging tough. You ought to read the transcript. He makes me gag."

Ehrlichman: "Really."

Dean: "Oh, it's awful, John."

Ehrlichman: "Why did he call me? To cover his tracks?"

Dean: "Yeah, sure. I laid this on him yesterday."

Ehrlichman: Oh, I see, OK."

Dean: "I laid it on him to, you know, to fuse the issue so I don't have any idea what he said up there today."

Ehrlichman: "I see. It was a funny phone call. Said he is going in to object to the jurisdiction of the group to get into the substance and that their only jurisdiction was to . . . to procedural efforts and his competence, and he says the ACLU put a letter into the same effect."

Dean: "Yeah. Wally picked up an interesting one on the grapevine today that planned strategy now is to proceed in this one as it did in Kleindienst.

Ehrlichman: "Down to the point of calling you?"

Dean: "Down to the point of calling me."

Ehrlichman: "Let him hang there. Well, I think we ought to let him hang there. Let him twist slowly, slowly in the wind."

Dean: "That's right, and I was in with the boss this morning and that is exactly where he was coming out. He said I'm not sure Gray is smart enough to run the bureau the way he is handling himself."

Ehrlichman: "Well, OK, you're on top of it. Good."

Red Cross Plans Aid For Amazon Indians

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — The International Red Cross Friday announced plans to spend $5 million to help Amazon Indians in the next five years.

Admiral Edgar Beauclair, president of the Brazilian Red Cross, said the money would be raised from private and foreign government contributions.

Beauclair said Beauclair, Canada, Sweden, Switzerland and West Germany had already contributed to fund the first years operation budgeted at $1 million.

Philip Gets the Limelight On Next Royal Visit

OTTAWA (CP — The Queen's eighth royal visit to Canada, a five-day stay here beginning Tuesday, is unique.

She is appearing both as Queen of the country and head of the Commonwealth which is meeting here. It will be the Queen's first such appearance outside Britain.

She never actually attends the conference, but most of her 95-hour visit will be taken up with it. She will grant each of the 32 heads of government or representatives a 15-minute private audience, stretching over three days.

Ironically, Prince Philip this time will be much more in the public eye. While the Queen is giving audiences, he'll tour the Royal Canadian Mint, visit a jail turned into a youth hostel, present awards under his fitness program and slip off to the Toronto area to a horse show.

The Queen makes only one speech during the visit; the Prince is scheduled to make two.

There are other unusual aspects to the visit. It's the first time the Queen has ever stopped at only one city during a visit here.

And for a monarch who has been actively involved in a number of the country's centennials, she'll celebrate one herself.

On Aug. 2, the opening day of the prime ministers' conference, she will mark her 100th day in the country as Queen. As a princess, in 1951, she and the Duke of Edinburgh made a five-week cross country trip.

But in her seven Canadian visits as Queen, she's put in only 97 days.

The trip is also unprecedented in that it is the second she's made to the country in one year. Three weeks ago, she and Prince Philip made an 11-day expedition across four provinces, making the centennial of Prince Edward Island and that of the RCMP in Saskatchewan and Alberta. She had spent six days in Ontario.

She carved out a much more politically-conscious role for the monarchy during that trip, echoing government policy on Indians and multiculturalism is a numbr of speeches.

But tour organizers say there'll be none of that this time.

"She can't talk politics while the conference is going on."

For all its uniqueness, this trip involves much of the same royal runaround associated with any visit

FAMILY AFFAIR at Colwood Friday caught brothers Pat, 8, and Bill Kennedy, 12, acquiring autographs of Houston-bound hockey Howes. That's 18-year-old Mark on left and dad Gordie on right. Gord enjoyed greatest success in seventh annual Howe Invitational tournament with 79 compared to Mark's 96. Big winners, however, were Vancouver Canuck ticket manager Miles Desharnais, who won gross prize with two-over-par 72, and Uplands' Bill Shvetz, who took handicap honors with 74-6—68. Winners of 18-hole team prize were Gord Hutcheson, Ivan Witherspoon, Bill Wilson and Ken Kirley with 16-under 54. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Howe: I Was in Mushroom Department With Detroit

bill walker

Gordie Howe, hockey superstar and Houston's newest millionaire, returned for the seventh annual golf tournament named in his honor at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club Friday, shot a 79, and delivered a lot of great one liners.

He also said he would like to return again, but his "contract with Eatons had more or less run out"; but if there is a chance of renewal, he hopes his boys Marty, 19 and Mark, 18, might be included in the invitation. "We are a close-knit family," he explained, and surely everyone knows that the three Howes recently signed a lucrative, multi-year pact with Houston of the World Hockey Association.

Mark was here with his father Friday, but didn't play as well as he wished. He settled for a pair of 48s for a 96. Then, later, he got a private lesson from his father, who else, played another nine holes, and fired a 41, with a double bogey on the par four third hole.

Incidentally, Mark definitely will be playing at Houston this fall and not returning to Toronto as had been suggested earlier.

For the money I'm getting, I can't very well refuse," he said.

WHA Not on Par With NHL

But it was Gordie, in his inimitable style, who otherwise dropped some interesting bombshells.

Such as:

"My fight wasn't with the National Hockey League — I hate to pick on the NHL — it was with the Red Wings;

"In Detroit, I answered to eight other guys, including the trainer;

"I was supposed to be in the public relations department; one day there was a press release and I didn't know what the damned thing was all about;

"In Detroit, I was in the mushroom department; they would keep us in the dark and every once in a while they would come in and throw fertilizer on us;

"(Alex Delvecchio) once said of Ned Harkness (Detroit's general manager): 'he's so dumb, he doesn't know when to have a beer after cutting the lawn';

"In Detroit I did the best I could for the pay I got;

"Sure, I feel bad about leaving the NHL — I gave so much of myself to it — but if I didn't go to Houston, I wasn't going back to the Red Wings;

"As soon as the NHL stops thinking about themselves and thinking about the fans, the better;

"Mickey Redmond is a good hockey player, and he scored 52 goals last year, but he wouldn't have scored 52 goals if he hadn't been playing with Delvecchio (It has been reported that Delvecchio may join the Howes at Houston):

"I think Delvecchio — he is one of the NHL's greatest centremen — will make the move; I have talked to him;

"I think there will be a merger of the NHL and the WHA; there is no way they can have the present wage structure, and survive;

"I didn't jump, I was shoved;

"The WHA is not on a par with the NHL and won't be for some time yet; there are quite a few players wearing sweaters, but that isn't everything. Mark (his son) has the potential, but it is going to take three, maybe four years. Once there is a nucleus of a good team, then the juniors will come along;

"I thought (Alan) Eagleson's gestures were uncouth (this was in answer to a query regarding the Team Canada-Team Russia series), and I think that Bobby Hull — for what he had done for the NHL — should have been asked to play . . . and maybe this old man;

"Intimidation? That's just a fancy word for a challenge;

"I live by the Bible (He was speaking of elbows); it's better to give than receive;

On Roughness—'As Dad Says'

"When I first broke in to the NHL, I had a centre named Sid Abel; he used to throw the puck in the corner and say: 'go get it, kid' . . . I think Mark will be in damned good shape by Christmas."

Mark fitted into the Howe pattern, even physically. He is a well built, strong-armed youngster who played for the U.S. nationals against the Russians last year. His recollection was "they beat us 7-2, but they were so big and so strong! Kharmalov — he had to be one of their smallest. I checked him in the corner one time; I hit his stick, and it didn't move!"

Then someone asked about violence in hockey. Mark didn't duck. He said simply: "You can't eliminate fighting; it's a part of the game. I'm not a fighter, but I'll take a man out of the play. If someone gets me . . . well, as Dad said:

" 'You might have to wait a couple of games . . .' "

Green, Fezler Share Canadian Open Lead

STE. JULIE DE VERCHERES, Que. (CP) — Hubert Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala. who now plays his golf out of Florida, had putting miseries in Friday's second round of the 72-hole, $175,000 Canadian Open Golf championship, but wound up tied for first place with Forrest Fezler of San Jose, Calif.

"I putted miserably—to be where I am, I should have putted much better," Green said.

Green and Fezler had six under-par, two-round totals of 138 over the par 72, 6,905-yard Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club course in their search for the $35,000 first prize money.

Bobby Mitchell, one stroke back with 139, could have had sole possession of first spot had he not hit a triple bogey seven on the par-four, 445-yard 18th.

Mitchell skipped through the front nine with a four-under 32 and added his fifth birdie on the 235-yard 10th before his disaster.

WEISKOPF TRAILS

Hale Irwin, who set a course record 65 in Thursday's opening round while looking for his first tour victory this year, and British Open champion Tom Weiskopf were two strokes behind the leaders at 140—four under.

Like most of the leaders—with the exception of Green—Irwin had trouble with the gusty wind conditions that prevailed throughout most of the day.

"I didn't play well from the start today and I seemed to hit a lot of 'flyers' in the wind," Irwin said, noting that it took him 75 strokes to get around in comparison to his opening round 65.

On the ninth—his 18th hole — Irwin's third shot flew over the green, but a male spectator swatted the ball back to within 15 feet of the pin. Irwin had to drop the ball off the green and then sank a 45-foot chip shot for his par.

Seven golfers—including Lee Trevino of the U.S. and Bruce Crampton of Australia—were bunched at 141. Others there were Americans Pete Moran, Bob Lunn, John Schlee, Chuck Courtney and Jim Ferriell.

The cut was made at 148 with 82 of the original 150-man starting field surviving.

Eight Canadians survived the cut from 31 starters. The top man was Bob Rose of Hamilton, Ont., who won more than $5,000 on the Florida winter circuit last year. He had a par 144.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., and Ken Venning of Brampton, Ont., had 146; Phil Giroux of Montreal carded 147; while Ben Kern of Toronto, Gary Bowerman of Belleville, Ont., John Morgan of Victoria, B.C., and amateur Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., slid in at 148. Cowan was the only nonprofessional to survive the cut.

Defending champion Gay Brewer, along with South Africa's Gary Player, and U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller failed to make the cut, as did Canada's top pro on the tour— George Knudson of Toronto.

Knudson retired when his second shot on the eighth hole struck a woman spectator on the head. Knudson was eight over par at the time. The woman was not injured.

Despite intermittent thunder claps throughout the afternoon, no rain fell on the course during play. Attendance was 14,958.

Stamp Axe Takes The Biggest Bite

By The Canadian Press

Calgary Stampeders, preparing for the forthcoming Canadian Football League season, had a few surprises Friday as they trimmed their roster to the 32-man player limit.

Getting the axe just before the nine teams reached the midnight Friday night deadline were four Stampeder veterans of the 1971 Grey Cup champions.

Quarterback Jerry Keeling, ineffective in four pre-season games, was the big surprise although it became apparent this week he was expendable when Calgary reacquired Pete Liske from the National Football League.

Injuries plagued three other former all-stars who were released—tight end Herm Harrison, defensive end Craig Koinzan and offensive end Herb Schumm.

There were several other surprises around the league as teams cut back for the season openers Tuesday when Toronto Argonauts visit Ottawa Rough Riders in an Eastern Conference game and two Western Conference fixtures—Edmonton Eskimos at Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders at British British Columbia Lions—are held.

Ottawa reached the limit of 17 Canadians and 15 imports by cutting guard Roger Perdrix, a seven-year veteran, tight end Rhome Nixon and guard John Kennedy.

Montreal Alouettes were also busy, putting running back Ike Brown, defensive back Paul Brule and placekicker Ivan MacMillan on waivers.

Wide receiver Ken Matthews, one of the most promising newcomers to the Argo camp this year, was cut by Toronto along with running backs Marv Kendricks and Russ Harrison.

There weren't many surprises elsewhere.

British Columbia released five on waivers—all imports: defensive tackle Renard Perkins of California-Riverside, defensive end Bob Hall of Houston, tight end Dick Bumpas of Arkansas, guard Jim Krapf of Alabama and defensive back Joe Fourquean of Bluefield State.

Two veterans — defensive tackle Garrett Hunsperger and halfback Dave Easley—were placed on the injured list, Hunsperger with an ailing knee and Easley to recover from an appendicitis operation.

With the veterans, the Stampeders also gave fullback Henry Copeland, obtained from Hamilton Tiger-Cats, his walking papers along with seven rookies.

GALBOS FAILS

Edmonton included promising Sam Scarber, a running back, and linebacker Therman Couch among their final cuts while Winnipeg reached the limit with three cuts—Canadian defensive halfback John Steele and running back Fred Riley and wide receiver Tom Scott, both imports.

Among Saskatchewan's late cuts were Rick Galbos, a highly-touted running back from Ohio State, and homebrew guard Jim Hopson.

Defensive backs Ted Passmore and Merv Walker, along with linebacker Mike LaBrash were among the late Canadians cut by Toronto.

The Argos reached the limit by putting four players on the injured list—running back Kerry Marbury (knee), wide receiver Willie Miller (charley horse), offensive end Bob Hamilton (broken finger) and offensive lineman Paul Krause (back injury).

Former Eskimo Mike Law, a defensive halfback, and ex-Blue Bomber tackle Frank Reid, were among the late cuts at Ottawa.

McCormick In Two Finals

WINNIPEG (CP) — The sun finally came out at the Canadian closed tennis championships Friday but it couldn't outshine the smile of Rejean Genois.

The 20-year-old Loretteville, Que., player provided the only upset of the last three days, beating sixth-seeded Pierre Lamarche of Montreal 6-3, 7-5. The win moved the junior Davis Cup champion into the quarter-finals of the men's singles against Don McCormick of Victoria.

Only two other singles matches were played Friday: Peter Burwash of Toronto beat Glen Bradshaw of Victoria 6-4, 6-2 and Shirley Haig of Edmonton whipped Pam Gollish of Toronto 6-1, 6-2.

Other play was restricted to doubles as officials caught up on play lost because of rain Thursday.

Janice Tindle of Vancouver, the top-seeded woman, played five matches, and McCormick four, but the pair had enough left to move into the mixed final with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Eleanor O'Gorman and Bob Moffat of Winnipeg.

In the other semi-final, Bob Bardsley teamed with his brother Tony's wife, Stephanie, to beat Andree Martin of Montreal and Jean Prevost of Morin Heights, Que., 7-4, 7-5.

McCormick teamed with Keith Carpenter of Toronto to advance into the final of the men's doubles against Dave Brown and Dale Power of Toronto.

In the women's doubles, it will be Tindle and Susan Stone of Vancouver against Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Andree Martin of Montreal.

Burwash, the 1971 champion, had little trouble beating Bradshaw despite the close opening set score.

"When I was up 3-0 in the first set I decided to play him as a left-hander to prepare for Carpenter. I was playing to his strength and suddenly he got hot."

Leafs Take Favell

TORONTO (CP) — Doug Favell has signed with Toronto of the National Hockey League, completing a deal between the Maple Leafs and Philadelphia Flyers.

The Leafs gave up rights to goalkeeper Bernie Parent for "future considerations" from the Flyers. Jim Gregory, general manager of the Leafs, said Friday he could have taken another player or draft choices.

"However, this is the choice I made. Favell is a sound goaltender and I'm convinced he'll help us."

The Leafs missed the playoffs last season and one of the club's weak spots was goal, where veteran Jacques Plante and rookies Ron Low and Gord MacRae shared the duties.

Brewer a Toro?

TORONTO (CP) — Carl Brewer, who ended a stormy National Hockey League career with St. Louis Blues two years ago, is expected to join the World Hockey Association's Toronto Toros.

The Toros have called a news conference for Monday afternoon, presumably to make several announcements.

O'Dell Pulls Ahead

MT. VERNON — Victoria's Rick O'Dell holds the inside track on top prize in the fourth annual International Drivers Challenge open stock car series.

O'Dell, only one point behind Doug McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., heading into Friday's competition, pulled ahead with a profitable evening at the Skagit Speedway.

O'Dell posted the third fastest time in the qualifying trials and finished in the top six in the 100-lap main event while McGriff, experiencing mechanical problems, failed to get on the track Friday.

Two Tacoma drivers, Ron Eaton and Mike Barrett, finished 1-2 in the feature race. O'Dell was running third and challenging for second when he tangled with Harvey Brown of Royston and spun out. The Victoria driver lost two laps before recovering.

The six-race series continues tonight in Tacoma and winds up Sunday at Portland Speedway.

All-Stars Give Dolphins Battle

CHICAGO (AP) — The bristling College All-Stars carried the game to Miami Dolphins but yielded two touchdowns to crashing fullback Larry Csonka and bowed 14-3 in the 40th All-Star football game Friday.

Before going down for the collegians' 10th straight defeat on rain-drenched Soldier Field, the All-Stars missed a touchdnwn by sx inches and outplayed the National Football League-champion Dolphins between Csonka's touchdowns leading off the first and fourth quarters.

The punting of Southern Mississippi's Ray Guy and the sharp quarterbacking of Bert Jones of Louisiana State thrilled a capacity throng of 54,103, which was thoroughly drenched by a torrential downpour at halftime.

Guy provided the All-Stars' only points with a 10-yard field goal with 15 seconds left in the first half when the best All-Star thrust of the game stalled after reaching the Dolphin six-inch line.

It took a fourth-quarter rally on the passing of 39-year-old Earl Morrall, in relief of Bob Griese, to wrap up the Dolphins' hard-earned victory with Csonka's seven-yard scoring smash after 3:57 of the fourth period.

Csonka, who bulled three yards for the first Miami touchdown to cap a 60-yard drive in the opening quarter, got his second touchdown after Morrall whipped a pair of decisive passes to Jim Mandich.

Pancho Wins

LAKE BLUFF, Ill. (AP) — Pancho Gonzales and his son, Richard, defeated Allan Carvell and his son, Cale, 6-3, 6-2 in the father-son championship Friday in the 28th U.S. senior men's clay court tennis championships.

Mound Shuffle Deals Crown to Coquitlam

Jordy Sim and Mike Marlow spent most of Friday night wearing out a path between first base and the pitcher's mound at Royal Athletic Park, but it worked as Coquitlam wrapped up the British Columbia Babe Ruth 13-year-old baseball championship.

It wasn't easy, however, as Gordon Head Cosmopolitans forced the champions of the eight-team tournament to come from behind twice, then win it in an extra inning, 7-6.

Coquitlam reached the final with three successive victories in the winners' bracket while Cosmos, who dropped their first game last weekend, came out of the losers' side by winning four games in four nights before bowing in the final.

Sim started the game on the mound with Marlow at first base but they switched positions to get the final out of the first inning after Cosmos counted two runs.

They changed again in the second and Sim continued to pitch until the fifth when Gordon Head struck for four runs to take a 6-2 lead. Back came Marlow to finish the inning.

Sim returned to the mound in the sixth and retired the last nine batters in order for the victory.

Mike Hoitz went all the way for Cosmos, scattering 11 hits, but errors proved his undoing as his mates miscued eight times. Coquitlam's Calvin Pye led both teams at bat with three singles.

The winning run came with two out in the eighth when Glen Phelan singled and went to second on an outfield error. Trevor Dobson ran for him, moving to third on Bill Wright's single and scoring when the return throw from the outfield was bobbled.

Both teams qualify for the first annual 13-year-old regional championship, Aug. 8-12 in Kelso, Wash. They'll compete against four teams from Washington and two from Oregon.

MORRIS SHARES MEDAL

HAMILTON — A British Columbia squad, including Tom Morris of Victoria, grabbed the silver medal Thursday in the 100-kilometre road race team time trial at the Canadian Cycling Championships.

Other members of the B.C. team, which finished second to Quebec in a time of two hours, 23 minutes and 16 seconds, were Max Grace, Brian Keast and Doug Gormican, all of Vancouver.

Serge Proulx, Marc Plouin, Jean Lessard and Robert Tremblay made up the winning Quebec team, which had a time of 2:19:35. The team time is taken on the third rider crossing the finish line.

Third place went to the O. J. Carter Cycling Club of Montreal and Alberta was fourth.

Morris, who is a member of the Victoria Wheelers and Peugeot Clubs, last weekend won the gold medal in the 10-mile track championship.

As Charms Go, Bench Suits Billingham Best

By The Associated Press

San Francisco Giants' Ron Bryant lugs around a huge toy bear and sits it on the bench when he pitches. Scipio Spinks of St. Louis Cardinals got a lot of mileage out of a stuffed gorilla last season.

But Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, Jack Billingham, has the best National League charm of all— Johnny Bench.

"I don't know what we have going, but I hope he keeps it up," Billingham said Friday after Bench knocked in six runs home with a pair of homers and a bases-loaded walk in the Reds' 12-2 rout of Atlanta Braves.

With Bench doing his thing, Billingham scattered five hits for his 15th victory, tying Bryant for the league lead.

Bench has slugged six of his 20 homers and picked up 25 of his 77 RBI in games Billingham has started.

Elsewhere, New York Mets slowed down St. Louis 2-1 behind Tom Seaver, Pittsburgh Pirates out-hit Chicago Cubs 10-6, Houston Astros stopped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2, San Diego Padres trimmed San Francisco 6-2 and Montreal Expos rallied to nip Philadelphia Phillies 5-4.

Mets' Rusty Staub's two-out double on a 3-0 pitch snapped a tie in the sixth inning. Staub's drive off loser Rick Wise actually was gloved against the right field wall by Bernie Carbo, but he dropped it as he hit the fence.

A two-run homer by Richie Zisk and two-run singles by Al Oliver and Manny Sanguillen highlighted a 21-hit Pirate attack against slumping Chicago.

The Cubs, who led the division from May 9 through July 22, have lost 17 of their 23 games this month.

Dave Roberts' tie-breaking single off Juan Marichal highlighted a two-run sixth inning that enabled the Padres to end a seven-game losing streak and snap the Giants' six-game winning streak. Bill Greif hurled a five-hitter.

Mike Jorgensen's two-run triple capped a three-run ninth-inning rally. Tommy Hutton's two-run homer had broken a 2-2 tie for the Phils in the eighth but the Expos came back when Bob Stinson was hit by a pitch, pinch runner Larry Lintz stole second and pinch hitter Hal Breeden doubled for one run. Ron Hunt's single and Jorgensen's triple turned the game around.

In the American League, Baltimore Orioles' Jim Palmer flirted with the second no-hitter in his career for the third time this season, and, for the third time, he came away without the elusive masterpiece.

George Hendrick's leadoff single in the eighth inning was the only hit Cleveland managed against the Orioles' ace with Palmer pitching Baltimore to a 9-0 romp over the Indians in the front half of a doubleheader sweep. The Orioles also took the second game 5-2 and moved to within 1½ games of first place New American League's Eastern Division.

In the West, Kansas City Royals came from behind to tie the score in the last of the ninth inning and then pushed across the winning run on Carl Taylor's single in the 10th to beat Chicago White Sox 2-1. The victory edged the Royals to within one-half game of first place Oakland A's.

In other AL games Friday, the Yankees rallied twice to overtake Milwaukee Brewers 7-6, Minnesota Twins beat Oakland 8-2, Texas Rangers tripped California Angels 5-2 and Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 4-2.

No-Hitter in Vain

A no-hit pitching performance wasn't enough to help Oak Bay in Friday's Little League baseball playoffs.

Michael Lawless checked in with the no-hitter but three costly errors proved to be Oak Bay's undoing as Esquimalt-Victoria West squeezed out a 5-4 victory in one of four area tournament games.

Winning pitcher David Jones gave up four hits, walked 10 but struck out 13.

In other games, Gordon Head tripped Layritz 6-1 in area II action at Layritz Park; Lake Hill rapped Pat Bay 7-4 in area III play at Lake Hill, and National defeated Hampton 7-1 in the area IV playoff at Hillside Park.

Gordon Head's Brian Martin stymied Layritz on five hits and also contributed to the offense with a home run. Ed Geric also belted a homer for Gordon Head.

Richard Lapp's two-hit pitching and a 10-hit attack carried Lake Hill to a comfortable win over Pat Bay.

First losers' bracket games in the four, three-team double-knockout tournaments get under way tonight.

The four area winners advance to the district finals Aug. 2-8 at Hampton Park with the champion representing Victoria in the Canadian championships Aug. 13-18 at Lambrick Park.

MIKE'S HOPES SOAR

All of a sudden, Mike's Sports Shop can cconsider the possibility of a third or fourth-place finish in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Fortunes continued to improve for Mike's Friday as the Bob Caldwell-managed squad trounced Bell's Men's Wear 10-1 to reel off its fourth straight victory. That carried Mike's 2½ games behind Bell's and Royal Oak Sporting Goods, deadlocked in third place.

Mel Nelson spaced seven hits to record his 10th triumph while Mike's tagged Randy Jackson for 11 and made good use of five Bell's errors.

Ron Grant went four-for-four at the plate for the winners.

Saanich Teams Dominate Charge Into B.C. Playoffs

The Saanich brigade has come up with a big charge in the provincial minor lacrosse finals.

Teams from the Saanich Association have wound up as lower Island representatives in seven of the 10 B.C. playoffs scheduled to be played within the next 10 days.

The three divisions in which Saanich teams missed were peewee "A" where Victoria's A. J. Barr squad, a season-long powerhouse, moved into the playdowns at Vancouver's Riley Park; tyke "B" where Juan de Fuca qualified and is playing at home this weekend, and midget "B" which was won by Esquimalt Hersheys with a 7-4 win over Vancouver Island Plasterers in a third and deciding game.

Saanich's novice "A" won the right to compete in the Aug. 4-6 playdowns at Coquitlam with a second straight win over Juan de Fuca. Bell's Men's Wear defeated Evening Optimists in an all-Saanich playoff for the novice "B" zone title and left Thursday for Kitimat.

Metro Toyota of Saanich, after losing the first game, swept back to win the next two to defeat Juan de Fuca in the peewee "B" zone final and earn a trip to Surrey.

Dave Unwin's Saanich Toby Masonry defeated Victoria Trio Ready Mix 13-5 to record its 18th straight win this season and win the bantam "A" trip to Richmond, Aug. 3-5.

Benton and Overbury of Saanich are the bantam "B" finalists at Richmond while Saanich UCT was the only district team to register for midget "A" playoffs at North Vancouver.

Saanich Bayliss Neon took tyke "A" honors.

Juan de Fuca rolled to two easy victories — 14-1 over Kitimat and 20-2 over Chemainus — to advance to the semi-finals of the double-knockout, tyke "B" tournament Friday. Chemainus and Norburns of Vancouver both suffered two straight setbacks to drop out of contention.

Burrards Clinch Tie for Top Slot

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Burrards turned back Coquitlam's late comeback threats to defeat the Adanacs 15-14 Friday and clinch a tie for first place in the Western Lacrosse Association.

Ahead 7-2 after the opening period, Burrards needed a goal by Al Tasker at 15:59 of the third period to move six points ahead of Coquitlam.

Brothers Al and Dave Tasker each scored three times to spark Vancouver's offense while Don Cameron counted three for Adanacs.

Painter Edges Wright by One

Vic Painter enjoyed his start much better than his finishing struggle Friday, but the Colwood veteran still emerged as the big winner in the 36-hole, 27th annual Vancouver Island seniors' Golf Association tournament.

After earning a one-stroke lead with a 76 in the opening round Thursday at the par-70 Colwood course, Painter built a big lead in the early stages of the final round at Victoria Golf Club.

Starting at the 11th tee, Painter was one under par for his first nine holes. Jolted by a triple-bogey on the next hole, Vic had problems the rest of the way and barely survived a double-bogey on his final hole to nip Eric Wright of Gorge Vale by one shot.

Painter finished with 75 for a two-round total of 141 while Wright, last year's winner, added a three-over-par 73 to his first-round 79 to wind up at 142, one stroke in front of Dr. George Bigelow, who fired a 74 Friday on his home course.

Colwood's Jim Johnson earned the handicap crown as he finished with a net tally of 136, one shot in front of Bigelow.

Highlight of Friday's play was provided by Mort Raels of Uplands, who scored a hole-in-one on Oak Bay's 14th hole for his third career ace.

Colwood took the George Straith Team Trophy and Colwood's Bert Buller won the event's par competition.

Winners and runners-up in age divisions:

70-74: Alf Chesser (Nan.), 144; Bud Collison (U), 149.

65-69: Phil Eldridge (RC) 139; Dr. Clarence Newby (CH), 142.

60-64: Ed Cuppage (RC) 139; Bill Davison (RC), 139.

55-59: Charlie Wilson (Vic) 140; Doug Peden (U), 140.

Dahlia Wins Rich Stakes

ASCOT, England (Reuter) — Dahlia, the French-trained American-owned filly, produced a perfectly-timed run to score an impressive triumph in the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes Saturday.

Dahlia, ridden by Australian Bil Pyers, won Britain's richest race, worth more than £100,000 ($250,000) after a brilliant late effort.

Dahlia, 10-1 today, finished six lengths clear of 13-8 favorite Rheingold with 25-1 outsider Our Mirage third.

Victoria Defends Cup

Victoria golfers will be attempting to make it two in a row Sunday when the Hunting Cup women's team competition is played at Uplands Golf Club.

The Victoria ladies last year captured the cup after suffering seven successive defeats in the annual, inter-city event between teams representing Vancouver and Victoria.

Vancouver players are named first in the following list of Sunday's matches, which start at 12:30:

Sheila Bentley vs. Dorothy DeGiralamo, Holly Botham vs. Margaret Todd, Helen Marlatt vs. Joan Lawson, Dianne Lytwyn vs. Dianne Phillips, Carolyn Larsen vs. Gert Pumfrey, Colleen McCollock vs Eileen Anderson, Helen Berlinquette vs Nita Moody, Billie Bartley vs. Betty Strome, Linda Kaalec vs. Peggy Mathews, Mona Pump vs. Jeannie Hopps, Anna-May Taylor vs Peggy Jacobson, Jean Stewart vs. Betty Phillips.

England Tally 197 for Five

LONDON (AP) — West Indian cricketers collected three prime England wickets today in the pre-lunch session of the third day in the first Test.

The tourists' main success was the capture of Geoff Boycott's wicket. He made 97 and at lunch England was at 197 for five wickets in reply to the West Indian first-innings total of 415.

Castaways, Eagles Lead

Eagles nipped London Boxing Club 1-0 Thursday night at Macdonald Park to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five Victoria Industrial Softball League playoff semi-finals.

Castaways took a 2-1 lead in the other semi-final series by hammering Capital Builders 12-1.

Spoiling Role Awaits Bates

Victoria Bate Construction has high hopes of ending Seattle Pay-N-Pak's 26-game winning streak in the Northwest International Fastball League this weekend.

The Seattle club plays Bates in doubleheaders at 7 and 9 tonight and at noon and 2 p.m. Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

So far this season, Seattle has dominated both the individual batting and pitching in the league.

Dick Christensen leads the pitching honors with an 11-0 record, Gaylan Bradshaw has an 8-0 record and their Seattle clubmate Bob Ostlund is 7-0.

Ostlund, who has pitched 64 innings, has allowed only three runs, and Bradshaw, who has pitched 53 innings, has allowed eight earned runs.

The Seattle club has allowed a total of only 29 runs and its pitchers have struck out 195 batters while giving up 23 walks.

Seattle batters have seven in the top 10 in the league.

The Happy Potters

An outdoor Raku workshop is among the courses being offered this summer by the Northwest Coast Institute of the Arts.

It will take place during the week of Aug. 13-18. Camping space will be provided and instructors will be well known Vancouver Island potters Alex Walker and Gerry Wilkin.

The name Raku, given to a certain kind of pottery, broadly translated from the Japanese means satisfying, happiness, fulfilling.

In the 16th century, Korean potters were working in Japan, manufacturing simple ware for their own domestic use.

The tea masters, searching for equipment to complement the tea ceremony, discovered a type of rice bowl among these artefacts which suited their purpose, and bestowed the name Raku on it.

A Raku workshop includes both work and play, study and contemplation, searching for and testing different clay materials, buildilng and testing different types of firing kilns.

It calls for the compounding and using of a variety of glazes and oxides in a situation where clay and glaze, potter and fire join to bring forth a thing of beauty. It is in every sense of the word, a "happening."

Registration for the Raku workshop can be made by phoning 382-4843. Fee for the workshop is $50.

Woman Hanged In Singapore

SINGAPORE (UPI) — A Chinese dance hall hostess convicted for her role in a 1970 murder died on the gallows today, the first woman hanged in Singapore.

Mimi Wong Weng, 34, was hanged after appeals that went all the way to the Privy Council in London, the highest appeals court in the British Commonwealth, and to the president of this former British Colony, Benjamin Sheares.

Hanged with her was her estranged husband, Sim Woh Kum, who also was condemned for his role in the 1970 butcher knife slaying of her former lover.

A Sample Production

A young former Victorian, Bill Sample, is the music director and arranger of a series of six CBC television shows scheduled to start Saturday at 9 p.m.

Name of the group and the show which includes dancers and singers as well as instrumentalists, is Stratusfaction.

Sample is also the show's arranger and has written two songs to be performed on the first airing.

Four former Victorians are among the instrumentalists. They are Don Hardy on drums, Jim Kirkpatrick, bass, and Gordon Polichek, guitar. All were former members of a local rock band, the Maple Rock.

An outstanding contributer to the Victoria scene, Sample is the son of well known music educationist and bandsman, Rod Sample and was music director and leader of the highly successful production here of the rock oratoria, Joseph.

Stratusfaction was taped for television in Winnipeg.

BRYAN'S BEAT

Grooving in the Park

By BRYAN HAY
Times Staff

Life is looking ever sweeter for Sugarcane, the six-man acoustic-electric band that has come from nowhere to the number one school-dance band in Greater Victoria in less than six months . . . and all by word of mouth.

It's been a hectic week for the group, the remnants of Sunnybrook Farm and Buckeye; two of the top local groups of less than a year ago.

Last Friday, the boys were part of a mammoth gig at Club Tango which didn't end up until 4:30 Saturday morning. At nine they were down in Beacon Hill Park winding up the sound for a concert in the park which romped from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. and then it was all aboard their old school bus for a Nanaimo gig in honor of the big bathtub race in the Hub City.

After a bus breakdown somewhere on the Malahat and a rush for the show they found 5,000 people where they'd expected to play for 1,200 . . . and ended up playing their hearts out, like they always do.

On Wednesday morning they found out that a bit of hype by the Nanaimo Jaycees (promoters of the bathtub session) was closer to truth than hoped for last weekend.

All the posters in Nanaimo had pushed the group as recording stars and the closest they had been at that stage to wax was watching a candle burn down.

Suddenly — not out of the blue, because it had been sort of expected — a call from Quality Records where a few demo tapes of the group had been shipped.

But the reaction. Wow!

Apparently the squat brick building in Hogtown's East End which houses the Canadian head offices of Quality was rocking to the sound of Sugarcane's Champagne Body a great ditty in the New Vaudeville Band style which completely stunned me the first time I heard it sitting in the park last weekend.

If that gem hits the airwaves we can look for a Victoria group with a number one smash across the continent . . . or I'll sit back down in Beacon Hill Park and eat a whole bunch of grass.

And, from first "rush" reactions, I'm looking forward to seeing a 45 rpm recording of the song before the snow flies. Hope so anyway, because no band I've seen recently outside of the old pros has shown as much stage presence, pizz-zazz and sheer zest for laying down a good trip for the audience as Sugarcane.

Even if Ray Luxembourg's material does come off too often as though he's spent too much time stoned out on Murray McLaughlin and Bruce Cockburn music . . . because I'm firmly convinced that's the path for Canadian pop to follow.

However, this is a very long way of getting around to what I intended as my total topic for this week, Beacon Hill Bop.

Personally, I found it a very pleasant experience to sit at the bandshell last Saturday and check out some nice mellow music which despite some sallow, shallow and selfish people living in parkfront apartments who had the effrontery to phone Victoria's finest, was neither too loud nor too shocking.

Even the smattering of old-timers sitting around on the benches seemed to get off on what was being laid down.

The only tragedy was that so few people showed up to enjoy the experience . . . if 3,000 people can shell out three bucks to see Lighthouse of Chilliwack in this burg, surely that many people can show up for a couple of hours of music and grooving that doesn't cost them a dime.

There will be another concert at the bandshell a week from today — this time with three bands, one of which should be Holy Smoke — so why not show local talent that we dig them as much as we do the big-name out-of-towners?

Because that's the only way we can ensure — after about three years of fighting — that there will be more of our music in the park next summer.

News Guild Case Delayed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hearing of a motion by the Free Press to quash certification of The Newspaper Guild was adjoured Thursday to Sept. 6.

The newspaper is asking Court of Queen's Bench to overturn a July 6 ruling of the Manitoba Labor Board certifying the guild as bargaining agent for editorial and advertising employees.

The Free Press alleges the board was improperly constituted since no permanent chairman had been appointed to succeed Murdoch MacKay, who resigned to run as an NDP candidate in the June 28 Manitoba general election.

It also claims the board was subject to undue influence from public statements by Labor Minister Russell Paulley favoring the guild's application.

Urge New Deduction

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian School Trustees Association is asking the government for financial measures that will allow people to deduct school taxes from their taxable income, an association spokesman said.

Harald Gunderson, president of the Alberta School Trustees Association and a director of the CSTA, said in a news release that the national association made its request in a letter to Finance Minister John Turner.

THRICE a medal winner is the rare achievement of Betty-Jean Lindley, 18, dancing daughter of Marge Lindley who heads her own dance school in Victoria. In recent examinations conducted by the Canadian Dance Teachers' Association, B.C. branch (stage division), Betty-Jean passed her gold medal test with 94 marks. She thus became one of a select company of B.C. students to have added the gold medal to bronze and silver medals with honor marks. (John McKay photo.)

Skunk Rabid

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A skunk that bit a two-year-old boy near Carivale, in southeastern Saskatchewan, had rabies, Dr. William Doorword of the disease research institute laboratory said Wednesday.

Greg Gilliard was playing in his yard Sunday when bitten.

Consultants' Absence Blasted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rex Grose, former chairman of the Manitoba Development Fund, Thursday criticized an American consulting firm for not appearing before the inquiry into the $92 million Churchill Forest Industries Project.

He said it was "just unbelievable" that the firm, Arthur D. Little Inc. of Cambridge, Mass., which was consultant to the fund on the project, wouldn't appear and "stand up and be counted and explain their actions."

She Takes You All the Way

By ANNE McDOUGALL

I think the incredible thing about Doris Lessing is that she takes you all the way. There's no stopping because the imagination fails. There's no shrug of laughter out of embarrassment, or irony, or laziness, or lack of grace to finish. She goes on . . . and her energy is as impressive as her gentleness.

It's like sitting around a fireplace watching the coals redden. Everyone feels free to talk and there is someone there who takes you on . . . past the conventional remark, further than the confession you had planned on settling for. She brings you out the other end, but not out the same door. Something has been changed.

THE SUMMER BEFORE THE DARK, by Doris Lessing. Clarke, Irwin. $7.25.

In recent novels, such as Briefing for a Descent into Hell and Children of Violence, Doris Lessing has taken mind-boggling flights into time and space that have left me, at least, exhilarated and stretched almost beyond endurance. In Summer before the Dark, while no less probing, she confines her territory to the here and now experiences of a very recognizable woman.

At 45, Kate Brown arrives at her own private precipice of bewilderment. She is the wife of a successful doctor and mother of four grown-up children. For 25 years she has had no time or inclination to do much more than run what sounds like a very happy household. As this household manages, almost overnight, to get along without her, she feels not only not wanted but unemployed.

One might wonder whether these children and the husband who, it appears, has been having casual affairs for a number of years while remaining devoted to his wife, would have managed as well if Kate had found something of her own earlier in the game. It's one of the things Women's Lib is screaming about except they aren't wondering; they are convinced.

Kate, however, had just drifted along, keeping up her pretty auburn-haired appearance, arranging flowers from her big suburban garden, serving tea to visiting doctors and saying and doing what was expected of her. "All my life I've been held upright by an invisible fluid, notice of other people," she explains later.

Doris Lessing writes brilliantly about Kate's experience out in the business world where she is a success in the glossy offices of an international organization. Before she knows it, she is being mother all over again, this time to international civil servants of every color and creed who work their way smoothly around the conference circuit.

When the conference ends in Turkey, Kate embarks on what she acknowledges is the inevitable trip to Spain with a young American lover. The results are not usual, however, and illness plays a part in sending her back to London.

There at last she comes face to face with herself. Kept out of her home for another few months (it is rented while her husband attends meetings in the U.S. and the children pursue summer jobs) she is at complete loose ends.

She rents a room in an apartment belonging to Maureen, a pretty society girl, who is living away from home wondering what to do with her life. The apartment is home to a number of wandering young people, some square, some hippie. Kate finds the courage to say no, she won't look after the flat for them; she wants to be free "for the first time in my life."

The rest of the book explores her feelings as she first lets her appearance go and then perversely exaggerates the effect until she is walking the streets of London in baggy clothes, her once-lovely hair uncombed and growing in grey at the roots. The fluid that has held her upright all her life has drained away and she makes no effort to stop it.

She dreams and weeps and laughs her way back to a new sanity. At the end she goes home. The world may call it breakdown. For her, and perhaps the followers of Dr. R. D. Laing, the British psychiatrist who studies the politics of the family, it seems to be a breakthrough. Either way, it's all there, and as finely written as anything being done today.

LESSING . . . energy, gentleness

A Nice Man At the Top

By R. H. ROY

Born in 1891, the son of an Irish peer, Alexander was one of those numerous Irishmen who decided upon a career in the British Army and rose to the top of his profession. After Harrow and Sandhurst, he joined the 1st Battalion, the Irish Guards, in 1911. Three years later he was on the Western Front, and at the end of the war was commanding a battalion.

Alexander took the Great War philosophically and professionally. Calm and courageous in battle, his natural leadership qualities and positive approach to the trials of trench warfare marked him as an outstanding officer in a first class regiment. Unsated with the fighting on the Western Front, he sought and found action in the Baltic commanding a brigade of irregulars fighting the Bolsheviks in 1919 and 1920.

ALEX: The Life of Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, by Nigel Nicolson. McGraw-Hill. $12.95.

During the inter-war years, Alexander rose to the rank of major-general, during which time he served with the British Army at Constantinople, Gibraltar, the North-West Frontier, and elsewhere. By 1937 he was given command of the 1st Division, thus becoming the youngest general in the British Army. Two years later he took the division to France where, with another divisional commander, Montgomery, he and others trained with their limited resources to combat the German onslaught.

When the blitzkrieg came, Alexander was put in charge of I Corps when the army was being pushed into Dunkirk. His task was to protect the bridgehead while organizing the evacuation, a task which he carried out under trying circumstances. His calm and cheering perseverance did much to make the operation a success, even though it represented a tremendous defeat for British arms.

For two years Alexander retained various high posts in Britain. Early in 1942, he was ordered to take command of the deteriorating situation in Burma. Once more he had charge of a fighting withdrawal, this time to the borders of India.

The retreat from Burma did not affect Alexander's career. When the retreat was over, he was chosen by Churchill as Commander-in-Chief of the Middle East, and it is in the Mediterranean theatre where Alexander was first given the opportunity to exercise his qualities as a general and politician. It is here, too, where Canadian readers will be particularly interested in this volume since Canadian troops came under his command.

Alexander assumed his new duties at the same time Montgomery was given command of the Eighth Army. It was a good partnership. Alexander, according to the author, was deliberately self-effacing in order to give "Monty" as full and as strong a role as possible. He gave Montgomery all he needed for victory, stayed in the background, and did not interfere with his strong-willed and increasingly egotistic subordinate.

Later, Alexander had another prima donna to contend with, General Patton, when the Americans added their weight to the African campaign. It was not until the final battle in Tunisia that Alexander tightened his grip on the reins of battle and did a brilliant job in rounding up a quarter of a million enemy prisoners of war.

Next to Tunisia, probably the most outstanding military achievement of Alexander was his destruction of the 23 German divisions in northern Italy in the spring of 1945. He was by this time a Field Marshal and Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean. In October of the same year he ended his military career and later became Canada's governor-general and then Churchill's minister of defence.

This is, in many ways, a remarkable book, and certainly the best biography on Alexander to date. He was a man of great charm and wit, pleasant, knowledgeable, able and courageous. He was not an outstanding strategist, nor was he sufficiently "political" to be a good minister. As Liddell-Hart said of him: "Eminent as his record was, he might have been a great commander if he had not been so nice a man and so deeply a gentleman."

A Struggle Of Emotions

By SUSAN MUSGRAVE

These unpretentious poems explore the intense emotional strategies involved in human relationships — particularly between man and woman. The poetry works through a series of conflicts arising from a woman on her own attempting to work out her feelings and find clarity in separation and aloneness.

I AM WATCHING, by Shirley Gibson. Anansi. $6; paperback $2.95.

The poet is uncompromising and consistent — she doesn't spare any feelings or fake honesty. In fact she is honest to the point of ruthlessness:

"That night you take me like a conquistador.
There are no terms of surrender: I simply fight off the attack."

In each of the three sections the speaker addresses a different "you" although each is an extension of her own thoughts and each leads further into herself. Yet things develop slowly and with insufficient drama so that the poems soon disappear from memory and one is likely to finish the book with a feeling of discontent. The poems stimulate the appetite but never quite satisfy it.

Most of the poems touch on the painful aspects of experience but the poet never stops believing in the possibility of love. She sees even, perhaps, that pain is a necessary part of growth in a relationship and that it helps to maintain a feeling of self-awareness and respect for the other person as a separate human being. In one poem she writes:

explode
leave crude splintered wounds"

but later on she says "when we meet we will compare our wounds", implying again the constructive aspect of suffering. Involvement becomes a kind of battle where

"soon I stop talking give myself up complacent victim of this planned attack"

But she doesn't give up easily and she certainly isn't complacent. Nor does she fight back in any real way. She waits and is patient and one inevitably wishes she would stick in a few knives or cause an explosion or at least get angry enough to make all her "bloodletting" seem believable and worthwhile.

For even though there is talk of blood, wounds, wrist-slashing and weapons, it is so tightly contained and seemingly well under control that it is difficult to imagine the actual experience that went on behind these words. Not that one should rely on violent imagery and a loud voice to get the message across either. But in Ms. Gibson's case the words do not bring any world into life — they remain one-dimensional, and in most cases uneventful.

But she does have patience and a persistent voice on her side. One is eventually caught up in the flow of her thinking and, in her quiet way, she keeps you hanging on. The whole book is like one long poem and while, in places, it is lacking in vitality and intensity, Shirley Gibson has succeeded in creating an over-all atmosphere of considerable emotional impact.

MICHENER

THE DIGEST LINE

By BEATRICE CARROLL

The 25 pieces covering a period of 20 years that make up this book bear the solid imprimatur of the Reader's Digest — and well they might, as they were all written for that ubiquitous little magazine.

A MICHENER MISCELLANY, by James A. Michener. Random House. $8.95.

Dealing with subjects as various as art, travel, sports, rock music (Michener likes all these), pornography (no), movie censorship (Michener advocates a new classification code) to politics (Michener would abolish "that dangerous anachronism", the electoral college), the Digest touch of optimism, Puritanism, anti-communism, Americanism and just-plain-folks-ism is there.

Young (American) men and women are usually "fine-looking," wicked old Europe has seduced innocent America in movie sex and violence, the American housewife is "the hardest-working woman in the world," Communists are cowards who won't stand and fight — "Reds are yellow" — in the author's (and the Digest's) opinion. Of course, to be fair, many of the pieces were written in the fifties, long before the troubles on the home front, and the latest Nixon-Brezhnev accommodation.

And some of these articles are not without interest, for Michener is a successful and popular writer of best-selling novels, as everyone knows. The Digest allowed him great liberty in choosing assignments anywhere in the world, and as a result he writes vividly and knowledgeably of Afghanistan, "meeting place of nations"; of the Hermitage, Leningrad's famous museum; of the Prado in Madrid, of the National Gallery in Washington; of his love for Japan, and his admiration and respect for Islam.

Although it doesn't add up to much, the book has its moments.

The Fault Was With Us

Professor Abella delivers a fast-moving, well-written account of the internal (Communist) and external (American) forces at play over the two decades which saw the growth and development of industrial unionism in Canada.

The author believes it was only a matter of time, in the mid-1930s, before national unions in Canada would eclipse the internationals and thus would grow an indigenous labor movement.

But it was felled by two blows, one from Moscow and the other from Washington, he argues. The first was one of many switches in Communist party line, directing the disbanding of the Workers Unity League and having the party faithful work through established unions. The second was the birth of the CIO in the United States.

NATIONALISM, COMMUNISM AND CANADIAN LABOR, by I. M. Abella. University of Toronto Press. $15; paperback $4.50.

The weakness in the premise, however, is that WUL would have had a hard time, had it continued, in the face of fierce anti-Communism which developed in the 1940s and 1950s; that the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor (and its successor, the Confederation of National Trade Unions) were both unable to break out of their Quebec-only base; and the All-Canadian Congress of Labor was essentially the conservative Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, whose railway-based membership restricted its growth.

The conclusion is further weakened by the author's faithful recording of the fact that the CIO was dragged into Canada by Canadians, not injected into the country by Americans, and that Canadian Communists, with very rare exceptions, followed every shift in Moscow's line, as delivered by a courier from American Communist party headquarters travelling to Toronto.

Thus, even if national unionism was on the verge of a breakthrough, which is doubtful in retrospect, it was not so much decisions in Moscow and Washington which stopped this, but Canadians of both left-wing and right-wing persuasion who decided to look beyond national boundaries. The fault, if there was one, was not so much in Moscow or Washington as inside Canada.

Apart from this, Abella writes well in recounting the bitter conflicts between Communist-led unions and the non-Communists which led to the former being driven from the CCL in the Red-hysteria days of the early Cold War, and he sets much of this conflict in its perspective. The ups and downs of the Communists and their contributions to trade unionism, extending to the many unions they have influenced at one time or another, would seem worthy of attention in a second book.

A Mind-Boggler

By GARY CLARKSON

As a key to the new reality which the electronic media is creating Telepolitics does not quite fit the lock. It is more confusing than elucidating.

Dr. Wilhelmsen and Mrs. Bret, both touted on the dust cover as "the new Catholic intellectuals," have used a mystifying vocabulary to describe a new form of thinking. Rather than political sages delphically dipping into the past or blinding us with revelations about the Watergate world around us, the authors deserve to be seen as two brilliant psychologists who have simply found their educations insufficient to the task of describing a world where all the senses are exploited constantly and in consonance with the proposition: "Electronic art imitates the nature of the human brain."

TELEPOLITICS, by Frederick D. Wilhelmsen and Jane Bret. Tundra Books. $10.

As a kind of primer of the new electronic psyche, Telepolitics can be approached with profit by the most literate among us. But the authors do not leave the matter at that, for they go on to assert that "TV does not imitate nature by matching but by making something new."

Any reader who applauds literacy and who values "objectivity" must be prepared, alas, to ditch these concepts — or virtues, as you will, to fully understand the book. This is what may cause confusion and it may be too high a cost to pay for comprehending a book. The prospective reader is at least warned. He should also be prepared to deal with such mind-boggling conundra as, "Perhaps politics as politics no longer exists."

If there is any central message to Telepolitics it is heretical to the McLuhan canon: the electronic media, say Wilhelmsen and Bret, are the universal shredder and tribalizer. This is the age of "indeterminism" and we live in a world whose technology has killed off the work ethic.

As a series of insights and observations into the current political and psychological scene, Telepolitics is valuable. But to truly appreciate the book's worth requires the reader to dispense with the usual critical guides. It also requires a high level of tolerance for the stylistic and formal quirks of the authors.

No generalization can really stand about Telepolitics because it is too contemporary, too mirror-like. At best, the book will cause rationalists to re-examine their premises; at worst, it will add to the age's lack of critical standards.

Freedom on the Ridges

By TORCHY ANDERSON

The curl of the horns of a veteran Big Horn mountain sheep may measure 40 inches or more. They have to live a long time and win a good many fights to attain the after-death distinction of being a great trophy. The old ram's head ends up on a wall, usually far from the high country where he was monarch, as a conversation piece at the cocktail hour.

HORNS IN THE HIGH COUNTRY, by Andy Russell. Random House. $7.75.

Andy Russell was born in the foothills of southern Alberta, where a man looks westward at the defiant mountain sentinels of the Rockies. When he swings off a horse at the end of a hunt — he once used a gun but now shoots with a camera — Russell carries in his notebook another book. To "Grizzly Country" and "Trails of a Wilderness Wanderer" he now adds the handsome, beautifully illustrated, "Horns In The High Country."

Russell has covered the backbone of the continent from Montana to Alaska as a guide and photographer and has trained two sons in the skills of mountain travel by horse, in the demanding patience and accuracy of picturing big game, in the love of freedom found on the high ridges where a man can get away from highways, gas fumes and 'sports' who will shoot at anything, moving or still.

But it is getting harder every year to find clean air, game happy in an environment still unsullied, and always the lucky chance of watching the mountain sheep, goats, grizzlies, moose, deer in battle or at play. The interest ranges from the kings of the peaks to the busy little picas and hoary marmots. Russell brings you all this on a carpet of glorious alpine flowers or with the snow and ice of mountain winter.

In one chapter he tells of a splendid and terrifying thunder-storm in the Rockies. First comes the approach of black clouds over the continental divide, then the lightning strikes and the earth-shaking thunder. Torrents of rain crash down. Then the peace of a new-washed world heralded by the song of a bird.

Men may spend a lifetime in the mountains and never see a fight over a ewe by two really old and regal giant rams. Russell filmed such a fight, fascinated by the two well matched veterans, until one gave in and retreated. By the time the battle was over the winner found his prize had been lured away by a young ram. By then he did not seem to care.

I think this is a fascinating book, but I am prejudiced. I am too fond of the high quiet places of our land to be impartial. It happens to be my kind of a book.

'Plays Must Entertain'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Bindon and Maxine Kinghorn spent four years dreaming, talking and finally planning to emigrate to Canada from their English homeland.

One day when they were poring over a map Maxine put her finger on the narrow strip of island nestled off British Columbia's coast.

"I think that would be a nice place to live," she said.

It was just an impulse out of thin air. Or was it an example of female intuition?

As a matter of fact professional theatre man Bindon Kinghorn had job applications registered over a wide area and had no idea where he might ring the bell.

So when the offer of a position came from the University of Victoria theatre department, the Kinghorns were understandably delighted.

With their two daughters, Nyree, aged three and a half, and Lucinda-May, 18 months, they arrived a little less than a month ago and are losing no time becoming Canadian citizens.

Bindon is already occupied with production work at UVic in connection with the Summer Theatre Workshop and is on a sort of "shake-down" cruise before taking over fully as shop co-ordinator in September.

In this position he will be responsible for co-ordinating all workshop activity including the building of props, scenery and costumes together with instruction in these skills.

The slender, unassuming young man, with his air of quiet competence, comes to his new position highly qualified and equipped with the great theatrical expertise of his native land.

After a year's technical course at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art — "in England everybody starts theatre training at a drama school" — Bindon went to the distinguished Bristol Old Vic as assistant stage manager.

He subsequently became full stage manager there and spent a total of some five years with the company, resigning only to go as company manager to the Liverpool Playhouse, one of the major professional repertory companies in England.

While agreeing that the British repertory theatres have played a major part in developing a large body of exceptional actors, including some of the finest on the contemporary English-speaking stage, he points out that repertory also has disadvantages.

"Repertory theatre is too much dictated to by the type of play the people in the area want to see," he says.

"Venturesome plays that are uncertain box office bets are left to be explored by theatre clubs and such," — which are England's only distant relative to Broadway's off-Broadway, it would seem.

The system, Bindon indicates, tends to produce a stultified and predictable situation generally in the theatre.

Within this feeling about the theatre lie the main reasons why the Kinghorns craved to leave their established way of life and seek fresh horizons.

Both Bindon and his tall, blonde attractive wife looked forward to a more spacious concept. It's that old urge to break away from the trammelled paths to experience something that is, comparatively speaking, a new frontier.

Speaking personally, from the audience side of the footlights, Kinghorn is convinced that a play must be entertaining, whether or not there is a message involved.

"It should have a message but not to be drummed into you. when that happens people became bored and once the play is no longer entertaining it has lost its power to compel or convince."

The severest and most annihilating critics of a play are the people who work in it or on it, he says.

"There are not many plays that can stand up to comment in the green room and remain intact."

(The green room, for those unfamiliar with theatre jargon, is a backstage lounge area where company members congregate and curtain time and other cues are awaited.)

Kinghorn mentions Hadrian VII as one of the few plays in his experience that escaped the devastation of the green room.

The ultimate aim of a proper theatre on the UVic campus is something to be looked forward to, he agrees.

But he is not entirely convinced that small, intimate theatre would be ideal.

"There is a good deal to be said for a larger theatre," he points out. "The actor has to learn to get his voice out in a large auditorium and there is also the psychological matter of coping with a half empty house which he inevitably will have to do from time to time."

Apart from the "interim" Phoenix Theatre — Kinghorn regrets that there is no facility for the important aspect of "flying" scenery — he considers the UVic theatre workshop to be the best equipped he has ever seen.

Music School Concert

Forty-six students of the Victoria Summer School of Music will participate in orchestra, ensemble and solo numbers at a gala final concert Friday.

The event will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial Museum complex.

The school, now in its eleventh year, is under the direction of Clayton Hare, strings, and Dorothy Swetnam, pinao. Classes have been held on the campus of St. Michael's University School.

Many of the students, from the age of eight to university level, have been scholarship and medal winners in their home states and provinces.

Victoria pianists Louise Shepherd and Karen Johnson will take part in the final program in ensemble performance.

Among others to be heard will be Janet Fickinger and Ross Thompson of Calgary in Shostakovitsch's Concertino for Two Pianos and James McLennan of Portland, Ore., in Mendelssohn's violin concerto.

Vionists Laurence Leydier of Winnipeg, Josephine Scaletta of Brandon; violist Diane Gillespie from Oregon City and cellist Mark Kaiser, Vancouver, will also be featured, as well as pianist Mark Enbysk of Pendleton, Ore.

Among works to be performed by the string orchestra will be the Bach Double Concerto and a Vivaldi Concerto.

Tickets are available to the public at the door.

Tots Theatre Starts

Bastion and Centennial Squares will be meccas for children starting Monday and throughout August.

Every weekday at 12 noon in Bastion and 2 p.m. in Centennial Square, an assortment of talking and dancing animals and even a couple of houses in a song-and-dance act, will elaborate on the classic story of the three pigs.

This is the magical world of children's theatre where anything is possible. It's the presentation of Bastion Theatre, entertaining children in the squares for the fifth consecutive year.

The musical play is entitled Pigs in a Poke and was written by Vancouver playwright Allen Morgan with music by Vancouver's Marek Norman.

Featured in the cast are a number of 1973 Bastion theatre school graduates, including Hugh Peebles, Carole de Girolamo, Adrian Francis, Tim Gosley, Sherry McLaughlin, Liz James and Stephen Courtenay.

Other cast members who have attended the theatre school in past years are Robert Holliston, Rebecca Reeves, Paul Croy and Greg Clarke.

Recitals At UVic

Two outstanding recitals occupy next week's spotlight in the UVic Summer Music series.

On Tuesday the artistry and brilliance of pianist Robin Wood will be illuminated in a solo program which includes the Beethoven A Major Sonata, Opus 2, No. 2, the Schumann C Major Fantasy and works by Chopin and Debussy.

Thursday's recitalists are Catherine Young, soprano, and Winifred Scott, pianist, who will perform a program including lieder and opera by Brahms, Gluck, Mozart and Verdi as well as songs by Vivaldi, Ravel and Barber.

Both recitals are at 8 p.m. in the MacLaurin Auditorium.

ST. LAURENT HOME HISTORICAL SITE

COMPTON, Que. (CP) — The childhood home of Louis St. Laurent will be preserved as an historical site and opened to the public within a year, family members said.

The former prime minister died Wednesday.

Many of his books and photographs commemorating his political career, personal papers and mementos will be brought to this town, 90 miles east of Montreal, from his Quebec City residence and placed in a study.

Th rest of the house, built by Mr. St. Laurent's father, will be set up as it was during Louis St. Laurent's boyhood.

Family members said the property will be developed along the lines of the Sir Wilfrid Laurier house in Arthabaska.

COMING UP IN THE ARTS

Phoenix Players' repertory in the University of Victoria's Pheonix Theatre, is entering its final week. Tonight's performance will be the seriocomedy, The House of Blue Leaves, which will be repeated Wednesday and Saturday Aug. 4.

The musical play, The Fantasticks is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday, and the mime program will be given for the last time Friday. All performances begin at 8 p.m. tickets are available at the door.

On Sunday Victoria Summer Festival presents Victoria Symphony Orchestra with Laszlo Gati at Windsor Park, Oak Bay, 2:30 p.m. Monday-Wednesday-Friday sunset concerts continue, 6 p.m. and 7:15 p.m., in Heritage Court through Aug. 10.

At Greater Victoria Art Gallery, Sunday, the second Recording Industry Trust Fund chamber concert will present the trio, Cardo Smalley, viola, Lawrence de la Haye, clarinet, and Aurelle Biggs, piano.

Works to be performed include a Bruch trio, Mozart's Trio No. 7, a sonatina for clarinet and piano by Malcolm Arnold and Miniature Suite for clarinet and viola by Gordon Jacobs. Concert time is 3 p.m. and there is no charge other than the gallery's 50-cent admission to the current exhibition.

Bastion Hunts For Actress

A mature, versatile actress is being sought by director Peter Mannering for the fall and possibly winter-spring tours of Bastion Theatre's school shows.

Mannering says that the actress should preferably be a Victoria resident, free to work daily and able to travel for three weeks this fall.

Roles demand the ability to play a wide age range and both comedy and drama.

Anyone interested should contact Bastion at 382-4112 or 385-6123 for audition appointments Wednesday and Thursday.

Saturday Movies

Task Force (xxx), on 13 at 8. A 1949 story of naval aviation from 1921 on starring Gary Cooper, Jane Wyatt and Walter Brennan. This 2½-hour drama-documentary includes some actual films showing the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

A Countess From Hong Kong (xxx), on 8 at 9. Charles Chaplin wrote and directed this 1967 romantic comedy about a shipboard romance between a diplomat and a beautiful but penniless Russian stowaway starring Marlon Brando and Sophia Loren. Chaplin appears in a cameo as the ship's steward.

Torment (xxxx), on 9 at 9. Ingmar Bergman's 1947 story of a teen-ager's romance with a young widow, and the sadistic Latin teacher who plagues him continually.

Merrill's Marauders (xxxx), on 11 at 9. A splendid war film that tells the story of the famous outfit of Second World War soldiers who battled the enemy in Burma under excruciating conditions calling for the limit of human endurance. Filmed in 1962 with excellent performances by Jeff Chandler, Will Hutchins, Claude Atkins and Ty Hardin.

Hot Millions (xxxx), on 7 at 11. Peter Ustinov is at his roguish best and Maggie Smith is superb in this delightful British-made 1968 comedy about a high class swindling operation. An equally flawless supporting cast includes Bob Newhart, Karl Malden and Robert Morley. Recommended!

The Big Show (xx), on 12 at 11. A 1960 story of life under the Big Top focusing on the bitter rivalry betweeen two brothers of a high-flying trapeze family. A competent cast includes Esther Williams, Cliff Robertson and Robert Vaughn.

The Battle of the Villa Fiorita (xx), on 5 at 11:15. Maureen O'Hara, Rossano Brazzi and Richard Todd star in this 1965 English-male adaptation of the novel about a marital break-up. Sumptuous settings and the performances of two delightful British child actors highlight this otherwise routine soaper.

A Countess from Hong Kong (xxx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier for details.)

Repulsion (xxx), on 8 at 11:30. Not for the squeamish is this surrealistic 1965 English-made drama about a young woman's disintegration into madness. Directed by Roman Polanski and starring Catherine Deneuve and Yvonne Furneaux.

Castle of Evil (xx), on 13 at 11:30. Scott Brady and Virginia Mayo star in this 1966 melodrama about heirs to a Caribbean castle who fall victim to the supernatural powers of an evil housekeeper.

Lady in the Dark (xxxx), on 2 at 11:40. An excellent 1944 screen version of the wonderful Broadway musical — a splendid tuneful fantasy about a successful career woman under psychoanalysis. Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland star. If you have a color TV set, the dream sequences are especially worth seeing.

Windom's Way (xxx), on 4 at 11:45. An absorbing British-made 1958 drama about a doctor in a remote Malay village who tries to prevent the oppressed natives from going Communist. An excellent cast with Peter Finch and Mary Ure.

Earth vs. Flying Saucers (x), on 13 at 1. Routine sci-fi, made in 1956 and starring Hugh Marlowe and Joan Taylor.

Vacationers Return to Riches

EDMONTON — Mr. and Mrs. Albert Caouette "celebrated all night" Wesnesday when they returned from a three-week vacation and found they were $25,000 richer.

They were in California July 15 when a horse named Impressive Lady finished third in the Manitoba Derby in Winnipeg.

The couple did not know they had ticket on the horse until they returned to the city.

Mrs. Caouette understated her feelings:

"It's quite a surprise, I'm telling you."

MIAMI (UPI) — Mary Vecchio, 17, whose picture was published around the world three years ago kneeling over one of the victims of the Kent State shootings, was arrested Friday on charges of offering to commit prostitution.

Miss Vecchio, of nearby Opa-Locka, was held at the women's jail facility at Miami police headquarters in lieu of $500 bond, pending a magistrate's hearing today.

As a 14-year-old runaway, Vecchio turned up at Kent State University in Ohio where four students were killed when National Guardsmen opened fire during student disturbances May 14, 1970, following the invasion of Cambodia by American troops.

Her photo was taken kneeling beside one of the four slain students, Jeffrey Miller, with arms outstretched and mouth open in horror. The photo appeared on the cover of Newsweek magazine and on front pages of newspapers throughout the world.

NEW YORK — American actor Howard Keel was sued for $1 million Friday by a couple who charged that the actor struck them with a sword during a performance of the musical Man of La Mancha last year.

The suit was brought in Manhattan Supreme Court by Roddy and Maxine Richman of Smithtown, N.Y., who said they were members of the audience during Keel's performance in the production last Sept. 18 at the Westbury Music Fair on Long Island.

The Richmans said that while they were seated, Keel "negligently drew a sword, causing same to strike both plaintiffs."

CORONADO, Calif. — Bill Moxley, 69, a retired tire manufacturer, spent five years building a 41-foot trimaran, to fulfill his dream of sailing around the world. Two days after he sailed from San Diego with his two grandsons and another teen-ager as a crew, a Mexican fishing boat ran him down as his craft lay becalmed.

There was no insurance on the vessel. Moxley estimated it would take at least two years to rebuild it.

PARIS — Novelist Francoise Sagan says she is fleeing Paris to live in Ireland.

Sagan, who broke into the Paris literary scene at the age of 18 with her first novel, "Bonjour Tristesse," is now 38.

"My decision is final," she told a radio interviewer. "To protect myself, I must leave. I plan to set myself up in Ireland as soon as possible."

She said one of the reasons was a Paris newspaper report which suggested she had been drinking heavily. She said she is suing the newspaper.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Excerpt from letter received by the city planning department from Hugh Knoell Contractors, developers of a townhouse complex:

"This is to advise that the name of the private drive within our 77 East Missouri project has been changed from Watergate Circle to Fountain Circle at the request of several of our buyers."

Figures Show B.C. Really Booming

Shipments of manufactured goods in British Columbia totalled $1.86 billion during the first four months of 1973, up from $1.5 billion in the corresponding 1972 period. A strong showing by copper and forestry products accounted for most of the gains.

The statistics were contained in a report released Friday by the provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

The report backs up an estimate by department officials that the first six months of 1973 were the best in terms of economic development in the history of the province.

During the first five months, 989 million cubic feet of timber was delivered to B.C. mills, an increase of 34.3 per cent over the 736.5 million cubic feet in the corresponding 1972 period.

Copper production continues at a superlative pace. During the first three months of 1973, copper production totalled 162.7 million pounds, a 139 per cent increase over the 68 million pounds produced in the corresponding 1972 period. During the first two months of 1973, the indicated rate of growth had been 98 per cent.

Latest figures indicated a spectacular production year for coppper, accompanied by rising prices.

Other mineral production also shows increases in the first quarter.

Molybdenum production was up 27.7 per cent at 7.3 million pounds, zinc was up 9.4 per cent at 73 million pounds and coal was up 42.6 per cent (first four months) at 2.7 million tons.

In the first quarter, deliveries of crude oil to B.C. refineries totalled 13 million billion barrels, an increase of 11 per cent.

However, evidence of long-term difficulties in crude oil supply was a 7.8 per cent decline in production of crude oil in B.C. during the first three months when only 5.5 million billion barrels were produced, down from 6 million billion barrels.

Lead shipments were also down by 5.7 per cent to 56.2 million pounds.

All forestry indicators were up during the first part of 1973.

During the first quarter, lumber production rose 10.1 per cent and plywood production was up 8.6 per cent.

During the first five months, paper production was 919,000 tons, up 16.9 per cent over the corresponding 1972 period while pulp production was 2.4 million tons, up 17 per cent.

Value of building permits in the province totaled $331.6 million during the first four moths, up 29.6 per cent.

Housing completions during the first four months were up 18.7 per cent at 7,754 units. However, housing starts were down 9.2 per cent to 6,848, indicating that B.C.'s growth may not continue at its present pace in the last quarter of the year.

During the first four months, exports from the province totalled $1.3 billion, up 39 per cent over the corresponding 1972 period. At the same time imports were up 23.7 per cent at $657.3 million.

Unemployment in June was down to 6.1 per cent, compared to 7.7 per cent last June and 6.2 per cent in May of this year. Total number of persons unemployed in June was 63,000.

POLLUTION PURISTS RAPPED

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — There may be worse things than endangering species of whales and polluting rivers, a professor of economics told a Queen's University audience Friday.

Some of the things being done to the environment may be irreversible but they shouldn't automatically be condemned, said Dr. Harry G. Johnson, who left Toronto to become professor of economics at the London School of Economics, University of London, and at the University of Chicago.

"Maybe the best strategy is to live on whales and use them up. . . Maybe it's more important that people get to eat," he said.

If people want to swim in their rivers, they may have to shut down factories and lose their jobs in exchange.

He criticized affluent people who in a "purist" approach to pollution "demand that other people become poor so they can stay rich."

If factories close it doesn't affect them, he said, and some poorer people don't get richer because it interferes with the isolation of lakes and mountains as wealthy retreats.

BANK 'VICTORY' SOUR: MORRISON

Promised changes in the Bank Act are being trumpeted as a victory for British Columbia but primarily are designed to legalize Alberta's treasury branches, Social Credit MLA and financial critic Newell Morrison said Friday.

Morrison, who attended the three-day conference on Western economic opportunities in Calgary this week, told a press conference Alberta's "near-bank" may be technically illegal.

He didn't agree with speculation that B.C. will seek to take advantage of the promised amendments next year to own up to 25 per cent of the Bank of B.C.

"I think it more likely B.C. will buy into one of the big chartered banks, not the Bank of B.C.," he said.

Morrison said Premier Dave Barrett wants to take an equity position in any company to which the government lends money and this, he charged, would lead in many cases to a conflict of interest.

"It is like an entrepreneur borrowing from a competitor," he said.

He said Social Credit is not opposed to the government holding an equity in banks. but is opposed to banks taking an equity position in corporations.

Morrison said he was "surprised to find out how strangely quiet B.C. was in most of the conference." He singled out such subjects as agriculture, trade and industry.

In transportation, he said the federal-provincial agreement announced on the eve of the conference for development of railways in B.C. left the province with "no choice but to be quiet."

He said Barrett's brand of humor was "not well received. They don't understand his brand of clowning. Much of it was misunderstood. It was to the detriment of B.C. Clowning is not in place in a serious conference."

Index Compares Construction Cost Over Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — A construction cost index was introduced Friday by the British Columbia Construction Association setting May 1971 as the base equal to 100.

The index is broken down into the major categories of materials, labor and profits and each category is further divided with the greatest detail in materials.

Two-inch finished cedar, for example, has shown the greatest rise over the last two months, reaching 193.6 this month. Barn shakes are at 184.6 and reinforcing steel hit 178.9.

"Continuing cost increases in reinforcing steel were caused by lack of supply due to a labor dispute, settled since the survey material was obtained," the association said in a statement.

The association said two-inch common lumber prices have begun to decline — grain fir dropped to 157.2 in July from 170.9 last May, for example, as supply catches up with demand.

However, there is an impending shortage of felt and asphalt "and this is expected to be reflected in prices in the near future."

The association also said copper prices are expected to continue to increase, resulting in increases in mechanical and electrical materials.

In labor, the greatest increases have been recorded by terrazo workmen, up to 132.3.

The association said general contractors in non-residential construction in B.C. had an average profit level of 1.9 per cent in 1969, .9 per cent in 1970 and 1.4 per cent in 1971.

The construction cost index will be updated and published on a regular basis.

Audi Recall Under Way

TORONTO (AP) — Volkswagen of Canada is recalling 839 Audi 100-type sedans produced between last November and February because of possible brake defects, a spokesman said.

He said the campaign is being co-ordinated with a similar one in the United States where Volkswagen of America is recalling 12,500 of the sedans. Letters will have been sent to Audi owners concerned by this weekend.

The possible problem the company said, lies in the bolts which hold the front disc brake calipers together.

There are four bolts for each caliper and if one or more of them breaks, a brake fluid leak will result which might reduce or cause loss of front braking power.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria man was sentenced to four months in jail for being in possession of a stolen car found stripped and destroyed in the Prospect Lake area in January.

Bruce Broomfield, 25, address not known, was found guilty of being in possession of the car from May 10-Jan. 26.

Defence lawyer Doug Christie told Judge Edmond St. Jorre that Broomfield had been in custody for seven weeks and that his crime "arose mainly out of pressure from another individual."

Broomfield will serve a one-year probationary term after he has spent his time in jail.

Francis Edgar Hundt, 33, of White Rock, was fined $200 after he pleaded guilty to stealing a chrome strip off a parked car Thursday night.

Hundt took the strip from a car in the parking lot of a Douglas Street hotel and then put it on his own car and drove off, Prosecutor Peter Birkett told the judge.

Hundt said he was drinking at the time.

Barrie Brillinger, 19, of 901 Dunsmuir, was fined $75 for causing public mischief.

Judge St. Jorre was told Brillinger phoned the Esquimalt police station June 17 and reported his car stolen.

Investigation by police turned up the fact that one of Brillinger's friends who did not have a driver's licence had borrowed the car and then rolled it, causing extensive damage.

To avoid trouble for his friend, Brillinger reported the car stolen.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

'Dailiness' Cures Anxiety

By Rev. J. A. DAVIDSON

I have a friend who is an alcoholic. But for more than ten years now he has had his addiction under control. He has been able to do this through the spiritual disciplines of that great fellowship of healing, Alcoholics Anonymous.

In talks with him I have learned much about what perhaps can be called the principle of "dailiness."

He has explained to me that it is part of the secret of A.A. that its members do not waste time and energy fussing over tomorrow and next week and next year : they concentrate on maintaining their sobriety today, living a day at a time.

The principle of "dailiness" was put forth very forcefully by Sir William Osler, the great Canadian physician who was one of the makers of modern medicine.

"Now the way of life that I preach," he wrote in one of his essays, "is a habit to be acquired gradually and by long and steady repetition.

It is the practice of living for the day only, and for the day's work — life in day-tight compartments."

"Life in day-tight compartments": there is fundamental wisdom in that. But Osler was not unrealistic about it. His biography shows that he did have a concern for the future and often made long-term plans.

But his concern for the future was never an anxious concern. He never allowed his plans to become obsessions. He did live one day at a time — and that helps account for his life of notable achievement.

Jesus said this to his followers: "Do not be anxious about tomorrow; tomorrow will look after itself. Each day has troubles enough of its own."

He was not ruling out realistic prudence about the future, but he was warning against the kind of anxiety about the future that squeezes all the juice out of today's living.

To ignore tomorrow can be an evasion of responsibility, but to be overly-anxious about tomorrow, to be obsessed by the future, to be constantly fussing over one's future security and well-being, is a refusal to be fully human today.

Many of us will spend much time today, and use up much energy today, girding ourselves with mountain-climbing gear to prepare ourselves for attacking tomorrow's molehills.

We will also spend much time and energy regretting that we no longer experience many of the joys of yesterday, nursing resentments against persons we think harmed us yesterday, and wallowing in remorse over yesterday's failures and follies and sins.

Many of us tend to assume that today is merely the dress-rehearsal for tomorrow's big show: we must learn to accept the fact that each day is a main perform*ance in the drama of life.*

For what shall it profit a man if he have substantial savings and a splendid pension at age 62, and miss much of the goodness and grace of life in his thirties and forties?

Clergy Attacks Witchcraft

TORONTO (CP) — A brief letter, written in pencil on ordinary note paper, recently was shoved under the doorway of a United Church minister in nearby Brampton.

Rev. Gordon Williams said its message was simple, to the point and threatening — stop trying to save a young Brampton girl from witchcraft.

Mr. Williams, who a few *years ago shrugged off witch*craft and black magic as nonsense, thinks differently now.

He said in an interview that he has saved 25 to 30 girls from witchcraft and, as a result, has had his life threatened.

The plight of Mr. Williams is one of several examples cited by Sheila Gormely of Toronto Star in a story describing the apparent increase in witchcraft, black magic and Satanism among young persons in the Metropolitan Toronto area.

LINK WITH DRUG USE

The story says it's impossible to pinpoint the precise number of persons involved in such practices because many groups call for the death penalty for members talking about their involvement in witchcraft. But persons interviewed agreed that interest in all aspects of the occult has increased in the last two or three years. They also agree there is a direct link between witchcraft and the use of drugs.

Mr. Williams says he is convinced there are witches' covens operating throughout the Metro area. He has had six threatening letters.

He says he knows who sent the last one, concerning the Brampton girl but declined to name the person.

"We'll screw up her mind so much not even your God could help her," that note claimed. "She's now confused. And being used by your false lies. We'll reach her soon. She draws near."

Mr. Williams said the situation is serious, and puts some of the blame for it on today's churches.

"We have to be aware this is one of the solutions people are turning to because they've been failed in the churches."

TOLD OF SACRIFICES

Mike Anderson, an employee of an occult bookstore in Toronto and a self-proclaimed student of "all philosophies," says there are enough drug-deranged and psychotic persons pretending to be witches and Satanists that evil things might result.

Lloyd Johnston, a Pentecostal minister who operates a Toronto agency to help young persons with drug and emotional problems, said a young girl he helped frightened him so much with tales of sacrifices and witchcraft that he telephoned police.

He says he fears that "someone so deeply engrossed" in occult beliefs might be capable of performing an actual sacrifice.

Rev. Dub Putnam, another Pentecostal minister in Toronto, says "there is a demonic invasion like we've never seen before."

"People say they haven't heard about ritual murder in Toronto but it's here. But in no vast amount. Mostly it's animals."

Mr. Williams, the Brampton minister, would not produce any of the girls he claims to have saved from witchcraft.

Stop Smoking, or Leave, Witnesses Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — Jehovah's Witnesses have been given six months to give up smoking or be "disfellowshipped."

Larence Gray, district overseer in southern Ontario, told a mass meeting of Jehovah's Witnesses, congregated for a five-day Divine Victory assembly at Woodbine race track, that smoking is "a dirty, harmful habit."

Gray told the congregation that a smoker will be helped by church elders to quit the habit during the six months.

"But if he doesn't do it by then, we'll have to assume that if he is a servant of cigarettes, he can't be a true servant of Jehovah."

Witnesses place cigarettes in the same category as drugs since they can assume control over one's life, he said.

In his address, Gray also warned Witnesses of homosexuality among members.

Homosexuals will be counselled should they wish to reform but failure to do so will mean exile from their congregations, he said.

About 31,000 Witnesses have gathered so far at the assembly, which ends Sunday.

Fire Chases People Out Near Reno

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Women and children were evacuated from the small community of Rancho Haven early today as a 33,300-acre fire burned uncontrolled across desert sage and grass, authorities said.

A U.S. Forest Service spokesman said it was not known how many persons left the community but said the evacuees were from 12 families. Rancho Haven is about 20 miles north of here.

The spokesman said the men stayed behind to water down their homes and aid firefighters.

Three homes are reported threatened by the lightning-caused fire, which seriously burned a family of four Thursday as they attempted to flee the flames.

A 1,000-acre blaze six miles north of Virginia City and two timber fires in the Toiyabe National Forest also continued to burn out of control, officials said.

Untangling the Strawberry Runners

GARDENING
jack beastall

Strawberry runners are perplexing to home gardeners. The runners themselves are not so much of a problem as the conflicting advice from well-meaning friends.

As several gardeners have said: "One neighbor tells me to cut off all runners, while the other says I shall have no fruiting plants in two years unless I keep them."

Here we have a mixture of home garden and commercial practices. The commercial grower keeps a selection of his runners and replaces his plants frequently because the highest returns are considered to be from three-year-old plants under field conditions.

In the home garden frequent replacement of plants is not necessary. Well cared-for strawberry patches are still yielding good crops after 15 years, and we are told that one gardener has 10 carefully selected plants that provide all the berries needed by a family of five.

A strawberry plant quickly depletes the soil around its roots. The runners it produces are a means of placing young plants at a distance from the parent plant in richer soil.

Not all varieties of strawberries produce runners, nor do some of the hybrids grown today produce any great quantity of runners. The alpine types, with their small fruits and superb strawberry flavor, can only be reproduced by seed or by division to increase an exceptionally good plant.

In the runner-producing varieties it will be noticed by the observant gardener that plants which bear the least number of fruits always produce the greatest number of runners.

When the plants which form on these runners are saved, they also bear very few fruits, and the whole planting soon deteriorates. This condition can be found in many home gardens.

Rumors persist that cutting off runners kills the parent plants. Such statements are not based on facts. The production of runners and the ensuing runner plantlets is a drain on the parent plants. In the wild the parent dies as soon as the young become established.

Removing runners as soon as they appear in the home garden conserves plant strength. Any killing is caused by damage to the roots when the runners are carelessly cut with a spade.

When the need for a new planting is evident the best plan is to purchase certified plants when available in the spring. Rarely do we see plants for sale in the fall although August is the ideal planting time in the home garden.

This is because the roots of a strawberry plant die as soon as removed from the soil, and a complete new set has to be made after transplanting. Unless new roots form quickly, as they do in spring, heavy losses are experienced, especially under field conditions. Therefore it is difficult to get any commercial grower to lift plants in the fall.

However, August planting in a warm garden soil, followed by careful watering, has been quite satisfactory. Any plants washed out by heavy winter rains, or heaved by severe frost, can receive immediate attention in the home garden. Such attention is not possible on an acreage with thousands of plants.

The home gardener needing plants this summer from his own planting should first check for the plants producing the least number of runners. Select the two best runners on a plant not producing more than five, removing those not selected.

Left to its own devices each runner would produce plantlets every six to ten inches as it continues growth. Only the first plantlet to form is saved, the runner being severed a few inches beyond the plantlet.

The next step is to put some well rotted compost through a half-inch screen and mix with some coarse sand, then fill sufficient three-inch clay pots with the mixture, right to the top.

Sink the pots into the soil beside the parent plant, press a plantlet into each pot, holding securely with a "hairpin" of bent wire. A little water in each pot will be needed occasionally, and when roots are well established the runner connecting with the parent plant can be severed.

By late August, healthy young plants will be ready to set out. They are knocked from the pots and their undisturbed rootballs planted firmly into a previously prepared area that has had time to settle.

Strawberry plants are heavy feeders, but respond better to a soil high in humus (compost) than to artificial fertilizers. Add only bone meal at planting time. Remove all flowers the first season.

It is possible for a home gardener to build up a highly productive planting of fine flavored strawberries by selection from his present stock.

The work starts in spring with the making of a few dozen short stakes painted in three colors, some white, some red, and some black. Or plain stakes can be used to which three colors of plastic ties can be attached.

The first color (white) is placed beside those plants which make the best growth in spring. The second color (red) by the plants bearing the most flowers and fruits; the third color (black) goes beside the plants having berries of the best texture and flavor.

By the time runners appear some plants will have collected three colors indicating strong growth, good cropping and superb flavor. These are the plants from which two runner plantlets are selected, and grown on for a new bed.

Propagating by selection for a few years results in a collection of really fine plants that are well worth the space they occupy in the garden.

WORK FOR WEEK

Cuttings or layers of the various dianthuses including pinks and carnations can be taken during the next week. Get them rooted while the weather is warm and transplanted in September.

Also ideal time for planting fall crocus corms and the large bulbs of colchicums, which some gardeners call fall crocuses.

Prick out either into other flats or into a finely prepared piece of ground, the seedlings of biennials and perennials sown earlier. These will bloom next year if well grown now.

Cuttings of zonal and show pelargoniums taken now root easily in pots of sandy soil outdoors. Zonals (the zonal geraniums) make fine flowering plants if started now but they need growing all winter between 45 and 60 degs. F. indoors with good overhead light.

Onions will size up now. Have bulbs fully exposed and don't allow water to reach the roots or they will not ripen for keeping.

Shallots and garlic are treated similar to onions.

Water and thin out the newly sown vegetables to give every opportunity for growing well.

Federal Help For '78 Games Indicated

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1978 Commonwealth Games in Edmonton may receive federal assistance, treasury board president C. M. Drury indicates.

He told the Commons it is his personal opinion the government will be prepared to do for one part of the country what it did for another.

He was referring to remarks made earlier by Dan Hollands (PC—Pembina) and Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), who had said the Edmonton games should receive help as will the 1967 Summer Olympics at Montreal.

Prison Meals Defended

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The official in charge of food services for Cannadian penitentiaries said today he is amazed at the statement of a Toronto mutritionist that food served to prisoners at Millhaven penitentiary is lacking in nutritients.

Dr. Barbara McLaren former dean of food sciences at the Uniersity of Toronto, said her opinion was based on menus from 42 meals at the institution over a 12-day period.

Lack of proper nutrients could result in prisoners contracting anemia, night blindness, constipation, teeth problems, excess body fat and heart disease if prolonged over several years, she said.

However, W. L. Aikenhead, chief of food services for the penitentiary service, defended the standards of food served in all prisons.

"The meals have high protein content and each meal has to vegetables served with it," he said in a telephone interview from Ottawa. "It is a well-balanced diet."

He said that the Canadian penitentiary service followed the armed forces ration scale and consulted with the armed forces food experts.

Living Costs Beat Pay Hikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Average weekly pay for four million workers in private industry — nearly half the nation's work force — has risen almost $13 in the last year, but sharply rising living costs virtually wiped out the gain.

Latest figures from Statistics Canada showed Wednesday that the average weekly paycheck climbed $2.05 in May to $160.32 and was $12.94 a week above May, 1972.

But earlier reported figures on consumer prices showed living costs in May were 7.3 per cent higher than the previoius May, reducing the purchasing power of the average paycheck by $11.70 over the year.

That left the average worker with only $1.24 in additional purchasing power out of his annual $12.94 wage gain.

Living costs also went up by nearly one per cent in June, eroding paychecks even further. Exactly how much won't be known until June earnings figures are reported.

The May wage gain of $2.05 per week from April was more than half wiped out in the same month by a rise of seven tenths of one per cent in consumer prices that slashed $1,12 from the average paycheck's purchasing power.

The government figures on weekly earnings over workers in forestry, mining, manufacturing, construction, transportation, communications, trade, finance, insurance, real estate and service industries.

They do not include workers in government, agriculture, fishing, trapping, education or religious organizations.

The report also said there was a rise in average working hours of about two million employees in mining, manufacturing and consturction.

The increase was from 37.0 to 37.4 hours. Average hourly pay in these industries remained at $4.84 in May, it added.

The report on average weekly earnings by province now are: Newfoundland $144.04; Prince Edward Island $112.39; Nova Scotia $137.29; New Brunswick $130.90; Quebec $152.84; Ontario $166.48; Manitoba $145.61; Saskatchewan $141.30; Alberta $163.55; British Columbia $178.75;

Camp Latrine Duty All Part of Karma

By JUDY KLEMESRUD

STROUDSBURG, Pa. — "Uh-oooooooooo!" It was 4:30 a.m., and the haunting wail of a conch echoed thrugh the Sivananda Yoga Camp in the Pocono Mountains near here. Yes, Poconos — not Himalayas. It was time to get up and meditate.

Soon, 16 orange-clad swamis and their 11 blue-jeaned guests stumbled sleepily to the camp's meditation room in an old stone farmhouse, the camp's headquarters.

They sat cross-legged on the floor and stared at a flickering candle in the darkened room. Now and then they chanted "Om" together. Someone read from the Bhagavad Gita, and then the guests were sent out to weed the garden for an hour.

Yoga camps such as this one are the latest in the trend toward specialized summer camps.

At the Sivananda camp, there is not much stress on the word "vacation." Guests who come to the ashram (camp) expecting to spend most of their time meditating and doing hatha yoga (exercises) soon learn — usually to their surprise — that they spend even more time doing karma yoga (work at the camp.

This is a good way for the guests to help find their innerselves, the swamis say. But it also results in frequent one-day stays by guests who leave after they learn their chores will include cleaning toilets.

It is also weeding gardens, scrubbing floors, cooking, and carrying cement blocks up the hill to the partly-built "Living Temple."

"I don't even weed my own yard," said Mrs. Grace Gudikunst, a 52-year-old Pittsburgh housewife who was a recent guest at the camp.

But Mrs. Gudikunst stayed for two weeks, even though she was slapped with a "silence" soon after her arrival. She couldn't speak to anyone for several days because the swamis had decided that the entries in her daily journal, which all guests must keep, were "dishonest." They said she didn't write down her "innermost thoughts."

"I was hurt and a little embarrassed," Mrs. Gudikunst admitted. "I broke down and cried, which I haven't done in eight years. I thought what I had written was honest. After all, I'd never even kept a journal before."

But for every Grace Gudikunst there is a Patty Cooper, 21, who calls her three-month stay at the camp "the best thing that ever happened to me.

"I feel I've found the experience I was reading about in books in school."

The yoga camp is headed by a "divine mother," Swami Lakshmy Devi, who was once Mrs. Kaylee Rosenberg of the Bronx, the mother of three. The buxom, silver-haired, 49-year-old swami, whose husband Simon, an office decorator, visits on weekends, formerly worked as a welder and a dress designer. Then one day in 1960, she came across an advertisement for a book on yoga. She bought it, and began her immersion in the subject.

Three years later, while walking down a New York City street, Mrs. Rosenberg received "revelations" from Swami Sivananda, a Hindu monk and physician who had died earlier that year. Following these revelations, she bought the 34-acre camp for $25,000 in 1968 and named it after her guru.

Most guests are between the ages of 17 and 30, she said, and stay an average of two weeks. (Rates are $11 a day per person, or $7 a day for students.) Past guests have included college students and dropouts, professors, priests, rabbis, housewives, Girl Scouts and senior citizens.

There is no formal daily schedule at the camp. Instead, events are planned according to the swamis "vibrations."

There are often more swamis at the camp than there are guests. (The camp's total capacity is 80.) Almost all of the swamis were ordained within the last few years and as a result, Swami Lakshmy has been criticized in yoga circles for "making too many swamis."

She shrugs off such criticism by saying that "swamis are born, not made — they were ordained at their birth, because of their previous incarnations."

Single male swamis take vows of celibacy, and are called "brahmacharis." They sing about their state in a rock song, called "The Brahmachari Blues," one of the show-stoppers of a surprisingly professional yoga folklore show given every Thursday night for the public on an outdoor stage at the camp.

Implanted Drug Sickens Drinker

CHESTER, England (CP) — Doctors at an addiction-treatment centre here have reported partial success in weaning chronic alcoholics away from the bottle by means of a surgically-implanted drug.

The drug, disulfiram, was buried in pill form under the abdominal skin of 47 patients and dissolved into the bloodstream over a period of six months.

It caused the patients to feel extremely ill whenever they imbibed and most of them stayed on the wagon, for some time at least, after the drug had disappeared from their bodies.

Research is continuing to determine optimum dosages and whether regular implanatations would be a practical treatment for general use.

She Has Moses Touch

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Magdalena Krueger and the late Grandma Moses have much in common, not least the fact that they both embarked on artistic careers late in life.

At 86, Magdalena has been painting for only 19 months and already her work is reflecting the attractive simplicity of the internationally famous American master of primitive art.

An avid gardener, Magdalena started painting to bring the vivid colors of her garden into her home. She draws her patterns freehand and transfers them onto silk, painting directly from the tube.

"I've never had an art lesson; I just paint for fun," says Magdalena, a white-haired great-grandmother. "I like to see flowers blooming in the garden—that's the place for them. I don't like to see them cut for indoor floral arrangements."

Thus, the only way she can bring her blossoming garden inside "is to decorate my walls with flower paintings," she says. "And I thought I may as well paint them myself."

Painting is only a part of her artistic flair. Her two late husbands were both carpenters and much of their craft rubbed off on Magdalena.

She has built her own bed, several pieces of lawn furniture and a wheelbarrow.

Probably her finest piece of woodwork is a miniature grandfather clock, operated electrically, with musical chimes.

"It is the reflection of a youthful dream, she says. "I once saw a grandfather clock that chimed music on the hour. It's been my dream to make one."

Her primary love, inherited from country living, is her garden. During the summer, she has little time for anything but her flowers.

Doing The Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Happy news for quality-loving Victorians . . .

If ever there was a happy marriage . . . it should be that recently contracted between Roy Imports and W & J Wilson . . . A modern marriage wherein both partners retain their own individualities, names and establishments . . . while joining forces for their . . . and your . . . good! . . . This all came about because, after 24 years at 817 Government St. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Herb Roy were forced by ill-health to retire from business . . . But fortunately for Victoria, the business they built will continue on . . . Mr. Roy's contacts with overseas suppliers will be maintained by Marlene Thompson who's been with Wilson's for 22 years . . . and will be co-ordinating the buying . . . thus bringing to Roy's that unique W & J Wilson flavor . . . mixed with the excellent quality and down-to-earth prices which have always distinguished Roy Imports . . . Now wouldn't you call that a happy marriage? . . . We've been assured that Roy's will continue their policy of selling the best quality at lowest possible prices . . . and continued maintenance of these low prices explains their preference for a cash or cheque . . . rather than charge account . . . business . . . Mr. Roy's staff of Ann Green, Lilly Brolly and Mary Colbourne will continue to do everything possible to make shopping at Roy Imports a pleasant and happy experience . . . Roy's policy of offering the best quality at a fair price is similar to that of W & J Wilson . . . and the new management would like you to drop in soon and compare or yourself . . . Roy Imports, 817 Government St., 384-4737.

Fall colors are mostly pale, with interest in bright red, spruce or loden green, and all shades of blue.

Keep your eye on Standard Furniture . . .

We've told you how Standard Furniture's buyers have been spending their time these past months travelling around the world in search of the new . . . the unusual . . . the beautiful . . . in furnishings and household accessories . . . Now the travellers are home . . . and some of the things they've bought are starting to come in to bring ever more excitement to the big store on Yates St.! . . . Can this really be Victoria? we asked ourselves when we looked at these new arrivals . . . More like San Francisco or New York! . . . Take the butterfly chair for instance . . . an expanse of soft suede set on a frame . . . a real conversation piece if ever we saw one! . . . Same thing applies to the chair with striped duck cover . . . stretched on a chrome frame, with leather straps forming the arms . . . Some very interesting squatty chairs . . . cushy foam rubber with red nylon covering . . . are shaped in such a way that they can be used singly or combined into sofas and groupings of any size or shape . . . Coffee and end tables with ceramic tile tops in soft colors blend beautifully with any style of furniture . . . There are attractive color prints mounted on plaques . . . great idea for doing up a wall inexpensively . . . Interesting lamps with simple, clean lines . . . in vibrant colors and contemporary designs for exciting illumiation . . . So keep an eye on Standard . . . a great place to browse! . . . Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5111.

Most popular furs in the Montreal showings were the long-haired variety.

F is for fur and for flattery . . .

Fur collars are back in style . . . Not measly inconspicuous little furs, either . . . but big luxurious collars that you can sink yor chin into and feel like the Snow Queen in person when winds blow chill . . . The new fur-collared coats which Wilson's have just lately received are stirring up a lot of interest . . . There are several gorgeous tweeds . . . wrap around styles with patch pockets and tie belts . . . and big fox or raccoon collars . . . What's more, they're interlined . . . to take you cozily through the worst that winter can offer . . . If, by some chance, a long-haired fur is not for you . . . there's a very smart smooth brown wool with a mink collar . . . a black coat with black diamond mink . . . and another brown wool with lustrous beaver . . . A number of the new Hettemarks raincoats have fur collars too . . . With warm quilted linings, they're really all-weather coats and could be worn comfortably all winter long . . . laughing at rain and . . . heaven forbid! . . . snow, should it come . . . keeping out the wind, and making you look dashing . . . All at the same time . . . Still on the subject of coats . . . do be sure to look at the Aquascutum reversible coats . . . Colorful, closely-woven tweed on one side . . . raincoat material on the other . . . These are the most practical coats a woman could possibly own in our Victoria climate . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Your introduction to cruising . . .

It's just possible that you've never been on a cruise . . . You think it might be fun . . . but are not quite sure how you'd feel about life aboard ship . . . Well, here's how you can get a "sample" . . . a 2-day fun cruise aboard P & O's beautiful 30,000 ton "Arcadia" . . . departing Vancouver at 7 p.m. on Sept. 5th and returning early morning of the 7th . . . Even if you're an old hand at cruising we think you'll enjoy this little holiday . . . a break in the day-to-day routine before the fall season gets under way . . . The thing about this "mini" cruise . . . fare for which starts at $65 per person . . . you get a real taste of life aboard a great liner . . . While all sorts of parties and entertainment are planned . . . you can be just as quiet and relaxed as you please! . . . You can shop in the Arcadia's two shops full of exciting things at attractive shipboard prices . . . Brush up on your dancing at the ship's free dance classes . . . See late-run movies . . . and of course, dine in the grand tradition and be absolutely pampered to death by the attentive crew! . . . When the Arcadia throws off her moorings the evening of Sept. 7th there'll be confetti and streamers . . . the pop of champagne corks . . . the whole hoopla that gets any cruise off to such an exciting start . . . So why not plan now to take this introduction to cruising? . . . Paulin's will be happy to book you on this fun cruise . . . but you shouldn't wait too long because it's being booked up fast! Paulin Travel, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Simplicity ran through every fall collection at the American designer showings.

Something unique in lamps . . .

We thought some of them were Tiffany lamps . . . the hanging lamps we saw at the Lighthouse on Monday . . . but it turned out they're made not of glass but of capiz shells laid into brass . . . beautifully hand-crafted in the Philippines . . . These shells diffuse light in a very pleasing way . . . they're extremely durable and light weight . . . take a lot of heat . . . Some, as we said, are colored . . . others in their natural white state . . . and the lamps come in various shapes and sizes . . . some very modern, others of the Tiffany type . . . We really think these shell lamps are unique . . . and would add a great deal to the attractiveness of a dining area or hallway . . . They're relatively inexpensive too, when you consider the excellence of workmanship that has gone into them . . . Lots of new and interesting items . . . for your own home or for gifts . . . are on display at the Lighthouse . . . we saw very attractive metal wine racks to hang on a wall . . . great gift for an oenophile! . . . Just for fun . . . to bring a touch of whimsy to a room and fascinate the onlooker . . . are several unusual mobiles . . . one of silver balls weighted at the bottom and hanging from a spring . . . others that stand on a table or whatnot . . . Fun for the kitchen . . . brightly-colored thermometers, canister sets and trays . . . with stylized flower designs . . . Plus dozens of other "finds" at . . . The Lighthouse, 1005 Broad St., 383-6633.

Black is beautiful . . .

Saw some very smart new formals for fall at Charmante's this week . . . all black, as it happens . . . which made us reflect that for evening wear black can certainly be the epitome of chic! . . . One is a sinuous black crepe with an organdy jacket . . . black and white striped and polka dotted banding around jacket collar and cuffs, and set into the dress waist . . . Another black dress is a knit with wide multi-colored leather stripes around the skirt, and ribbed, long-sleeved top with stand-up collar and frog fastening . . . A third black wool formal was hand-woven in Finland . . . has fringed cape sleeves and a wide black and wide design banding the skirt . . . All three of these dresses are eye-catchers! . . . Speaking of Finland . . . some very pretty daytime skirts are from that country too . . . A red one has a navy and white band around the skirt and belt . . . while a tangerine is fringed around the bottom . . . More of these Finnish skirts are expected soon . . . Several new knit skirts with a raised stripe and inverted pleating all around looked very Italian to us . . . although we learned they're made here . . . There are ribbed mock turtleneck tops to match . . . Both are sold separately . . . but teamed up together they make a very smart outfit which you could wear on cooler days right now . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 385-1543.

Getting married?. . . . Do your friends a favor . . .

If we've heard it once we've heard it a dozen times in the past few years . . . people bewailing the fact that their carefully-chosen wedding gifts have been returned by the bride . . . Brides equally distressed at having to return gits which were duplicated . . . or which they couldn't possibly use! . . . All this can be avoided, of course, if the bride-to-be plays it smart and registers at Eaton's Gift registry . . . Eaton's being a store that sells everything you could conceivably want . . . in every conceivable category . . . you need only register your preferences . . . then let all interested persons know what you've done . . . Your family and friends can then consult the register which is kept right up to date on what's already been purchased . . . Ergo, no duplications . . . nothing that isn't "just right" or doesn't fit in with your tastes and lifestyle! . . . Your friends will bless you for your thoughtfulness, we promise you! . . . So if there's a wedding in your future . . . register at Eaton's . . . And do be sure to fill in a coupon which will get you . . . completely free of charge . . . a Bridal Shower Gift Pack chock-full of brand-name products worth 18.00 . . . Every bride who fills in a coupon gets one of these . . . without any strings attached! . . . Eaton's Gift and Bridal Registry, 382-7141, loc. 373.

dear abby

Clear the Courtroom

DEAR ABBY; Several months ago, while my husband was out of town, a man broke into my apartment and attacked me sexually. He had a knife and I was terrified so I made no effort to stop him.

Now my husband is home. Two weeks ago I received word that they caught the man, and I am subpoenaed to testify. It was dark and the man wore a mask, so wouldn't recognize him if I saw him. This man assaulted several other women, so I am not the only witness available.

I can't see what possible good my testimony would do. I am a very nervous person and this whole thing has upset me terribly.

My husband knew that a man had broken in, but I didn't tell him any of the details as I didn't want to upset him.

Abby, I don't want my husband in the courtroom, but he insists upon being there. Is there some way I can get out of testifying? It's not just having my husband there, it's having to talk about what happened in front of other people in a courtroom. I'm sorry now I called the police.

I'm 21, and should probably have a more mature attitude, but I can't help how I feel. Please help me. — No name, Please.

DEAR NO NAME: You must appear in court when subpoenaed or you could be cited for contempt of court. You can, however, ask the prosecutor to ask the judge to clear the courtroom while you are testifying. Unless the defendant's attorney objects to this procedure (and he is not likely to object in a sex case) the court will be cleared of everyone except the judge, the lawyers, the witnesses, and the defendant. That should take care of your problem.

DEAR ABBY: When travelling by plane, I invariably get the seat directly in front of a child who repeatedly kicks the seat in front of him. His mother can be sitting right beside him, but she seems unconcerned. Dirty looks don't help.

Should I ask the mother to please tell her child to stop kicking me, or ask the child to please stop it? Irked.

DEAR IRKED: Ask the stewardess to handle it and you'll have no kick coming.

DEAR ABBY: You told a mother whose daughters needed to wear bras but refused to "drop the whole thing." Well, if they don't wear bras, that's exactly what will happen. the "whole thing" will drop.

For proof, one need only to look at pictures of the women in African tribes who never wore brassieres. The American Medical Society even came out with a statement saying that the ligaments which hold the breasts firm and erect will stretch unless properly supported, and once the breasts sag, the damage is permanent.

I have put that message into verse:

"I think it is scandalous
That things should be so pendulous.
If a woman's a rag, a hank of hair, and a bone
Let the 'rag' be a bra — for better muscle tone." — Reader.

CONFIDENTIAL to "Wondering": You are wondering with good reason. If two Rh negative parents have an Rh is the mother of the father is positive baby, then one must question whether the mother the father.

WHY NOT is the stock reply Bell Canada long-distance operator Nersus Markarian, 26, of Toronto gives when asked about his work. Bell spokesmen say men are hired for the job "because society has become more realistic" with less categorizing of jobs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Sunday, July 29

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Now you can make wishes become realities. You get proverbial second chance. Horizons expand and limitations become fewer — be confident, optimistic. Sagittarian is in picture. Plan ahead and sharpen learning process.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Despite some obstacles, you make headway toward goal. Key now is steady pace. Many claims, perhaps heven some threats, will be hurled your way. But you have momenttum and can proceed. You pick up allies along the way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Changes dominate. You may feel that events are moving too quickly. Virgo person plays prominent role. Check notes. Put ideas on paper and protect your interests. Get sufficient rest. Nerves tend to "scream."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money, luxury items, products which make home living more comfortable — these are featured. Budget could take a temporary beating. Taurus, Libra persons are in picture. You will be happier because family member is pleased.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Publicity could accompany efforts. You gain favor in quarters which previously were indifferent. You can settle differences with mate, partner. Pisces, Virgo persons may be featured. Look beneath surface.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept responsibility. One close to you confides indiscretion. Your "responsibility" is to be mature. Don't cast first stone. What appears a setback will boomerang in your favor. Play cards close to chest.

LIBRA (Septt. 23-Oct. 22): Young person deserves attention but you also have right to your own life. Know it and be sure others are aware of it, too. A relationship is tested. If it survives, it is apt to be permanent. Don't be a slave to habit pattern.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Fresh viewpoint aids in overcoming obstacles. One in position of authority is willing to listen and test. Exude confidence. Expressing doubt now would be an error. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Journey or vacation plans that had been postponed may now be reactivated. Budget question remains but can be solved. Aquarian might play key role. Change of scenery proves beneficial. Family member will understand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have more room — there is freedom to express and examine. What was a drawback becomes a subject for humor. Be willing to laugh at past foibles. Money discussion brings results. Mate or partner is involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Check diet resolutions. You may be going to extremes without realizing it. Adhere to sensible rules. Throw out concepts based on sensational fads. You may be "told off" by one close to you — but the situation is ultimately humorous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Undercover work may be featured. You get information but it is sub rosa, obscured, disguised. You will have to do some unraveling. Nothing can be taken for granted. Talkative individual is willing to cooperate.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher, an individual willing to illustrate and dramatize in order to get points across. New start is indicated in August — and you generally draw Aquarius and Leo persons to you. You are considerate, sensitive and high-principled. Your nerves can be a problem and so can diet.

Forecast for Monday, July 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis is on change, children, creative pursuits. In rush to accomplish, don't overlook important details. Aquarian could figure prominently. Personal magnetism flows. Your ability to sell is accentel. Utilize showmanship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight now is on basic issues, family, home and property. Matters are concluded. Decisions are finalized. Older individual lends benefit of experience. Study written material, including lease, other contract.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be visiting, answering queries from neighbors and relatives. Whatever the situation, main emphasis is likely to be on your lifestyle. Your sense of humor and curiosity serve as valuable, twin allies.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money deal needs additional examination. You could be victim of wishful thinking. Collect data and analyze it. Pisces, Virgo persons could figure in important ways. Past debt will be repaid.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you can successfully take initiative. Highlight original approach. Be independent in thought, action. Aquarian could play key role. Shake off any tendency to doubt or fear. Get off sidelines and into the game!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What had been a pressing, persistent problem is resolved. You get rid of burden. Much that occurs is behind the scenes. This could involve group, club, hospital or institution. Dark area receives benefit of greater light.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You have more friends than might be apparent. This can now be demonstrated. You also have reason to celebrate. You get new deal. You obtain chance to show off creative talents. Enjoy yourself. No need for guilt feelings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obstacle actually is a challenge — you can meet it and succeed. Aquarius and Leo persons may be involved. Accent is on career, ultimate goal, civic duties, relationships with professional superiors. Follow through on hunch.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides now with learning, travelling, planning for future, perceiving potential. You move and revise. You satisfy curiosity. Gemini individual poses provocative question.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Details concerning money transaction are more important than might be imagined. Protect your interests. One who controls cash flow may become selfish. You have allies who, at present, are maintaining low profile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent is on public relations, a comprehension of legal requirements. Consult expert. Defend your rights. Let others take first step. You do best now as an observer. Gather information. Construct plan.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain valid hint from Aquarius message. Maintain moderate pace; avoid extremes. Reconcile differences with family member. Harmony at home now is of paramount importance. Taurus, Libra persons are likely to be featured.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor, a love of life — and food. September is likely to be a travel month. You attract many born under Sagittarius and Gemini. You are expressive, artistic and have tendency to try doing too much at once. You have gift of being able to make people laugh, especially during moments of crisis.

Sleepwear Laws Effected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manufacture of flammable children's sleepwear, blamed for more than 300 infant deaths and up to 6,000 serious injuries in the United States each year, are prohibited effective today by federal regulations.

During the last year the garment industry has been permitted to produce children's pajamas, nightgowns and robes that did not comply with safety standards provided warning labels were attached.

Although flammable sleepwear produced before the deadline may continue to be marketed, starting Saturday all new garments must meet flame-resistant standards written by the commerce department and policed by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Diapers are exempt from the standards.

In Ottawa, Dr. R. D. Bennett, chief of consumer affairs textile flammability branch, said Canada has had standards governing flammability of children's sleepwear since November, 1971.

The Canadian standards are not quite as stringent as the new regulations imposed in the United States.

"But our standards give adequate protection," Bennett said in an interview.

"No treatment known will give 100 per cent protection against fire, unless it is steel or asbestos."

The Canadian standards require fabrics used for children's sleepwear—up to size 6x—to either be made or be treated to retard fire to a specific rate, he said.

The Canadian standards were written to "balance off" other factors, such as higher costs, discomfort and so on, he said.

Fabrics that are treated with fire resistant materials often are uncomfortable and harsher to the skin, he said. These factors have to be considered.

Canada has not kept figures on injuries and deaths related to fire and fire resistant sleepwear, but Canadian deaths and injuries were believed reduced after the introduction of the standards.

Northern Affairs Committee To Take Wives on Business

OTTAWA (CP) — There was snickering in the corridors of Parliament two years ago when some members of the Commons northern affairs committee tried to take their wives on a government plane flying overseas.

But in these days of women's lib no one seems amused that at least five wives will fly with their husbands on a government-chartered aircrafft for visits to western national parks and the Canadian North starting Aug. 23.

The 19-member committee got approval from the Commons two weeks ago to travel and to take with them "appropriate staff."

After some debate at a closed meeting the members agreed that those who wished could take their wives along.

Among the holdouts was Len Marchand (L — Kamloops-Caribou), the parliamentary assistant to Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

"This is a working trip and we don't want to give the impresion that it isn't," Marchand said in an interview.

Ian Watson (L — Laprarie) and Alexandre Cyr (L — Gaspe) disagree. Both plan to take their wives. They say the long parliamentary session has given them no chance to vacation with their families.

The government will pick up the tab for the charter but MPs will have to pay the wives' hotel and meal expenses.

The committee wants to sound out native spokesmen in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon on their feelings about proposed oil and gas pipelines.

Arrest Out For Friend

LONDON (CP) — Police made no arrest after a youth was stabbed with a broken whisky glass and thrown 17 feet over a balcony in a West end pub. A police spokesman said: "We are taking no action because this was a dispute between friends."

Rotary Funds For Impaired

Victoria Rotary Club presented a cheque for $1,400 to Cedar Lodge in Cobble Hill at a meeting Thursday at the Empress Hotel

The lodge is a rehabilitation and education centre for neurologically impaired children. The money will be used to purchase video tape equipment for the children.

Cool oven is a treat for summer cooks

Pre-Packaged Food Helps No-Bake Pie

By MARY MOORE

You doubtless have guessed that I am mildly suspicious of many of our so-called convenience foods. I enjoy making everything from scratch. But when summer is here prepackaged foods come into their own.

I have made a Blueberry Lemon Pie that does not require baking which will be a great boon for summer cottagers. It calls for packaged vanilla wafers for the crust and packaged lemon pie filling. I was agreeably surprised with its popularity with my guests and staff and me.

BLUEBERRY LEMON PIE
(deep 9 inches)
(deep 9 inches)

Abcut 24 1½-inch vanilla wafers
one 4-oz. pki. lemon piefilling
2 egg yolks
½ cup sugar (first amount)
2 cups cold water juice of ½ lemon
2 egg whites
2 tbsp. sugar (second amount)
1 pt. (2 cups) fresh blueberries rinsed and drained
1 cup whipping (32 per cent) cream, whipped

Prepare pie filling first by mixing thoroughly contents of package with the egg yolks, sugar (first amount) and ¼ cup of the water. Now stir in remaining 1¾ cups water and cook stirring with wire whip until thick and smooth. Stir in lemon joice. Cool to room temperature.

Use the whole wafers to line bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate, breaking some in thirds to fill empty spaces.

Beat egg whites until stiff with the 2 tablespoons sugar. Fold into cooled lemon filling along with 1 cup of the blueberries. Pour carefully into wafer-lined pie plate. Chill thoroughly. At serving time pipe or spoon whipped cream in attractive concentric circles on top, spooning remaining blueberries between circles. Serve this pie on the same day as it is made.

A lovely, easy, Canadian summer dessert.

Don't know what to do during your vacation or where to spend a stimulating weekend? Up to the end of September you can join an interesting tour at the Chalk River Nuclear Laboratories in Ontario. The tours take place seven days a week and there is no charge.

These laboratories, located on the Ottawa river, are part of Atomic Energy of Canada, a Crown comporation. They are almost a small town in themselves. Some 2,500 people are employed there and the plant includes a hospital, a fire department and a large library.

The four page folder Visit The Public Information Centre stresses that everybody is welcome at the Centre. In a 100-seat theatre, films are regularly shown and visitors can look at models and informative panels. However, choldren under 12 are not allowed past this point.

Another illustrated folder Chalk River Nuclear Laboratories shows the lay-out of the plant and talks about the work done at Chalk River and the complex equipment used to accomplish it.

Write to: Public Relations Office, Chalk River Nuclear Laboratories, Chalk River, Ontario. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Dream Homes Red Nightmare

By VINCENT BUIST

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Russian dream of a home of one's own can become a nightmare—all because the Soviet building year ends in mid-winter.

In the Ukrainian town of Kharkov a delighted new homeowner approached the entrance of his house, but then recoiled in dismay.

He clutched a key, but there was no front door to open. He stepped inside and an icy blast from the steppes hit him.

The windows were open and he was unable to close them. The temperature on this Decembed day was 30 below and any thought of inhabiting the new home was out of the question.

His was not the only example in the Kharkov area of incomplete or shoddily built homes.

Others in neighboring new blocks discovered there were no doorsteps.

In one house a proud new owner thought everything was fine until he plugged in a lamp. Nothing happened—he discovered there was no power linkup to the wall sockets.

Elsewhere a man and his wife found a bathtub in the bathroom—but it had been cemented in at an angle "almost lying on its side," the distraught owner complained.

Many owners of new homes completed in a rush to beat the Dec. 31 deadline find it impossible to occupy them immediately, Moscow's Literary Gazette wrote in a survey of Soviet home building.

"In homes like this completed in winter many occupiers could only move in six weeks later, when repairs and renovations to new homes were completed."

One Kharkov occupier told Literary Gazette: "From April until August, I was repairing my new flat. I had to pay 475 rubles (about $525) for repairs to patch up the home that was supposed to be new."

Writers in Literary Gazette urged the Soviet building industry to change the work timetable.

"Most houses are aimed at being completed by Dec. 31, so that the year's plan is fulfilled. But the period for the house building should be changed—to June or July.

"Houses should be built in the warm, dry months. Summer is easier for building materials, timber for example, and concrete mixes better. Houses can dry out."

It said that the Dec. 31 deadline for handing over homes was the most ruinous day of the Soviet year.

MORE FOOD FLIGHTS

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada will extend its food airlift in the drought-striken sub-Sahara zone of Africa for another two weeks to about the middle of August, the Department of National Defence announced Friday.

The two-week extension was in response to an urgent request from the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the department said.

Canada has already donated $6.8 million in food aid for the relief of the famine conditions in West Africa.

New Yorkers Fight Back, Muggers Find It Harder

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Nine years ago, a young woman was brutally stabbed to death as she walked home at night in a prosperous section of New York. At least 38 of her neighbors heard her scream for help as the murderer attacked her but not one even ventured to call the police.

The murder of Katherine (Kitty) Genovese became the most famous example of the reluctance of New Yorkers to "become involved" in any crime-related incident.

The Genovese slaying was followed by continuing reports of young toughs beating and robbing people on the streets and in the subways while bystanders looked on passively.

But suddenly, there has been a rash of incidents in which bystanders have become enraged by crimes around them and quickly responded by turning on the criminals. In three widely-publicized cases within a week, the criminals were trapped by the crowds before being rescued by the police .

City officials have welcomed the incidents as proof that New Yorkers still care about each other but some including the city's police commissioner, appear concerned that the tide might grow into vigilante justice.

"As soon as someone gets a bullet between the eyes, that's going to be the end of it," said one police official .

The three ran from the scene but a crowd followed them. The muggers jumped into a cab to escape but a growing mob surrounded the cab and tried to bring out the three. The muggers locked the doors and waited until police arrived and rescued them.

Research Comes First, Then Food From Ocean

By KEN POLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Exploiting the food resources of the oceans' deep ranges to feed a hungry world is a popular theme with science-fiction writers.

J. Robert Weir, chairman of Canada's Fisheries Research Board, feels the world is not at that stage yet. He suggests, however, that money spent on research now may save the world grief in the future.

"The kind of information I'm talking about, to get it and to start to adapt it to the point where we'll be reaping the benefits, will take a considerable number of years," he said in an interview.

"If you wait until it becomes critical, you haven't enough time to get the information to apply it and you're in real trouble; secondly, you may have lost a lot of valuable species in the meantime."

The Fisheries Research Board, an advisory group which does no research itself, is part of the environment department's fisheries and marine branch.

WEIR
. . . avoiding grief

CANADA RICH

Dr. Weir says Canada is "one of the richest fishing areas in the world." The $106.5 million budgeted by the government for its fisheries and marine program in 1973-74 bears this out.

The prime objective of the program, as outlined in the department's 1973-74 estimates, is:

"To promote the management and sustained utilization of the marine and aquatic renewable resources of the nation, compatible with a concern for the quality of the environment."

Dr. Weir, dean of agriculture at the University of Manitoba for 15 years before joining the federal administration in 1965, is keenly aware that application of land-farming practices to the oceans would give Canada a head start toward achieving the government's goals.

"If you're going to grow fish intensively, then you want the fastest-growing, most-productive species—this means selection and breeding the same as we do in animals.

NOT ENOUGH KNOWN

"You've got to have the very things you have in agriculture: breeding and selection, management, feeding and disease control.

"Much of this we don't know too much about. When you come to the marine side of it, we're faced with management of the continental shelf. This is a big task, an expensive one, but we'll have to have the information if we do it."

The board, celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, has a substantial fleet of vessels at its disposal through its various agencies.

It also has research stations at St. Andrews, N.B., Nanaimo, B.C., Halifax and the University of British Columbia. All these deal with the marine ecology while a new station at Winnipeg studies fresh water development. The total staff is about 950, including about 250 scientists.

"They're studying not only fisheries, but also the plant life, the entire ecology of the aquatic environment, whether it's marine or fresh."

ARCTIC FRUITLESS

"The planet earth is a very small place and I think the old concept of the sea being unlimited is rapidly disappearing," Dr. Weir said when asked whether the oceans are a bottomless breadbasket.

"We first have to recognize that much of the oceans is not very productive because of the temperature of the water and the slowness of growth of aquatic plants and animals. The Arctic Ocean, except for a few exotic species, really is too cold to be productive; it can't produce food for commercial fisheries in any case."

(a) A piece sacrifice that gives White a most dangerous attack; but it is neither forced nor forcing and a good alternative was 10.N-B3, since then 10 . . . N-N3; 11.B-N3,P-Q4; 12.PxP, eventually leaves White a pawn up owing to his attack on the Black KP.

(b) 12. Q-B4 is met by 12 . . . P-Q4.

(c) A better line for Black was 14 . . . K-K1, and if 15. N-B 7ch, KxN; 16.NxQ,PxN; and with three pieces for the Queen, despite his loss of pawns, Black should have the upper hand.

(d) If 17 . . . Q-Q2; 18.P-N4,K-B1; 19.PxN,BxB; 20.N-K6ch,K-K2; 21.R-Q1, and White is winning.

(e) Otherwise Black can play 18 . . . Q-B2, and his King is safe.

(f) Black disdains the draw by perpetual check and opens up fresh lines of attack. Interesting to see how Black meets one piece sacrifice with another.

G) White, too, is playing with great dash; now he secures the square K6 for his Knight.

(h) A mistake; instead he should have played 30.K-R1, and if then 30 . . . R-B2; 31.BxB,QxB; 32.NxQ,RxN; with good drawing chances.

PYGMY CEMETERY FOUND IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — A Venezuelan archelogist says the skeletons of 2,000 pygmy Indians have been found in a 1,600-year-old burial ground.

The cemetery was unearthed by workmen digging around Bolivar Square in the small town of Quibor in western Venezuela, after which a team of archeologists took over.

Archeologist Lucena Goyo told newsmen: "The carbon 14 tests have shown there was a civilization of pygmy Indians here around 1,600 years ago," he said.

Goyo said the average length of the skeletons found was four feet 11 inches. He said some of the skeletons were of children and measured as little as 20 inches.

BEACHES CLOSED BY RAW SEWAGE

SEATTLE (AP) — Four Lake Washington beaches were closed this week after a pumping station breakdown allowed thousands of gallons of raw sewage to flow into the lake.

Authorities said a power failure left the Mercer Island pumping station inoperative, filling up reserve tank capacity.

Sewer system maintenance supervisor Marvin Cross said sewage flowed into a channel east of the island at 150 to 300 gallons a minute.

Seattle-King County health authorities said beaches at Luther Burbank Park, Enatai County Park, Chesterfield Park and Mercerwood Shore Club would be closed for about two days.

Cross said it was not known precisely how much sewage reached the lake.

Indians Stage Sports Events

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Indian band will hold its annual field sports at the Somenos playing field today and Sunday starting at 2 p.m.

Khowutzen Indian Days are being organized by a special committee, co-ordinator Maisie Alphonse and recreation director Fred George.

Today there will be foot races and events for children. The Sunday events include softball games for boys and girls.

Where Truckers Eat in France, It's Cordon Bleu

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuter) — Hungry truck drivers in other lands often have to settle for a greasy snack but not in France.

This year 4,000 certified truck stop restaurants known as Relais Routiers will serve 70 million delectable, or at least respectable, meals to professional drivers as well as tourists — for less than $3 each.

An ever-increasing number of tourists are aware that good low-price meals are available in France in spite of rising food prices, exploding the fallacy that gourmet cooking is restricted to the two- and three-star restaurants listed in the Michelin guide, where prices may be around $23 a person.

French commercial trucking even has its own food guide.

Often called the poor man's Michelin, the routier publication is patterned after the French tourist bible whose ratings make many hotel keepers and restaurateurs tremble or jump for joy.

Every truck stop in the routier guide is checked once a year and if the price has risen about 15 francs per meal or the quality of the cooking has deteriorated, the restaurant is dropped the following year.

Relais Routiers are judged on three specific qualifications: The welcome, cooking, and price. One hundred and thirty among the 4,000 listed in the current edition have been awarded the Sign of the Casserole, signifying that they merit particularly high rating.

The truckers' union this year introduced an annual award to celebrate the 40th anniversary of their movement. The first presentation went to the outstanding relais member of the year, Pierre Langlois, 34-year-old chef and owner of the Hotel de la Poste at Varzy, in central France.

Langlois has been cooking since he was 13 and his routier menus include regional dishes such as Charolais beef, filet of pike and chicken simmered in fresh mushrooms.

The drivers' union and guide book were founded in 1933 by the Vicomte Francois de Saulieu, a journalist and amateur cyclist at the time and a gourmet to this day.

Wheeling leisurely along the roads of France, the young nobleman observed that the best inexpensive restaurants were invariably surrounded by oil slicks on the pavement from trucks whose drivers had stopped for a meal.

In North America it is an old tourist adage to "eat where the truck drivers stop," but the fare at such roadside halts is a space age away from the Gallic truck driver's concept of food.

Forty years ago French trucks were slow and uncomfortable and drivers frequently had to stay away from their homes for weeks on end. Saulieu became interested in the drivers' problems and ended up founding the federation which screened and approved 150 truck stops during its inaugural year.

Five years later more than 2,000 restaurants were entitled to post the red and blue heraldic shield which still signifies that the establishment meets rigid standards of approval.

Thirty-five thousand copies of the 1973 relais guide book (total circulation 105,000) copies have been printed in English this year (the others are all in French). And the current edition has been expanded to include 64 truck stops in Britain.

U.K. Hotels Called Fire Traps

LONDON (CP) — Alarming reports on the lack of fire protection in many British hotels are emerging in the wake of the tragedy in a Scottish seafront hotel in which nine persons died.

The five-storey hotel had no fire-escape and holidayers were trapped on upper floors as the main staircase collapsed.

The Evening Standard reports that only 15 hotels out of an estimated 3,000 in Greater London have been granted fire safety certificates under tighter safety legislation passed more than a year ago.

About half the capital's hotels and boarding-houses are "openly breaking the law," the newspaper says while the remaining 1,500 have applied for certificates but have not yet received them. A spokesman for the Greater London council said it can take up to nine months for a certificzte to be issued.

An inquiry is expected to be held into the disaster at the Esplanade Hotel in the Scottish west-coast resort of Oban. The tall, narrow building became a raging inferno within minutes from a blaze of unknown origin. A fire officer said stone walls prevented it spreading to four other waterfront hotels in the same row.

Hotel owner Ian Nicholson, 38, who has owned the Esplanade for 10 years, admitted sadly that he had not carried out recommendations made by fire prevention officers more than a year ago. He had intended to put them into effect during the winter, but "time and money" prevented him.

"I always had disaster in mind," he said. That was why he had asked the fire prevention officers to inspect his premises in June, 1972.

"But there are no grants for this kind of work and time and money was an important factor. I feel sorry now that the work was not done last winter."

The vacationers who died — five women and four men — were all members of a bus party from the west of England. Another 22 were treated in hospital for injuries after jumping from upper-storey windows.

The Oban fire is the third bad hotel blaze in four years. In 1969, eleven persons died in a Christmas-time fire which swept the timbered Rose and Crown Hotel at Saffron Walden, Essex — the worst hotel fire since the Second World War. Nine were killed in a west London hotel in May, 1971.

One newspaper says the toll of hotel fires over the last six years averages 17 a week. A report by the Fire Protection Association discloses that the chances of Britons dying in hotel fires are 10 times greater than in their own homes.

The report said that in one hotel fire the only way the residents could raise the alarm was by banging two tin trays together. Three persons died in that fire. In another hotel fire where five were killed, a notice in one bedroom read: "In case of fire, shout 'Fire'."

Grave Robbers Rich in Peru

CHANCAY, Peru (AP) — "Hey, mister, want to buy old pots, cloth, necklaces?" shouts the crowd of children, salesmen for one of Peru's oldest businesses—trade in plundered artifacts.

"Come to my house," urges a little girl, elbowing her companions aside to point to a hut of woven cane material, one of several in a poor farming community 44 miles north of Lima, the capital.

Inside, a smiling Indian woman ushers the prospective buyer into a tiny room, its dirt floor crowded with dusty ceramic objects, textiles, stone carvings and worm-eaten wooden images of long-forgotten dieties.

Although some are well-made forgeries, the majority of the articles on sale are genuine, collected and sold by grave robbers who pillage the tombs of Indian cultures that flourished long before the arrival of the Spanish conquerers.

Sale of pre-Columbian artifacts, mainly pottery vessels, or "huacos," is a profitable business in Peru. Pre-Columbian objects are those dating from before the discovery of the New World by Columbus. The goods come from hundreds of archaeological sites, mainly along the arid coast. Many are known only to the grave robbers.

Authorities complain that indiscriminate digging by thieves, amateur archaeologists and curiosity seekers deprives national museums of priceless objects and causes irreparable damage to archaeological sites.

Small-time traders concentrate on sales to tourists and foreign residents. Large-scale operations, however, are aimed at the lucrative and illegal export market. Private collectors, art galleries and museums in the United States and Europe are the principal buyers.

Although trading in antiquities is not illegal in Peru, their excavation and export is strictly prohibited by a law stating that such articles belong to the state.

Enforcement of the laws is difficult and expensive because of the large number of archaeological sites. Officials estimate that hundreds of pre-Columbian articles still leave the country annually, a few in the suitcases of tourists and diplomats and many more in crates and disguised as merchandise.

Clean Up River

OKOTOKS (CP) — The Alberta government has ordered the town of Okotoks, 10 miles south of Calgary, to reduce pollution of Sheep River by April 1, 1974.

Phil Ullman, head of the southern Alberta branch of the department of the environment, said the department has issued a water quality order to the town.

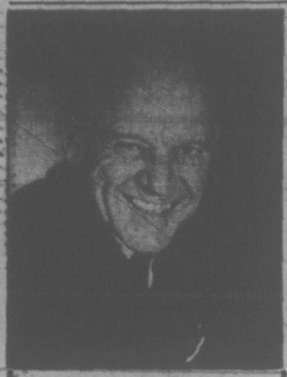
Sewage Lagoon Tested For Breeding Ducks

WINNIPEG (CP) — A sewage lagoon in the city's west end seems hardly the place to conduct psychology experiments, but James Shapiro, known to some people as the "quack doctor," finds it ideal in studying the parental attachments of ducklings and goslings.



Dr. Shapiro, a University of Manitoba professor, says preliminary indications are that the lagoon is a suitable site for the breeding of ducks.

The west end water pollution control centre consists of five ponds with varying degrees of pollution, from raw sewage to more purified waste.

With only one summer of experimenting behind him, Dr. Shapiro says accurate interpretation of data is hard to arrive at.

"It seems safe to say that the behavior pattern of the ducks differs as a function of the sewage lagoon in which they were placed," he said. "It is not clear from these results as to whether the water in each of the ponds is detrimental to the birds residing in them."

Last summer, the university provided the ducks with a supplementary food source but this year, that source has been discontinued to enable Dr. Shapiro to determine whether the lagoon itself can support the waterfowl.

Dr. Shapiro is particularly concerned with the feeding, drinking, stretching, cleaning and shaking movements of the birds as well as sleeping, resting and incubation but "until we do further research . . . we won't be able to make any definite statements regarding the effects of municipal sewage on our flocks of birds."

STORMY TRIP COSTLY

LONDON (AP) — An old British seadog, R. M. Willoughby, 61, is recruiting 20 persons to sail themselves through some of the stormiest seas in the world — off Cape Horn. He's charging $3,000 a person for the voyage around the Horn from Mexico to England on his 55-year-old three-master.

Women are welcome, said Willoughby, who added: "I'm a great believer in the liberation of women, and they'll be treated exactly the same as men."

They'll be required to swab decks, climb masts and join the ship's nine-man crew in other tough chores.

But Willoughby promised: "They'll be sharper, healthier and cockier for having sailed around the Horn."

Fuel Crisis Ups Research

By PETER MOSELY

LONDON (Reuter) — Talk of a possible world energy crisis has spurred urgent studies into alternative sources that were once dismissed as science fiction daydreams.

Drawing hydrogen from the seas on a massive scale, for instance, or harnessing the tides, controlled thermo-nuclear fusion, set off by laser beams, "solar power farms" covering huge tracts of desert, deep wells to tap steam from earths inner "boiler"—all are thought feasible, scientifically if not economically.

But increasingly, the most serious attention is being turned to two forms of power whose fortunes have ebbed in recent years: nuclear reactors and coal.

Nuclear energy was hailed as the great power breakthrough in the 1950s. It was commonly tipped to become the prime source within as little as a quarter-century.

Initial fervor waned, however, as the costs soared and prototype projects, notably in Britain—which led the field—ran into serious technical problems.

In the United States today, nuclear energy by fission contributes less than one per cent to total energy supplies. Energy authorities, scientists, business leaders and federal officials meeting in New York last year concluded nuclear power stations would account for about 11 per cent of the total by 1985.

Beyond that, its expansion depended on the speed with which the fast-breeder fission reactor was developed.

A more recent sign of the times was the announcement by the Royal Dutch Shell group, second-biggest oil company in the world, to buy a half-stake in nuclear power operations conducted by its fifth-ranking rival, Gulf Oil Corp.

Shell officials openly admitted that their late entry into this field was prompted by current gloom at the prospects of exhausting earth's oil resources.

SEE BIG ROLE FOR COAL

Gulf is deeply committed to development of the high-temperature, gas-cooled reactor as well as nuclear fuel. With a number of other oil groups, it is well on the way to transforming itself into an "energy company."

But if, after trailing for years behind schedule, nuclear energy is about to make the grade, an even bigger and more startling comeback seems to lie in store for coal.

Coal comprises more than 70 per cent of known U.S. fuel reserves—enough, at present rates, to last anywhere from four to seven centuries. But it's also the dirtiest fuel to burn, and a favorite target for environmentalists.

Most of the research effort is centred on perfecting ways of using coal in a more acceptable and efficient way—by converting it into gas, for instance, or liquefying it.

Technologies now being developed in the United States, Europe and elsewhere might permit coal to penetrate many of the markets now dependent exclusively on petrochemicals from oil.

Already, coal can produce important hydrocarbons including benzene, phenol, xylene, naphthalene and toluene.

Economics apart, one way of opening up some of the vast U.S. deposits of coal—much of which is of poor quality—is a technique called fluidized bed combustion.

This involves pumping air into a bed of particles of coal, making them flow like a liquid. In this way, even coal with quantities of incombustible ash and minerals can become an efficient heat reservoir.

But the golden future for coal depends on how much money companies and governments are prepared to invest in it today.

IT'S SUMMERTIME, and what better way to relax and forget the heat than to submerge oneself, along with a congenial companion, in a deep pool and let the mud squish between your foes. These hippos find the cure to summer heat recently in Whipsnade Zoo in England.

Stress on Competition Produces Excess Anxiety

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — The aggressive, everyman-for-himself lifestyle pursued in today's urban society produces excessive anxiety, says a University of Lethbridge psychology professor.

"Man is basically a social being," says Dr. A. G. Miller, who has recently completed and published studies showing that co-operative or competitive behavior in young children is a function of their environment—rural children behave more co-operatively than do urban.

"Most people have potential for both competitive and co-operative responses," says Dr. Miller. "Unfortunately, our society emphasizes individual competition, but ignores man's social nature.

"Most adult North Americans place a premium on individual competitiveness. The successful competitor gets the goodies: material wealth, success, prestige and power. The unsuccessful competitor in our society is frustrated, made to feel unworthy, viewed as a failure."

The psychology professor says competition is used inappropriately. "The result is a waste of human resources. We don't use the talents of people who lack the luck or aggressiveness to get to the top."

Dr. Miller says one of the most damaging aspects is parental pressure on children.

"Children absorb a competitive nature from their parents. They learn at a very early age that to succeed is to bring glory to the family. To be the best hockey player on the team will make daddy look pretty good, will make him proud and will most likely result in rewards for junior."

Dr. Miller says large corporations or factories should investigate the possibility of solving chronic labor and production problems through experiments with a co-operative group work situation, as opposed to the individual assembly line.

"From a point of view of psychological health it would be worth testing to see if the co-operative venture would not be better, both in terms of employee satisfaction and the quality of product turned out."

Dr. Miller arrived at a belief in the positive power of co-operation through several studies conducted with more than 200 school children in Grades 3 and 4. Using a device known as a co-operation board he and his colleagues tested children to see whether they would attempt to earn a prize—candies or a small toy—through co-operative or competitive behavior.

Bilingual Safety Instructions Bypass Travelling Eskimos

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — As the Boeing 737 rolled slowly onto the frozen airstrip the flight stewardesses began the familiar routine of reciting safety regulations in French and English.

But the lecture was lost on most of the flight's Eskimo passengers, who spoke neither of Canada's official languages.

Such incidents, commonplace in the eastern Arctic, have caused native organizations to complain that regional air carriers are providing insufficient service to the area's Eskimos.

"Safety instructions about oxygen, seat belts and what to do in emergencies—these are never given in the Eskimo language although many people travelling on the airplanes do not speak English or French," said Tagak Curley, president of the Inuit Tapirisat of Canada.

The Inuit Tapirisat, which represents the 16,000 Eskimos who form the ethnic majority in the Northwest Territories, has filed an official complaint with the airline and plans to object formally to the federal transport committee governing air traffic in the North.

Most of the complaints have been aimed at Nordair, which serves Baffin Island, Arctic Quebec and the eastern Arctic from Montreal.

Nordair competes with Pacific Western Airlines (PWA), which flies out of Edmonton, only at Resolute Bay in the High Arctic.

"When Eskimo people travel they nearly always have children with them, but the calls for pre-boarding assistance are never made in the Eskimo language," said Mr. Curley.

Departures and arrivals are always announced in English and French, never in the language of the majority of the people who live up here and rely on the airlines. None of the signs at the airport terminal are in Eskimo syllabics."

He said it is also "made quite clear that freight takes priority over passengers."

"Two friends and I were bound for Hall Beach from Frobisher Bay, had our tickets and our baggage checked through and 41 minutes before the plane left we were told we could not board because the space we were to have occupied had been filled with freight."

A spokesman for Nordair in Montreal confirmed that cargo had taken Mr. Curley's place but said this was because Mr. Curley arrived late for the flight.

Otherwise, "mail takes priority over passengers and passengers take priority over freight."

The spokesman said flight instructions were not given in Eskimo because "we tried to hire Eskimo girls to become stewardesses but they always want to return up North."

Mr. Curley called for increased competition on the northern runs but Rhys Eyton, vice-president of PWA's northern region, said there was too little business to justify extra flights.

Dog Days Deadly

MONTREAL (CP) — The dog days of mid-summer can mean more than a little discomfort for dogs or other pets who are left in cars, says the Montreal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty for Animals.

Col. Real Comtois, executive director of the group, Thursday described an experiment conducted to show how the temperature climbs inside a car.

At 7:45 a.m. a car was left on the shaded side of a building with a hermometer on the front seat. Two windows were left open and the outside temperature was 75 degrees.

Two hours later the inside was 98 degrees with the sun just beginning to shine on the car.

At 11:30 a.m. the thermometer was as high as it would go—130 degrees.

Weddings

Smith — Walton

Archdeacon Jones officiated at a double-ring ceremony in St. Mary's Church on June 1, 1973, at 7 p.m., when Wendy Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Walton, Beach Drive, exchanged vows with Randy James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Smith of North Vancouver.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an elegant long gown of white lagoda silk over taffeta. Re-embroidered lace, threaded with satin ribbon, adorned the waistline and neckline of the fitted bodice. Matching tiers of ruffles bordered the long sleeves and long cathedral train. A four-tiered silk illusion veil misted from a Camelot cap embroidered with orchid flowers. She carried a cascade of lavender orchids. Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Colleen Walton, Coquitlam. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Donna Chapman, Linda Walton, Toronto, Susan Walton and groom's sister, Lynn Smith. They wore turquoise and mauve sheer floral formals. Turquoise wide-brimmed hats complemented the gowns. They carried cascades of mauve carnations and white stephanotis. Best man was Jack McMillian, Saskatoon, George Walton, Alec Walton, Dave Chapman and Rob Tait, Vancouver, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the University of Victoria, where Mr. Dave Suttie gave the toast to the bride. After the reception the couple spent the night at the Empress Hotel and then left for Seattle on board the Princess Marguerite, where they had met. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Smith are now residing in Burnaby.

Bendall — Curtis

Canon G. H. Greenhalgh officiated at a lovely double-ring ceremony in St. Paul's Anglican Church on June 23, 1973, at 1 p.m., when Lorna May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Curtis, exchanged wedding vows with Kieth William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bendall. Bride's attendants were Miss Audrey Peckham, Miss Donna Bendall, Miss Donna Romain and Mrs. Lynn Burdon. Groom's attendants were Mr. Kerry Fea, Mr. Bob Doran, Mr. Chris Rasmussen, Mr. Kim Bendall, and Master George Curtis was the ring-bearer.

The reception was held at Holyrood House, where Mr. Vic Barker, uncle of the bride, travelled from Bishopstoke, England, to propose the toast to his niece. Mr. and Mrs. Barker also brought a traditional "Chimney Sweep Charm" that the bride wore around her right wrist. The new Mr. and Mrs. Bendall spent their honeymoon vacationing in Hawaii. They are now residing at 203-860 Carrie St., Victoria.

Out-of-town guests came from England, Ottawa and Vancouver.

Martin — Wingfield

Reverend William John Hill officiated at a double-ring ceremony in St. Michael and All Angels Church on July 7, 1973, when Vivien Margot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Wingfield, Missinauga, Ontario, was married to Michael John Fitzgerald Martin, son of Mrs. Eric Martin, Middowne Road, Victoria, and the late Mr. Eric Martin.

The bride was given in marriage by by her father and attended by Jo-Anne Dahl and Mary Martin, sister of the groom. The best man was Clive Stokes. The ushers were Bruce Petticrew and Peter Wingfield, brother of the bride.

A garden reception was held at the home of the groom's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will make their home in Victoria.

Wood — Campbell

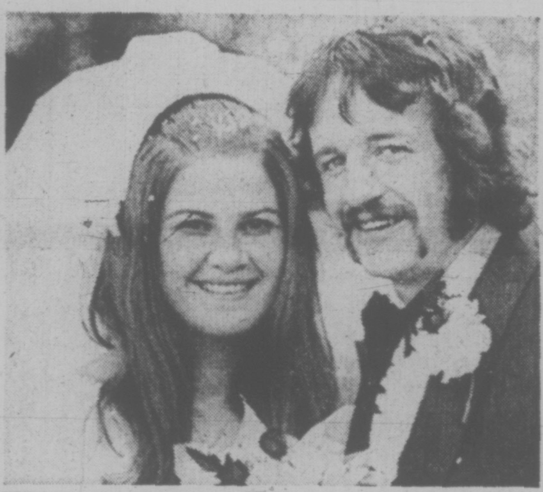
Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell wish to announce the marriage of their beloved little granddaughter, Cathy Gail Campbell, to Mr. William Evert Wood, on July 20, in Victoria.

Laughton — Coleman

Reverend Dennis Morgan, Vancouver, assisted by Reverend Hugh Hunter, officiated at a double-ring ceremony in First United Church, Victoria, on July 7, 1973, at 7 p.m., when Maureen Laurie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Arthur Coleman, 3351 Doncaster Drive, Victoria, exchanged vows with Walter Robert Laughton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Laughton, 3560 Cambie St., Vancouver.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride was attended by her sister, Lynda Johnson, as matron of honor, bridesmatron, Barbara Ringstad, and flower-girl, Darcey Switzer. Chris Engh was groomsman and Rick Childerhose and David Johnson ushered the guests.

After the ceremony, a dinner reception was held in McPherson Theatre Restaurant. Music was supplied by Ed Parratt. The bride and groom left for a honeymoon in Europe. On return Mr. and Mrs. Laughton will make their home in Victoria.



Scott — Parsons

A beautiful double-ring ceremony was solemnized on June 30, 1973, at 4 p.m., in Esquimalt United Church, when Debra Ann, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Parsons, 1217 Juno Street, exchanged marriage vows with Murray Martin Scott, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Scott, 1159 Lyall Street, the Reverend Philip D. Ross officiated. Mrs. Sybil Ross sang Sunrise, Sunset, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Faith Webster.

Given in marriage by her father, Debbie was radiant in a floor-length gown of French Guipure lace featuring ligoda crepe sleeves and train. From a Juliet cap flowed her full-length veil of silk illusion net. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis. Her only jewellery was an opal necklace, gift of the groom. Matron of honor, Mrs. Judy Trentalance, and bridesmaids, Vicky Sluggett, Vicki Holicza and Debbie Roth, all wore identical floor-length sheath dresses in mauve floral. White picture hats completed their attire. Each attendant carried white baskets with a very pretty assortment of flowers en-tone to their dresses. Best man was Mr. Terry Kustaski and Messrs. Les Sluggett, Ron Sluggett and Gordon Warren acted as ushers. All were attired in black tuxedos with mauve ruffled shirts, their boutonnieres were tipped in mauve. The bride's mother wore a soft pink floor-length Princess-style gown, with matching short jacket. The groom's mother chose a turquoise floral palazzo pant dress. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

After the ceremony 126 guests attended a dinner reception at the Carlton Club. Mr. Gus Baudais, from Comox, gave the toast to the bride. Guests enjoyed dancing to the Irving Lozier Combo. The happy couple will make their home in Victoria after returning from Harrison Hot Springs. For her going-away outfit the bride chose a petal pink dress with matching sleeveless coat. Pink picture hat, white purse, gloves and shoes completed her ensemble. Her corsage was white mums with a pink rose in the centre.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. John Huyck, Mrs. Orvile Morash and and son Russell from Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison from Edmonton, Mr. Campbell Anderson, Kamloops, Mrs. George Roberts, "the bride's grandmother," White Rock, Mr. and Mrs. Al Gates and Miss Trudy Gates of Port Coquitlam, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Trentalance and Michele, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holicza, Miss Sherry Andrews, all from Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Gus Baudais, Comox, Mr. and Mrs. Rod Sluggett, Mr. and Mrs. John Sluggett, Courtenay. Sincere thanks Robin Clarke, photographer.

Parker — Sturrock

Fairfield United Church was the scene of a double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m., on June 9, 1973, when Linda Lea, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Sturrock, became the bride of Joseph Neil, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Parker. The saying of the vows was solemnized by Reverend H. W. Kerley.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was radiant in a gown of white shantung silk with lace bodice and sleeves. Her chapel-length veil was held by a headpiece of pearls. She carried a bouquet of Jack-O-Lantern roses and white stephanotis and wore a family heirloom brooch and a silver charm bracelet, gift of the groom. Matron of honor, Mrs. Bill Martin, and bridesmaids, Misses Wendy Sturrock and Shirl Parker, wore identical gowns of coral shantung trimmed with white lace. All carried baskets of en-tone gladiolas and white carnations and wore coral and white flowers in their hair. Best man was Mr. Bill Martin. Mr. Jim Lebold and Mr. Brian Edwards ushered the guests. Mrs. Ralph Schmidt sang I'll Walk Beside You during the signing of the register. The mother of the bride was attired in a full-length pastel blue floral gown with matching coat complemented by a yellow rosebud corsage. The mother of the groom chose a full-length blue gown with white lace bodice. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

The reception followed at Gordon Head Community Centre. Mr. John McKay, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. For going away, the bride chose a blue and white pant suit and white accessories. Following a honeymoon to Banff, Jasper and Edmonton, the happy couple are now residing in Vancouver.

Roche — Maki

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Maki of 1240 Newport Avenue, Victoria, are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter, Karen Patricia, to Mr. John Stuart Roche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roche, Beaverlodge, Alberta, on Friday, July 20. Attendants to the bridal couple were Karen Johnston and George Clement. The groom's parents and the groom's sister, Mrs. Dennis O'Donnell, of Penticton, were out-of-town guests at a wedding supper held at the Oak Bay Marina. 8 CARD OF THANKS

Heartfelt thanks to our kind relatives and friends who demonstrated their love when it was most needed through cards of sympathy, contributions to the Cancer Fund and personal condolences. Also, thanks to Dr. Lockyer and staff of the Cancer Clinic, Dr. A. G. Vey, Dr. Cameron and staff of the I.C.U. of Royal Jubilee Hospital.
—William J. Lewis and Family.

8 CARD OF THANKS

MR. AND MRS. C. W. MORRISH wish to express their sincere thanks to those many friends for their cards, flowers, gift and phone calls, on the occasion of their recent Golden Wedding Anniversary. They were most happy to have so many visiting on that great day.

9 IN MEMORIAM

HEWITT — In loving memory of Florence Eva Hewitt, who passed away July 27, 1972.

In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name,
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.

—Lovingly remembered by her husband James, daughter Evelyn Mars and Granddaughter Kathy.

RESIDE — In loving memory of Robert James Reside, who passed away July 28, 1971.

The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "Come."
And with farewells unspoken.
He gently entered home.

—Sadly missed by his wife Sharon, children: David and Dawne Michelle, and mother Ethyl.

Big RV 2500's

REINELL RV 2500!
It's our top of the line, it has a fixed bulkhead which encloses the front cabin and a privately partitioned stand-up head. Locking door ensures privacy to the two double-cushioned bunks. Dinette converts to sleeper accommodation and additional sleeping for two is provided by the spacious cockpit jump seats. Camper back is standard. The roomy galley has two-burner stove, stainless sink, elec. faucet, 7.5-gallon water reservoir. Loads of storage space. Pedestal mounted. Captain's seats, have cabinets and drawers. Bulkheads and cabinets are solid marine ply, double faced with "Dura-Guard" laminate in handsome teak grain. Hinged hatch cover and walk-thru windshield. Color co-ordinated interior includes carpeting, marine vinyl upholstery and privacy drapes. Powered by 188 h.p. MERCRUISER.

CRISP NEW LISTING-!!
2 ACRES
SHAWNIGAN—MILL BAY AREA
POSSIBLE 4 BEDROOMS
$56,950

If you've been looking for acreage with a nearly new home for a big family and maybe even a fresh running creek running thru' for the kids to splash in, STOP LOOKING NOW!!! Phone quickly for an appointment to view this fine quality home. Enter into the spacious entrance hall thru double solid front doors and you'll immediately view the luxurious thick red shag wall to wall carpet in the 28x16 living room so beautifully complementing the darkwood panelling. Step out thru 8' wide sliding glass doors to a wrap around sun deck overlooking CEDAR CREEK. Giant fir trees form a very private background. Now see the dream kitchen — "WOW" it is truly a dream for the queen of your estate. Watch her face as she inspects all the cabinets, the very large eating area. The rear entrance is a dutch door you'll find that the kitchen has "beamed ceilings" as did the living room. This utterly gorgeous bathroom is decorated in a stunning yellow with thick shag carpet and a genuine "sunken" bathtub. The main floor is completed by 2 generous size bedrooms, the master bedroom is 16x15 and the guest is 13x13 both have double closets behind "louvered" doors. The full high basement has a nearly completed rumpus room 28x16 and space for 2 more bedrooms already roughed in plus and excellent size laundry room wired for washer and dryer. The owner has an excellent reason for sacrificing this georgeous home.

Sale of French Arms Takes Sudden Nosedive

PARIS (FWF) — The boom in French arms sales is over. Official statistics are now kept secret, but according to experts here sales last year were as much as 40 per cent down on 1971.

This sudden decline comes after one of the most rapid commercial breakthroughs since the Second World War and is comparable to the Italian entry into the oil market or the Japanese takeover of the electronics business.

French arms salesmen made headlines wherever they went in the 1960s. Backed up by a big expansion in production capacity in France itself, they sold prolifically to the countries of the Third World.

Exports rose from 2,800 million francs in 1965 to 7,300 million francs in 1971 — the last year for which official figures are available. By the end of the 1960s, arms accounted for eight per cent of France's total exports and it had taken over from Britain as third biggest arms exporter in the world — after the U.S. and the U.S.S.R.

Why, then, has France been unable to maintain the impetus? The first reason is that the Americans have pulled out of Vietnam. A large quantity of surplus material has been put onto the market which is undercutting anything produced commercially, and the American arms manufacturers, who have now lost one of their most important outlets, are providing extra competition.

Notably, they have put in a strong challenge for aircraft contracts in Brazil — previously a preserve of the French firm Breguett-Dassault.

A second reason for France's troubles stems partly from the fact that it has been too successful. There is now a glut of arms — especially in the developing countries whose purchases formed the basis for the French breakthrough.

France was able to offer a variety of high-performance, multi-role weapons at a reasonable price — the effective and versatile Mirage, half the cost of a British Lightning, was snapped up from Peru to Pakistan. To date, 1,200 have been sold.

France's hospitality to foreign arms-buying delegations was also a factor. It is said that nothing was spared in wining, dining and entertaining these men — and usually they left richer than when they arrived.

Ex-colonies bought prodigiously in the years following independence and many are now ridiculously over armed. Obsolescence created by the manufacture of newer, better arms will keep the market moving — but not at the same rate it has maintained during the last 10 years or so.

Moreover, the recent sharp fall in sales is bound to leave the French bereft of the financial reserves they need to invest if prototypes are to be developed and manufactured. Finally, some countries which have hitherto been dependent on importing their arms are now developing their own home-grown products — Brazil, Argentina and Israel are all examples in the field of aviation.

Certainly, the boom in the Third World is over. To cite just one example, the Libyans have bought 100 of Breguet-Dassault's Mirages in the last 10 years — it is inconceivable that they can absorb that many in the decade ahead.

Fundamentally, France's success was always fragile because it depended on two factors — American involvement in Vietnam and the Third World arms race — neither of which could last forever. As its industry adapts to the changed circumstances, a number of questions are bound to be asked about its viability.

First, by the taxpayer. The primary reason for exporting arms is to preserve a military independence. Producing arms for one's own forces alone makes the cost per unit enormously high — it can only be brought down if the factories are kept busy with orders from overseas.

In the case of France, the government target minimum is to sell some 5,000 million francs-worth of material abroad — and it fell short of that figure by 600 million francs last year, say the experts. This means that the ordinary Frenchman will have to pay more and more for the policy originated by de Gaulle and continued by his successor — that France must have separate conventional and nuclear deterrents made by the French.

At the moment the taxpayer pays about 600 francs per annum — quite a low figure — but if it rises then the hand of the arms trade's many critics will be strengthened.

They, now, will want to know why it is necessary to maintain a commerce which is not only — in their view — immoral, but also ineffective according to its own criteria.

Immediately, though, questions will be raised by the trade unions — over a quarter of a million men are employed in arms manufacture. Many sections of industry are involved: aviation, shipbuilding, electronics, engineering in many forms, chemicals and the motor industry. Such a sharp decline is bound to mean redundancies sooner or later in many of them.

It is unlikely, though, that pressure — whether from the taxpayer, the moralists or the union bosses — to gradually turn over the production lines to a less warlike, more secure business will have any effect. Considerations of policy apart, the future does hold some comfort for the authorities.

For one thing, their effort to recapture lost ground will be headed by a particularly able man. He is Hugue de l'Estoile — an engineer who has risen to the post of Director of the International Affairs Section in the Ministerial Arms Delegation at the early age of 41.

Already his pronouncements about the morality of arms sales have caused a stir in the French media. Especially when he recently accused the Papal Nuncio in Beirut of having acted on behalf of the Italian firm, Agusta-Bell, in tendering a successful contract for military helicopters in the Lebanon.

A further "plus" for the French is that they do not share the same moral qualms as their biggest rivals — the British. South Africa is a good example. The French were able to break in here purely because the British under the then prime minister, Harold Wilson, vacated the market for purely ideological reasons, and even when the current government of Prime Minister Edward Heath showed signs of wanting to return, it became obvious that the weight of public opinion was such as to prohibit the move.

But what gives the British the edge and what has helped it to regain its third place in the "arms league" is a long tradition in established markets: France has only the French-speaking countries of Africa to count on as clients. It is the newcomer in a tough business, one which is getting tougher all the time.

Realtors On Council

Victoria realtors D. F. Hanley and P. A. G. Petersen have been re-appointed to the Real Estate Council of British Columbia.

The two are among 15 appointed to the council by the provincial government.

The council acts as an advisory body to the government on real estate matters.

L. G. Wood of Duncan was also among those re-appointed by the government.

All appointments are for one year.

Following the appointments, the council elected R. T. Titus of Delta as chairman, succeeding A. Kirk Gerow of New Westminster.

Nixon's Office Doesn't Rate

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's former law office here has been rejected as a state historical landmark. A spokesman for tthe California historical landmarks advisory committee said the building was rejected because it did not meet the criteria of "statewide impact and importance."

Monday's race entries from Exhibition Park are unavailable today because of a strike by CN-CP employees.

Hijacker May Be Wanted Man

TOKYO (Reuter) — Police said today one of the hijackers of a Japanese jumbo jet blown up in Libya last Tuesday might be a Japanese extremist wanted in connection with last year's Tel Aviv airport massacre.

A police spokesman said permission will be sought from the Libyan government to interview the lone Japanese among four hijackers arrested after the plane was blown up at Benghazi Airport.

He said some of the returning passengers from the Japan Airlines jet identified the hijacker from police photographs as Osamu Maruoka, 22, a member of the extreme left-wing Red Army group.

Maruoka has been sought around the world since the shooting at Tel Aviv's Lod Airport May 30 last year when three Japanese guerrillas killed 26 persons.

Two of the guerrillas also died, and the lone survivor, Kozo Okamoto, is serving a life sentence in an Israeli jail.

A Japanese investigation of the Tel Aviv shooting established that the three gunmen and Maruoka received training from Palestine guerrilla groups in Lebanon.

Maruoka, however, stayed in Rome when the other three left on a flight for Tel Aviv apparently to carry out another mission, police said.

Lettuce Plowed Under

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI) — Teamster Union produce truck drivers have rejected a proposed settlement in a strike that has seen 1,500 acres of lettuce plowed under because it could not be shipped.

The union said the vote was 267 to 108 against the pact even though leaders of Local 890 had recommended acceptance.

The agreement would have given drivers a 40 cent an hour pay increase this year and 35 cents in the second and third year of the contract.

Growers estimate the strike that started July 16 has caused $7 million in losses.

Only one large grower, Bud Antle, Inc., is harvesting lettuce. The firm settled with the Teamsters a week ago but terms of that agreement have not been disclosed pending settlement with the other growers.

LEASE LAND AVAILABLE

The CITY OF VICTORIA invites applications to lease the City-owned lands at the corner of Burnside Road and Duncan Street (being the former Burnside Fire Hall site) and legally described as Lots 12 and 13, Block 5, Section 5, Plan 282, and containing approximately 11,600 square feet.

Permitted uses are those stated in the "C1N Zone Neighbourhood Shopping District," which generally includes commercial/residential buildings, offices, retail shops, restaurants, clubs, dry cleaning establishments. Consideration may be given to the utilization and conversion of the existing firehall building presently on the site, provided the proposed use is in accordance with the stated permitted uses.

The term and rental value of the lease shall be determined by the type of development proposed and accepted. Applicants could state length of lease desired. Detailed information regarding design and zoning controls covering such matters as setbacks, height of buildings, floor space, parking and leading requirements, and landscaping of setbackareas, may be obtained from the Department of Community Development in the Victoria City Hall.

Applicants to lease the above property should submit their proposals in sufficient detail to enable City Council to evaluate the design merits of the proposal, and same should be submitted to the LAND COMMISSIONER, City Hall, Victoria, B.C., to be received not later than 4:00 P.M. on Tuesday, August 28th, 1973.

July 28th 1973.

Wonderful World of Animals

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I have bragged a lot about Myrtle, but why shouldn't I? She is my best hen. She averages six eggs a week. I was bragging about her last night when this guy pops up with the statement that he knew a duck that laid two eggs a day. I told him that was impossible. In fact, we made a bet on it. Now can you back me up? — N.N.

DEAR N.N.: I'd like to. Certainly in the normal bird. chicken and-or duck, only the left ovary and oviduct develop and become functional. On rare occasions, however, a right-sided "set" may also persist and even more rarely both may be functional. I understand there's an account of a duck who laid two eggs a day, but this is something I've never actually encounttered.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Did I read that cancer in cats is caused by viruses? — L. G.

DEAR L. G.: I don't know. But you certainly could have. There is no longer any real question but that some cat cancer is caused by viruses as, for example, malignant lymphoma (lyphosarcoma). Viruses are known to cause cancer in many animal species including Homo sapiens. This is an area of current intensive effort. Research teams often combine human and other animal specialists.

Indians Find Religious Relics In White Hands

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta Indians returning to their native religions are finding that the holy objects connected with them are often in the hands of white men.

They have been negotiating to get the artifacts back, but in many cases the owners are reluctant to hand them over.

Bruce Starlight of the Sarcee reserve in southern Alberta, one of the leaders of the repossession movement, says there is a great resurgence of native religion among Indian youth.

"The Indian people know that the Indian religion may be the key to saving our people from drunkenness and illnesses that plague the mind with self-doubt," he said. "We have begun a religious movement among people based on the integrity and philosophies of the Indian religion."

Medicine bundles are an integral part of Indian religious ceremonies, but they are becoming increasingly rare—to the point that there are hardly any left on the Blackfoot reserve, for example.

TURN UP IN PARIS

The Indian Education Centre in Edmonton, which is documenting the whereabouts of as many medicine bundles as possible, has located several Blackfoot medicine bundles in a museum in Paris. The centre is at a loss to know how they got there.

Medicine bundles contain a variety of objects such as buffalo tongue, beads, rattles, stones and animal hides. They are copied from objects seen in dreams. Indians believe the bundles and the objects in them are the source of supernatural powers.

Until about five years ago, white "pawnbrokers" roamed southern Alberta reserves offering small loans to Indians in exchange for their cultural heritage. The artifacts were then sold, often for large profits.

One such white dealer was reported to have picked up a medicine bundle for $10 and sold it in Europe for $28,000. Another dealer bought a bundle on a Saskatchewan reserve for $10 and sold it to a collector in Alberta for $7,500.

GIVEN TO MUSEUMS

Indian elders, fearing their young people were abandoning the native ways, turned many of their most valuable artifacts over to museums for safekeeping.

But now Indian leaders want these religious objects returned and are negotiating with the museums and private collectors.

One collector in Calgary, who asked not to be named, said he is prepared to give back his Blackfoot bundles "if the Indians prove they are responsible enough to take care of them."

He said he began collecting the bundles in 1957 with the intention of safeguarding them for the Indians.

"I do not wish to give them back if they are going to fall into disuse or if the Indians are going to dissipate themselves with alcohol again."

A spokesman for the provincial museum and archives in Edmonton said the medicine bundles there were handed over by Indian elders with the traditional ceremonial rites.

ELDERS RELUCTANT

Eric Waterton said many of the elders are reluctant to have the bundles returned to young Indians because they consider them too sacred to be used as political symbols. The museum houses about eight major bundles and dozens of smaller ones.

"Our main concern is preservation of cultural artifacts," said Mr. Waterton. "We would be willing to lend the Indians these objects if they need them for their ceremonies, but I think they are going to face a hard line if they want them returned permanently."

Doug Light, director of collections at the Glenbow Museum here, said Indians had approached the museum about getting their bundles returned but so far no action has been taken.

"We don't think we should have to give these articles back," he said. "Many of us here feel that if it weren't for museums a lot of this stuff would have ended up in the garbage.

"I think where religion is concerned, the idea, not the objects, is most important."

But Mr. Starlight said that without the medicine bundles "there is little significance to these (religious) ceremonies."

Z-Wagons Muscle Out Traffic Jams

LONDON (NYT) — The newest weapon in the battle to keep London's traffic moving is a unique truck-mounted crane that can pluck an illegally parked car off the street in three minutes flat.

The vehicle — dubbed the Z-wagon because of the shape of its lifting gear — has proved invaluable in the congested and narrow streets of central London. The Z-wagon can operate in a confined space, pulling up alongside an offending auto, lifting it off the road and carrying it away to the police pound.

"It's used where its most effective," said J. L. Breese, the Metropolitan Police force engineer who designed the Z-wagon, "in narrow streets with heavy traffic where one vehicle can cause a jam."

The Z-wagon appears to have solved a problem that police here have faced for the past 15 years. Many drivers regard the $16 tow-away fee as a little more than a business expense. Police remove 75,000 vehicles in the London area every year.

An increasing number of drivers flout parking restrictions because they know the police find it difficult to pick steering column locks, which are now compulsory on new cars in Britain. Furthermore, the police are not allowed to break a window to get into a car, and they do not have master keys for foreign autos.

However, the Z-wagon makes entry into a parked car unnecessary. Hydraulically operated hoisting arms are fitted into each end of the vehicle's loading platform, and two pairs of slings run along a connecting beam. The slings are slotted into place with steel bars against each side of the wheels, forming a cradle by which the auto is lifted onto the platform.

The crane, which can lift a car from either side of the Z-wagon, is controlled from a push-button panel duplicated on each side of the cab. The vehicle is operated by two trained civilians, although a policeman goes with them to control traffic and crowds.

The first Z-wagon went into service at the beginninng of March, and a second, larger model — built to handle the biggest auto or two small European cars — a month later. Each vehicle cost about $25,000.

According to Breese, the Z-wagon's chief disadvantage is its size, which makes it difficult to maneuver in narrow city streets.

However, the police have found the Z-wagon has uses for which it was not designed. It was used, for example, to move cars wrecked by the recent terrorist bombings in central London, and it can also remove an auto that has to be fingerprinted without being touched.

Already, the Z-wagon has attracted interest overseas, and inquiries have come from Philadelphia, Dublin, Tokyo, and Paris.

Design rights to the vehicle have been assigned by Scotland Yard to Breese. As head of the Yard's T1 Branch, he is responsible for the purchase and production of police vehicles, on which the London force spends up to $3.7 million a year.

Vatican Loses to Style

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — The watchdogs of sartorial propriety at St. Peter's are retreating before an onslaught of bared foreign flesh.

Only the young guards can really stand the pace as censors as miniskirted tourists and hairy-legged men by the thousands seek entrance to the basilica — the main shrine of Roman Catholicism.

The guards, five or six altogether, are trying to carry out the thankless task of ensuring that the clothing of visitors conforms to "Christian modesty and decorum."

But the changes of fashion and the enormous volume of tourists from all over the world has already forced severe practical modifications in the rules laid down by Cardinal Paolo Marella, the basilico's custodian.

Nobody could say the watchdogs did not try.

Two years ago a little nun, Sister Fiorella, ruthlessly measured with a drill sergeant's glare the height at which a skirt might decorously rise above the knee.

However, the tide of undress continued to flow in the hot humid weather and Sister Fiorella suffered a nervous breakdown.

When she resigned last year, the guards tried to follow her example and Vatican authorities came up with a compromise to help them.

A voluminous plastic overcoat in steel-grey, vaguely resembling the garb of a monastic order and reaching the ankles, was lent to inadequately-clad visitors as they toured the basilica.

But many of these shapeless cloaks have been stolen as souvenirs, or out of pique.

UNCLE LOUIS RITES

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Stephen St. Laurent, Canada's 12th prime minister, was carried today from the Quebec Basilica to the booming cadence of a 19-gun salute and the crackle of a Royal 22nd Regiment honor guard presenting arms.

Maurice Cardinal Roy, archbishop of Quebec, said the pontifical funeral mass for Canada's second French Canadian prime minister.

The casket borne by eight red-coated NCOs of the RCMP was loaded into a motor hearse for the trip to St. Laurent's birthplace at Compton, Que. (See picture on Page 2.)

He was to be buried alongside his wife in the afternoon.

Nixon Loses Case

WASHINGTON (WP) — A sweeping claim of executive privilege by President Nixon was rejected Friday in the first court hearing of its kind in 166 years.

U.S. District Judge William Jones ordered the government to produce, for his private examination in chambers, 67 memos concerning the dairy industry and a 1971 decision in which the agriculture department reversed itself in order to increase price supports for milk.

The justice department told Jones it would comply.

On orders from Nixon, the White House had asserted executive privilege for the papers. Their release, presidential counsel Leonard Garment said in an affidavit filed on July 11, "would be injurious to the public interest and to the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

The White House made a parallel argument Thursday in refusing a request by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox for certain tape recordings and documents in the Watergate case. Former White House counsel John Dean wrote some of the documents involved in both cases.

In Judge Jones' court Friday, justice department attorney Irwin Goldbloom argued that the president could invoke executive privilege for the 67 memos even if he merely sketchily outlined or listed them, as was done in Garment's affidavit.

The court should decide only if the papers fall within the privilege because they involve advice, opinions or deliberations leading up to an executive decision, Gold Bloom contended. He said the question of need of the papers by the people who brought the lawsuit — Ralph Nader's Public Citizen, Inc., and allied consumer groups — should not enter into the decision.

Sweep for Marcos

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines received overwhelming support today in first returns from a nationwide referendum on extension of his martial-law regime.

THE DOG DAYS have hit Victoria. As Friday temperatures soared into the high 70s, Duster took to the water. Duster, a Heinz 57 variety dog, cooled off in the fountain in front of the legislative buildings. Cooling his dogs, you might say. (John McKay photo.)

Astronauts In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Three American astronauts rocketed into orbit today and successfully docked with the Skylab space station which is to be their home for a record 59 days.

During their stay they are to study the sun, stars, earth and man.

Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma linked their Apollo craft with the Skylab 271 miles above earth after tracking it for more than eight hours after their launching from Kennedy Space Centre.

The astronauts had spotted a blinking light on the station some four hours after the liftoff and gradually closed in.

They encountered a possible fuel leak in a jet steering engine system of their Apollo craft, but space agency officials said the problem is not serious.

While the scientific goal of the flight is a prolonged photographic study of the sun, the real mission of the second Skylab flight is to find out whether man can endure without benefit of the earth's gravity for a two-month stretch.

"Medically, this flight is far more important than the 28-day flight of the first Skylab crew," Dr. Charles Berry, chief of life sciences for the space agency, said in a prelaunch interview. "There are just too many things we don't understand about the prolonged effects of weightlessness."

Among the ill effects suffered by the first Skylab crew of Charles (Pete) Conrad, Paul Weitz and Joseph Kerwin was a small shrinkage in the size of their hearts. Their 28 days in space forced their hearts to decrease in size by about three per cent, which might be an irreversible loss of heart muscle.

"We believe some of this loss is fluid, which can be replaced," Dr Berry revealed. "But some of it might also be cardiac muscle, which cannot be replaced."

Dr. Berry said it is impossible to tell if two months in space will cause even more heart shrinkage in the second Skylab crew, declaring this is one of several unanswered medical questions about long duration space flights,

"I think it's clear that weightlessness triggers changes in man's cardiovascular system," Dr. Berry said. "This flight gives us the chance to find out just how serious those changes can be."

Exercise time for Bean, Garriott and Lousma will be doubled. They'll exercise on an electric bicycle or pull up on a bar that resembles a weight-lifting device,

Bank Props Pound

LONDON (UPI) — The Bank of England raised its minimum lending rate to the highest level in history Friday and intervened in the market to bolster the weakened British pound. The dollar, meanwhile, gained across Europe.

The financial moves by the Bank of England included a 2.5 per cent boost in the minimum lending rate, the new form of the bank rate. It raised the lending rate to an all-time record level of 11.5 per cent in a bid to check inflation at home.

The previous record Bank of England rate was 10 per cent, reached briefly in 1914 at the outbreak of the First World War. In the past two weeks the lending rate has gone up by four per cent.

The bank also reinforced the lending rate increase by heavily buying pounds in the market. After drifting down to $2.4725, its lowest level since May, the pound sterling moved up to close at $2.5085.

NEWS BRIEFS

No Talks Set At CP Air

VANCOUVER (UPI) — No negotiations were scheduled this weekend in the dispute between Canadian Pacific Airlines and its striking machinists which has forced the nation's second largest air carrier to cut back its flights by nearly 60 per cent. A CP Air spokesman said Friday that the airline would continue to operate on a reduced schedule, with only 180 of its 428 weekly flights still in operation.

Minister Kidnapped

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Cypriot minister of justice Christakis Vakis was kidnapped today only hours after a series of bombings and explosions hit Nicosia and the southern city of Limassol, the government said.

'Branding' Probed

NEW DELHI (AP) — The state legislature of Bihar has appointed a committee to investigate charges that four women untouchables were branded with hot irons. A government minister said five men have been arrested.

Tavern Bombed

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists bombed a country tavern in Northern Ireland early today as more than 4,000 British troops cordoned off parts of Belfast in their second major security sweep in a week.

Powers Seized

NEW DELHI (AP)—Afghanistan's new military-backed ruler, Sardar Mohammad Daud, has abrogated the country's nine-year-old constitution and assumed the powers it reserved for deposed King Mohammad Zahir Shah and the national parliament.

PLAY FOLLOWED BY REAL THING

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif (UPI) — The curtain had barely rung down on the summer production of "Robin Hood" Friday night when a thief with a bow and arrow, cloaked in a bedspread, waylaid the show's treasurer in the parking lot. He boldly reached into the car, grabbed the $100 in receipts and then disappeared into a darkened glen in the park while passerby chased him.

No Rail, Wires Until Tuesday

Times News Services

The rail strike rolled west today while Ontario struggled to get back on the tracks in the wake of 48 hours without trains or telegrams.

Some 7,500 rail employees walked off their jobs at 6 a.m. local time in British Columbia, Alberta, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories as the 56,000-member Association of Non-Operating Employees pressed its campaign for new contract terms.

A Canadian National Railway spokesman said no hardships were expected to result in remote communities because most of the regular traffic consisted of "hard freight."

The strike will last 66 hours — until midnight Monday night local time.

In Victoria, some 300 non-operating employees are on strike, said Roy Head, chairman of the local association of non-operating unions.

Strikers are picketing the E and N Railway, CP Transport at 355 Catherine, CP-CN Telecommunicastions at 530 Fort, the CNR ticket office at 608 Fort, and the CN Express at 80 Esquimalt, Head said.

Only CP's Seattle-to-Victoria ferry, the Princess Marguerite, is continuing to operate and isn't being picketed.

Halting the Princess Marguerite wouldn't hurt the employers much, said Head, and would only affect the travelling public and the tourist industry. Also there are many students working who need the money they can earn during the summer months, he added.

"What we're really interested in is the freight moving," he said, and pickets are aimed at stopping this.

CP's two freight-carrying ferries, the Carrier Princess which sails from Vancouver to Swartz Bay, and the Princess of Vancouver which sails from Vancouver to Nanaimo, have been stopped by pickets in Vancouver.

The E and N railway, CP Transport, CP-CN Telecommunications, and CN Express are expected to re-open for business Tuesday morning, along with the freight ferries.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the CNR headquarters in Montreal said rail service throughout Ontario, first target of the series of rotating strikes by rail employees, "is returning to normal" following the return to work of some 20,000 workers in the province.

Officials of the two railways said they would attempt to restore normal operations in the province by 11 a.m. today. However, they said transcontinental service would remain suspended "until further notice."

In Ottawa, Labor Minister John Munro said Friday the government was considering the appointment of mediators and an independent adjudicator to solve the dispute. He said appeals were being made to employers not to irritate the situation by contemplating lockouts.

60-MPH WINDS BATTER CALGARY

CALGARY (CP) — Winds almost reaching hurricane level battered Calgary Friday, blowing down trees and wires and breaking windows.

Police reported 40 calls for assistance from residents to 5 p.m. Most of the calls were related to downed trees and broken windows.

The weather office said winds of up to 68 miles per hour, just seven miles short of hurricane proportions, invaded the city. The average wind speed Friday afternoon was 50 m.p.h.

Some power and telephone lines were blown down but spokesmen said the damages were minor.

$M Damage, Two Dead In Jail Riot

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — About 150 rebel inmates — last of a group of rioting convicts at the Oklahoma State Prison — today released unharmed all 11 hostages they had held for 22 hours, McIntosh County sheriff Clarence Douglas reported.

"They're all out. Everybody's released," Douglas said.

Gov. David Hall, who was in the state capital of Oklahoma City 122 miles away, left immediately for the prison to talk with rebel inmate leaders.

"Order had been restored," Hall said. "The prisoners have been returned to their cells." He said the prisoner demands will be "the subject of our 4:30 p.m. meeting."

Earlier in the day, National Guard troops fired tear gas into the rioting convicts. About 200 surrendered then but about 150 held out with the hostages. Those who did surrender returned to their cells and were given food.

Rioters left the two-block-long prison a smoking shell that Oklahoma officials said would cost $10 million to replace.

Two prisoners were killed in the uprising and a score or more were injured, the Governor's office said.

The first surrender came at 8:19 a.m. CDT — 17 hours and 49 minutes after the revolt started — with an agreement reached during a negotiating session in the prison dining hall. Details were not immediately released.

The inmates released some of their hostages and walked briskly out of the east gate with their hands clasped behind their heads. Guards yelled and fired occasional gunshots into the air to keep the inmates moving.

In Rome, Italy, police using tear gas attacked rioting prisoners demanding penal code reforms at Queen of Heaven jail today in an attempt to break the day-old protest that has destroyed nearly half the prison.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Columbia Broadcasting System filed suit Friday accusing two former executives of its records division of diverting more than $300,000 to their own use through fraudulent expense reimbursements.

CDC Bid Blocked

TORONTO (CP) — A temporary order restraining the government-owned Canada Development Corp. from proceeding with a $290-million takeover bid for Texasgulf Inc., the United States-based resources company, has been granted in a Houston, Tex., court, CDC president H. Anthony Hampson said Friday.

In an interview, Hampson said he understood from CDC counsel in Canada and New York that Texasgulf management based its application on a Texas statute declaring that any company owning minerals in the state must have a majority of U.S. shareholders and a majority of directors from Texas.

"This is like saying that a U.S. company with a subsidiary in Timmins must have a majority of Canadian directors," said Hampson.

Asked if the move indicated that Texasgulf directors may be opposed to the takeover bid, Hampson said:

"I hardly think that they would have involved themselves in this course of action if that was not the case."

Hampson said that while directors in Canada normally make a recommendaton to shareholders in the face of a big bid they nevertheless remain neutral, permitting shareholders to make up their own minds.

"It seems that in America the directors make the decisions," he said.

"But we made what we considered a fair and reasonable

GM'S PROFITS SOAR PAST ALL OTHERS

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. made more money during the first six months of 1973 than any other corporation has made for a similar period.

GM announced Friday its profits for the second quarter were $1.6 billion or $5.62 a share, up 18 per cent from last year's $1.37 billion or $4.78 a share. In the first half GM sales totaled $19.2 billion compared with $16.2 billion last year.

'95 Acres Wall-to-Wall People'

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — About 400,000 young people squeezed onto the grounds of a race course for a rock festival today and more streamed through this village at dawn carrying tents, bedrolls and coolers of beer.

The concert's name, Summer Jam, proved fitting as traffic engulfed all roads for miles around the concert site at the U.S. Grand Prix auto race course.

"There are 95 acres of wall to wall people in there," said Lt. Richard Tonzi, commanding the state police checkpost during the night. "I don't know where we're going to fit them but we can't stop them coming if they want to come. There's got to be in excess of 400,000 people here," he said.

If that estimate is accurate, it would bring the crowd at the festival to about the same size as that which massed at the Woodstock festival on a diary farm 120 miles west of here in 1969. Woodstock was the hallmark of the youth movement of the 1960s.

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents on the way to the festival Friday. The four hospitals in the area said 108 people had been treated and released, and 27 admitted. Most of the hospital cases were for cuts, scrapes and drug abuse.

"Apparently people are getting stoned on drugs or wine then falling down or riding on roofs or hoods of cars and then falling and getting injured," said the administrator of Schuyler hospital.

In an attempt to turn back the human tide, state police set up checkpoints two miles north and seven miles south of town, telling those driving in that there was no place to park and they would have to walk. Cars were parked for miles along the roadsides.

SUB HITS SHIP

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian submarine Okanagan and a British tanker collided off the Scottish coast early today, a Canadian Forces spokesman reported.

Capt. Bill Whitehead said military reports indicated there were no injuries on board the Okanagan, which was running submerged off the mouth of the River Clyde. There were no reports of injuries aboard the tanker Grey Rover.

The spokesman said the mishap occurred while the submarine was carrying out post-refit trials.

The Okanagan, whose normal complement is 63 officers and men, was damaged about the fin and mast area and headed for the British submarine base at Faslane, Scotland after the collision.

The Okanagan, one of three British-built Oberon-type submarines, was launched in September, 1966 and commissioned in June, 1968. Two others, the Ojibwa and Onondaga, joined the Atlantic Fleet earlier.

Full-Time Emergency Doctors at Jubilee

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Royal Jubilee Hospital has launched a new program to improve emergency medical care — doctors who work exclusively and full-time in the hospital's emergency department.

The concept of emergency room physicians also is being considered at Victoria General Hospital.

Since the beginning of the month, Jubilee has had two doctors under contract to staff the emergency department. Two more doctors will be added by early September.

The service is headed by Dr. John Maccagno, 34, who directed the emergency room physician service at an Edmonton hospital for three years. He has had additional training in cardiology and intensive care.

In the past, patients coming to a hospital's emergency department would be seen by the interne on duty if the case warranted it while the patient's own doctor was being called.

Other doctors in the hospital at the time — including specialists such as surgeons — would pitch in if they were needed, if the patient had no doctor or if his doctor was not available.

But this system has been increasingly criticised as haphazard and not matching improvements made in other areas of medical care.

There were 40,000 cases handled at Jubilee's emergency department last year, Dr. Ray LeHuquet, the hospital's medical director, said Friday.

Studies show only about 5 per cent of them were true emergencies. Another 50 to 60 per cent were urgent cases and the rest were neither emergencies nor urgent.

When real emergencies do arrive, prompt treatment by an experienced doctor is essential, he said, and providing it is the aim of the new program. Similar programs are now in use at Vancouver General Hospital, Royal Columbian and at Burnaby on the lower mainland.

Quality of care has been the hospital's prime consideration.

"There is no question," says LeHuquet, "that the use of full-time (doctors) who are well-motivated, who are constantly exposed to emergency room situations and whose sole interest is in this area, will greatly improve quality of care."

He quotes the New England Journal of Medicine to summarize the trend:

"The full-time practice of emergency medicine is becoming a new medical specialty," the magazine says. "More and more community hospitals are initiating efforts to establish this type of coverage, and there will be a great need for emergency physician specialists for years to come."

The emergency room physician does not replace the patient's own doctor but will work at his request and on his behalf, except where a true emergency leaves no time for consultation, said LeHuquet.

He gave this example of how the new program recently paid off: A young man seriously injured in a motorcycle accident arrived at Jubilee's emergency department and his doctor was not immediately available.

The emergency room physician on duty had blood samples taken for cross-matching, a surgeon alerted, an operating room booked and an intravenous started, all within 20 minutes.

"They are specialists within their own right," said LeHuquet, adding that medical practice dealing solely with emergency situations can be immensely satisfying.

Jubilee's emergency physicians are not employees of the hospital but are paid on a fee-for-service basis, the same as other doctors. That means their services are covered by medicare.

The emergency room doctors do not have any other practice and do not continue to treat patients after they have been admitted to hospital.

A major duty they will undertake is teaching. LeHuquet notes that the emergency department must evolve into an area where teaching is one of the top priorities.

Centre Grant Sought

The Community Council of Greater Vicotria will ask the federal government for $300,000 to help build an activity centre for the handicapped in Saanich.

The council is asking for the grant to match the $300,000 given early in July by the provincial government.

The centre would be a part of the Battin-Fielding complex for the handicapped on Vernon Ave. and would provide thereapy, work and recreation for about 200 people.

The council has so far gathered $550,000 toward the building, estimated at a cost of $950,000.

The activity centre will give victims of disability "good fellowship and camaraderie as well as therapy and contractual work," activity centre committee chairman Ron Jeffels said.

The centre will be operated with a core of volunteer workers and a minimal number of professional people including administrative staff and craft supervisors.

Pottery, cane work, ceramics, carpentry and other crafts will be offered, Jeffels said.

The centre will be located beside the 19 townhouses and 60-unit apartment complex which are to provide housing for the handicapped, their families and senior citizens.

The housing sections of the complex are expected to be finished by early October.

A temporary hostel for handicapped people who are using the activity centre and another apartment block for armed forces veterans are planned for the complex.

Jeffels said he is now drafting a letter to federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde, asking for the $300,000 to complete the centre.

The idea of the complex first started with a $100,000 gift from the estate of Mrs. Elsie Fielding of Oak Bay and has been continued with financing from a variety of community and government services including the Victoria Multiple Sclerosis and Cosmpolitan Aid Societies.

Ask The Times

Q. I read in the paper the other day that the Canadian armed forces detonated 64 high explosives during the electronic sweep of the Vernon range which they've just completed. Is this some sort of record? — A.M.P.

A. No. The highest reported number of unexploded bombs defused by a single individual is 8,000. This feat was carried out by Werner Stephan in West Berlin in the 12 years from 1945 to 1957. He was killed by a small grenade on the Gruenwald blasting site Aug. 17, 1957.

BACON AND EGGS A MONEY LOSER

A $2 bacon-and-egg breakfast is a money-loser, Eric Lewis, vice-president of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said today.

He said restaurant owners are losing out on bacon and eggs because of price increases in bacon.

As an example, Lewis said last week restaurants bought bacon wholesale at an average of 89 cents a pound.

This week the price jumped to $1.17.

He noted the increase cannot be passed onto the consumer because it takes 30 days to reprint the menus with the revised prices. He advises restaurants to print menus without tariffs and pen them in daily.

Price increases of pork products in Canada and the United States also affected Victoria consumers this week. Side bacon retailed as high as $1.43 a pound.

Deadly Chess Game

Courses Help Motorcyclists Survive

By JONATHAN FRANKLIN
Times Staff

This was the week in Victoria when 17 invisible people learned to play chess with death.

How well they learned the game will be seen on the streets and trails of B.C. One of them has already become a minor statistic.

The 17 invisibles are among the growing hundreds and thousands of people of all ages who are taking to motorcycles.

They are invisible because fellow road users, encased in the steel of their cars and trucks, just don't see them. They turn in front of the vulnerable motorcyclist, collide with him, sideswipe him and force him off the road, simply because they don't register his existence.

The giant chess game is played on the roads of Canada and, to quote Darwinist Thomas Huxley, "The rules of the game are what we call the laws of nature. The player on the other side is hidden from us. We know that his play is always fair, just and patient. But we also know, to our cost, that he never overlooks a mistake, or makes the slightest allowance for ignorance."

If a motorcyclist doesn't learn the rules of the game, he is likely to find out quickly that his hidden opponent is injury and death.

The Capital Region Safety Council a non-profit group which offers courses from the Tom Thumb tot village to adult driver education, this week taught 17 Victorians, age 15 to 36, how to ride motorcycles and survive.

Says Safety Council manager John Reeves: "Ten questions and an eye test are all it takes to get a licence to ride a motorbike for 90 days.

"If a kid doesn't want to take the driver's test or fails after that period, he can just walk into the Motor Vehicle Branch, again pay his $1, answer the questions, and he's away for another 90 days.

"I know kids who have done this three or four times. It's a crazy system."

Reeves is pushing for compulsory driver education. He says most people learn to ride motorcycles by trial and error, which is all very well except their classroom is the public road. Some of the machines they ride weigh nearly 500 pounds and are acpable of over 100 m.p.h.

The 14-hour motorcycle course consists of two hours of classroom work in which the physics of motorcycling are taught. Films are shown to point out situations a motorcyclist must watch for.

Next comes two hours in the workshop. Motorcyclists like to think of themselves as the airplane pilots of the streets and so standards of mechanical maintenance must be just as exacting.

"It's no joke to be sitting on a machine capable of over 100 m.p.h. and have your throttle stick open," says Tom McKenzie, chief instructor on the course. "A broken brake cable or snapped and tangled chain can have just as unfortunate effect even at low speeds."

The answer is to do what the pilots do — see that the maintenance standards are high and inspect your machine before each take-off.

The Safety Council provides bikes and helmets for those who need them. Because all riding takes place on private property, no licences are needed.

In the eight hours of practical training, the students learn how to ride (if they are novices) and then join the more experienced riders zigzagging around pylons, emergency braking, going over ramps and teeter-totters, and doing acrobatics like standing on the saddle, riding side-saddle, or hanging down on each side of the bike. This is all to hone the balance and control.

The course costs $10 (helmet rental is $2 but bikes are provided free for those needing them). Next course is in September but is already booked up. Applications for the last course of the year in October can be made to the Capital Region Safety Council, 6-671 Fort Stree, phone 385-7241.

And the student who became a statistic? Well, he couldn't complete the course because he smashed up his bike on the trail and was injured.

Parkland Addition Favored by Pollen

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said today he is in favor of accepting a government offer of 400 acres of timbered property for inclusion in East Sooke Park.

"I will vote for its inclusion if the matter comes up before the regional board," Pollen, a member of the Capital Regional District, said. "There are not too many green timbered areas around Victoria."

Pollen's statement follows a regional park committee decision Wednesday not to acquire the land which Recreational Minister Jack Radford offered for inclusion in the park.

The committee also said it would not oppose logging on the Crown property. A section of the land fronts East Sooke Road and adjoins regional parkland.

The committee's decision has touched off a furore among park-conscious Victorians.

Earlier this week, John Priestman, chairman of the Open Space Advisory Committee (OSAC), said the parks committee never asked OSAC for an opinion on the matter.

OSAC is an advisory committee to the Capital Regional District.

Mac Page, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, said today Victorians are in favor of acquiring the land.

"If the government has offered the property, I see no reason for turning it down," he said. "I'm also certain that Resource Minister Bob Williams would oppose logging this area."

Bob Spearing, a well-known outdoorsman who has taken an interest in the park since it was started, said East Sooke Park should be expanded as much as possible.

Residents of south Vancouver Island have no large natural parks like other island communities.

"Residents have to travel more than 100 miles to reach a large provincial park," he pointed out. "We need a large park because not everyone can afford or has the time to travel up-island to these large natural public areas.

"The way the population is building up in this area, we need all the parkland we can get," he added.

He said the additional Crown land would also protect the more valuable parkland already acquired by the capital region, serving as a buffer zone.

SIX-BLOCK WALK INTO TROUBLE

A Victoria man who walked six blocks to the police station to report an accident was fined $400 for impaired driving.

Glenn Randolph Armstrong, of 1131 Oscar, was involved in an accident near the intersection of Government and View Streets early today, prosecutor Gordon Macdonald told Judge Edmond St. Jorre in Victoria provincial court today.

After the accident, Armstrong went to the Churchill Hotel to phone police but was told he couldn't go into the hotel.

He started walking, looking for a phone, and ended up at the Fisgard Street police station where he reported the accident. He was given a breathalyser test and charged with impaired driving.

Expanded Study Of Sex Urged

Sex education should be a part of regular high school subjects, not taught as a special course, Dr. George Szasz told a seminar at the University of Victoria Thursday.

A special sex education course would probably exclude some important aspects of sexuality, said Szasz, a member of the medical faculty at the University of British Columbia.

Topics like euthanasia, abortion and different life styles would probably be excluded, as they are from general education, he said.

A course that includes only certain aspects of sexuality would hurt a school's reputation as a purveyor of information, said Szasz.

He said the existing educational system should be expanded so that biology teachers can talk about "what goes on below the belly button", social science teachers can talk about male-female relationships and English teachers can talk about the theme of love in literature.

Up From the South, the Summer Guest

IN WINTER, SPRING AND fall, our far-flung community of neighbors is left largely to its own devices. We work at our jobs. We get on with our home projects. The drop-in visit and the handy coffee pot are symbols of our way of life. If we don't quite succeed in forgetting the outside world, we are by that world forgot until three seasons have run their course.

Then comes July, and with it the summer guest.

Reactions to this annual phenomenon vary. Some of us, like the friend I met while combing the beach for a length of two-by-four, take it hard. He was expecting a two-week visitation by in-laws, and was less than happy at the prospect.

"It isn't that I don't like them," he said. "You wouldn't find a nicer couple in a month of Sundays. But right away my brother-in-law is going to tell me how I should have built our fence, and while he's getting in his licks, his wife will be asking my wife the little questions she specializes in. Like when are we going to get a new car, and shouldn't we be thinking about new living room curtains . . ."

He kicked a plastic bleach jug from its nest in the driftline with unnecessary violence. "I'd better get on home," he said, "and paint that damn fence."

In spite of such pinpricks, the chances are that he will enjoy an invasion that can be counted on with at least as much certainty as the salmon runs and the arrival of the little Bonaparte gulls. Like the olive in the martini, the summer guest adds piquancy to life's mix, and we set our workaday routine aside when a car with familiar faces behind its glass turns in off the tourist-burdened highway.

Win's sister Gladys, the season's first pilgrim and none more welcome, blew in from California a couple of weeks ago. She was invited and expected. We looked forward to her coming and went into a flurry of preparations.

"Gladys will have slack suits and dresses to hang up," my wife said. "We'd better make all the space we can in the spare room closet."

We spent a busy hour making space. It was no easy task, but between us we achieved a gap that should be sufficient for our visitor's needs. Gladys turned up on schedule, carrying a rather small tote bag.

"Why don't you two go on out to the car?" I suggested. "I'll get your luggage."

"This is it," said our guest, swinging the undersized bag. "I started out with a suitcase but I haven't the vaguest idea where it is now, and am I ever mad!"

The missing suitcase had entrained with her at San Jose. It was plain in sight when she went to the diner. This woman who loves train travel enjoyed a leisurely meal while the brown California countryside slipped past. Then she returned to her car. No suitcase.

We've had visitors who forgot items they intended to bring. Fishing gear, for instance, and I will not soon forget the lamentations of the angler who discovered that his three-decker tackle box stuffed with lures and notions was sitting on a shelf five provinces away.

But we've never been called on to supply a wardrobe, and pondered ways and means while Gladys continued her account.

"The conductor wakened me about two in the morning. He said very formally, 'This 16-unit train was flagged down at Red Bluff so we could let you know that your luggage is safe.' I was impressed, but I still didn't have my suitcase. It had been unloaded by mistake at Oakland."

Gladys concluded cheerfully, "It may be a while before I see it again."

Win, the small one of a tall family, could provide only limited help to the shorn traveller. A friend down the line interrupted her pea-shelling to hunt out a sweater and blouse. I volunteered a shirt, cap and oversize rubber boots that would do for fishing and beachcombing. Gladys bought slacks and shoes.

She has gone now, still minus suitcase, and life in our corner of the Up-Island vacationland is less hectic. But that won't last: other guests are coming, with still others to follow in a sequence that will keep us hopping until Labor Day is past.

Then, gratefully but with a season's pleasant memories squirreled away, we'll pick up where we left off when the summer people came.

Living Costs Beat Pay Hikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Average weekly pay for four million workers in private industry — nearly half the nation's work force — has risen almost $13 in the last year, but sharply rising living costs virtually wiped out the gain.

Latest figures from Statistics Canada showed Wednesday that the average weekly paycheck climbed $2.05 in May to $160.32 and was $12.94 a week above May, 1972.

But earlier reported figures on consumer prices showed living costs in May were 7.3 per cent higher than the previoius May, reducing the purchasing power of the average paycheck by $11.70 over the year.

That left the average worker with only $1.24 in additional purchasing power out

Living costs also went up by nearly one per cent in June, eroding paychecks even further. Exactly how much won't be known until June earnings figures are reported.

The May wage gain of $2.05 per week from April was more than half wiped out in the same month by a rise of seven tenths of one per cent of his annual $12.94 wage gain.

in consumer prices that slashed $1.12 from the average paycheck's purchasing power.

The government figures on weekly earnings over workers in forestry, mining, manufacturing, construction, transportation, communications, trade, finance, insurance, real estate and service industries.

They do not include workers in government, agriculture, fishing, trapping, education or religious organizations.

The report also said there was a rise in average working hours of about two million employees in mining, manufacturing and consturction.

The increase was from 37.0 to 37.4 hours. Average hourly pay in these industries remained at $4.84 in May, it added.

The report on average weekly earnings by province now are: Newfoundland $144.04; Prince Edward Island $112.39; Nova Scotia $137.29; New Brunswick $130.90; Quebec $152.84; Ontario $166.48; Manitoba $145.61; Saskatchewan $141.30; Alberta $163.55; British Columbia $178.75;

Camp Latrine Duty All Part of Karma

By JUDY KLEMESRUD

STROUDSBURG, Pa. — "Uh-ooooooooo!" It was 4:30 a.m., and the haunting wail of a conch echoed thrugh the Sivananda Yoga Camp in the Pocono Mountains near here. Yes, Poconos — not Himalayas. It was time to get up and meditate.

Soon, 16 orange-clad swamis and their 11 blue-jeaned guests stumbled sleepily to the camp's meditation room in an old stone farmhouse, the camp's headquarters.

They sat cross-legged on the floor and stared at a flickering candle in the darkened room. Now and then they chanted "Om" together. Someone read from the Bhagavad Gita, and then the guests were sent out to weed the garden for an hour.

Yoga camps such as this one are the latest in the trend toward specialized summer camps.

At the Sivananda camp, there is not much stress on the word "vacation." Guests who come to the ashram (camp) expecting to spend most of their time meditating and doing hatha yoga (exercises) soon learn — usually to their surprise — that they spend even more time doing karma yoga (work at the camp.

This is a good way for the guests to help find their innerselves, the swamis say. But it also results in frequent one-day stays by guests who leave after they learn their chores will include cleaning toilets.

It is also weeding gardens, scrubbing floors, cooking, and carrying cement blocks up the hill to the partly-built "Living Temple."

"I don't even weed my own yard," said Mrs. Grace Gudikunst, a 52-year-old Pittsburgh housewife who was a recent guest at the camp.

But Mrs. Gudikunst stayed for two weeks, even though she was slapped with a "silence" soon after her arrival. She couldn't speak to anyone for several days because the swamis had decided that the entries in her daily journal, which all guests must keep, were "dishonest." They said she didn't write down her "innermost thoughts."

"I was hurt and a little embarrassed," Mrs. Gudikunst admitted. "I broke down and cried, which I haven't done in eight years. I thought what I had written was honest. After all, I'd never even kept a journal before."

But for every Grace Gudikunst there is a Patty Cooper, 21, who calls her three-month stay at the camp "the best thing that ever happened to me.

"I feel I've found the experience I was reading about in books in school."

The yoga camp is headed by a "divine mother," Swami Lakshmy Devi, who was once Mrs. Kaylee Rosenberg of the Bronx, the mother of three. The buxom, silver-haired, 49-year-old swami, whose husband Simon, an office decorator, visits on weekends, formerly worked as a welder and a dress designer. Then one day in 1960, she came across an advertisement for a book on yoga. She bought it, and began her immersion in the subject.

Three years later, while walking down a New York City street, Mrs. Rosenberg received "revelations" from Swami Sivananda, a Hindu monk and physician who had died earlier that year. Following these revelations, she bought the 34-acre camp for $25,000 in 1968 and named it after her guru.

Most guests are between the ages of 17 and 30, she said, and stay an average of two weeks. (Rates are $11 a day per person, or $7 a day for students.) Past guests have included college students and dropouts, professors, priests, rabbis, housewives, Girl Scouts and senior citizens.

There is no formal daily schedule at the camp. Instead, events are planned according to the swamis "vibrations."

There are often more swamis at the camp than there are guests. (The camp's total capacity is 80.) Almost all of the swamis were ordained within the last few years and as a result, Swami Lakshmy has been criticized in yoga circles for "making too many swamis."

She shrugs off such criticism by saying that "swamis are born, not made — they were ordained at their birth, because of their previous incarnations."

Single male swamis take vows of celibacy, and are called "brahmacharis." They sing about their state in a rock song, called "The Brahmachari Blues," one of the show-stoppers of a surprisingly professional yoga folklore show given every Thursday night for the public on an outdoor stage at the camp.

Implanted Drug Sickens Drinker

CHESTER, England (CP) — Doctors at an addiction-treatment centre here have reported partial success in weaning chronic alcoholics away from the bottle by means of a surgically-implanted drug.

The drug, disulfiram, was buried in pill form under the abdominal skin of 47 patients and dissolved into the bloodstream over a period of six months.

It caused the patients to feel extremely ill whenever they imbibed and most of them stayed on the wagon, for some time at least, after the drug had disappeared from their bodies.

Research is continuing to determine optimum dosages and whether regular implanatations would be a practical treatment for general use.

She Has Moses Touch

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Magdalena Krueger and the late Grandma Moses have much in common, not least the fact that they both embarked on artistic careers late in life.

At 86, Magdalena has been painting for only 19 months and already her work is reflecting the attractive simplicity of the internationally famous American master of primitive art.

An avid gardener, Magdalena started painting to bring the vivid colors of her garden into her home. She draws her patterns freehand and transfers them onto silk, painting directly from the tube.

"I've never had an art lesson; I just paint for fun," says Magdalena, a white-haired great-grandmother. "I like to see flowers blooming in the garden—that's the place for them. I don't like to see them cut for indoor floral arrangements."

Thus, the only way she can bring her blossoming garden inside "is to decorate my walls with flower paintings," she says. "And I thought I may as well paint them myself."

Painting is only a part of her artistic flair. Her two late husbands were both carpenters and much of their craft rubbed off on Magdalena.

She has built her own bed, several pieces of lawn furniture and a wheelbarrow.

Probably her finest piece of woodwork is a miniature grandfather clock, operated electrically, with musical chimes.

"It is the reflection of a youthful dream, she says. "I once saw a grandfather clock that chimed music on the hour. It's been my dream to make one."

Her primary love, inherited from country living, is her garden. During the summer, she has little time for anything but her flowers.
